Prince Charles wades through demonstrators

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Escorted by more than 50 helmet-clad riot police, Britain's Prince Charles stepped off a cable car at the foot of Nob Hill today and waded through hundreds of angry anti-British protestors who shouted, "stop the torture."

About 1,000 people swarmed around the prince, but not all were members of the Irish Republican Committee, which coordinated the protest against treatment of Irish prisoners in English jails. About half the throng appeared friendly.

However, the Irish activists were loud and highly visible, carrying signs which read, "Charles the Vampire of Wales," and "The Clockwork Brit: Wind it and it murders children."

The cable car ride, which began his second day in the San Francisco Bay area, traveled slowly down the steep hill as hundreds of people, many of them cheering, ran alongside. The prince smiled and waved back.

The smile faded, however, at the end of the short trip when he stepped off the cable car and became the vocal target of the protestors.

A spectator, Raymond McGrath, 28, said, "The look on Charlie's face was like his porridge had gone cold."

No physical confrontations were noticed between the demonstrators and the billyclub-wielding police. Officers said there were no arrests.

The prince entered the Bank of America world headquarters for a tour and planned later to visit Fishermen's Wharf.

Charles' first night in the area was marked by protests, too, but he managed to keep his composure Thursday night, remarking at one point on the good manners of the demonstrators.

Terrorists kidnap Dutch millionaire

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — A millionaire Dutch tycoon was kidnaped as he left a nightclub early today. A telephone caller demanded the abdication of Queen Juliana and release of a West German terrorist jailed in Holland in exchange for his freedom.

Witnesses said about five persons overpowered Maurits Caransa, 61, in a struggle outside the Continental Club, where he had been playing bridge, and forced him into a red car. Caransa owns a chain of hotels and clubs in Holland and is prominent in Jewish activities.

Supporters of West Germany's Red Army Faction terrorist also claimed responsibility for bombings of two West German car showrooms in Milan, one in Rome and a German engineering company office in Lisbon today. No injuries were reported.

Callers told police the bombs, like others that damaged West German property across Europe last week, were planted to avenge the Oct. 18 prison deaths of three leaders of the German terrorist underground — Andreas Baader, Gudrun Enssiin and Jan-Carl Raspe.

The Amsterdam kidnapping followed a warning by West German Justice Minister HansJochen Vogel that the prison deaths, which officials termed suicides, were not "acts of resignation" but a sign that "further attacks are looming."

A German-speaking man called the Amsterdam newspaper Het Parool nine hours after the kidnaping and told a switchboard operator: "We are the Red Army Faction. We have Caransa. You will hear from us."

MAURITS CARANSA

A later call to the newspaper Telegraaf demanded that the queen abdicate and Dutch authorities free Knut Folkers, 25, a Red Army Faction terrorist charged with the Sept. 22 killing of a policeman in Utrecht. He is wanted for terrorist activities in West Germany.

Caransa has extensive properties in Holland, about half of them in the hotel and catering industry. Three years ago he rejected a bid by a British concern to buy his properties for $40 million. He is married and has one grown daughter.

Towering waves hit Oregon

By The Associated Press

Towering waves whipped by a winter storm crashed into the central Oregon coast today, gutting the lounge of a motel at DePoe Bay and wrecking cars. No injuries were reported.

The storm hit the coast at high tide about 2 a.m. and lasted for more than an hour before subsiding. The National Weather Service predicted more high winds and waves today from Washington to Northern California. The waves were driven by a frontal system that moved into the Pacific Northwest and Northern California, with rain spreading from near San Francisco to British Columbia.

Mike Padberg, co-owner of the Surfpoint Inn, said the waves crashed through the windows, destroying the bar and booths.

"All the booze is gone. Some of it is still floating around. The rest of it is out at sea," he said.

Padberg said the waves still were lapping at the base of the structure despite being low tide. "I don't know what it is going to do when hightide comes at 2 p.m., he said. "We've been here three years and we've never had anything like this."

Other motels built near the water reported waves crashed through windows of some first-floor units. Four cars on the beach at Waldport were destroyed by waves and logs hurled ashore by the storm. Coast Guard stations at Yaquina Bay and Depoe Bay said one small boat broke loose, but there was no damage.

DANCE FOR DANCE

United Kingdom's Princess Margaret, right, and actress Elizabeth Taylor greet each other warmly Thursday night at Dance for Dance, the dinner dance held by the Anglo-American Contemporary Dance Foundation Inc. in New York. The actress was honorary chairman of the affair attended by more than 600 guests while the princess was guest of honor.

Gold dental work clue to identity

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical examiners from two states began checking dental records today to determine if a skeleton found in thick underbrush in northeastern Pennsylvania is that of former Teamsters president Jimmy Hoffa.

The skeleton, with expensive gold dental work that authorities believed might match that of Hoffa, was found on Monday by a hunter near Honesdale, Pa.

Robert Jennings, coroner of Wayne County, where Honesdale is located, said he had talked Thursday night with James P. Hoffa, son of the union boss who disappeared in the summer of 1975 as he was mounting a drive to regain control of the Teamsters.

"He was very excited when he heard the age, height and hair color" of the skeleton, Jennings said.

The body was brought to the New York medical examiner's office because authorities here have better equipment and more experience in dealing with such cases.

Jennings and Dominick DiMaio, New York's chief medical examiner, met today to begin the process of trying to identify the body.

DiMaio said there was "only a fragment of flesh" on the skeleton. However, he said the amount of work done on the victim's teeth would provide an identification "almost as good as a fingerprint."

He said Hoffa's dental records were being flown from Detroit and he expected to know later in the day whether the skeleton was Hoffa's.

The FBI said it was watching the case, but declined further comment. However, Jennings said he had been requested to alert the FBI to the body's discovery and its similarity to Hoffa, although he declined to say who had made the request. Jennings said the FBI was taking part in today's proceedings.

Jennings said the victim was about 5 feet, 7 inches tall and between 55 and 60 years old. Hoffa stood 5 feet 5½ inches and was 62 years old when he disappeared.

Jennings said the body had "a lot of teeth." It was the discovery of several thousand dollars worth of gold dental work that led Pennsylvania officials to become suspicious and to believe that the victim may have been wealthy.

Jennings said Hoffa's son told him his father had had extensive work done on his teeth.

Jennings said the decomposed body was covered by leaves and was in thick underbrush when it was found.

He refused to comment on any physical evidence, such as clothing, which might have been found with the body. He also declined to estimate how long the man may have been dead or how long the body may have been hidden.

Refugee measure, too

Prisoner exchange bill signed by Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today signed legislation that could bring several hundred Americans now held in Mexican and Canadian jails home in time for Christmas.

Carter, in a White House Rose Garden ceremony, also signed legislation granting permanent resident alien status and continued education benefits to the Indochinese refugees who fled to the United States after the fall of South Vietnam.

He said both bills demonstrated that the American spirit of compassion and concern for human rights still flourished.

The prisoner exchange bill sets up the machinery to carry out prisoner exchange treaties between the United States and the governments of Mexico and Canada. They are the first such treaties signed by this country.

The treaties allow U.S. citizens held in Mexico or Canada to choose to serve the remainder of their sentences in U.S. jails. Mexicans and Canadians who wished to return to their countries could also do so.

The refugee bill eventually will mean that approximately 145,000 refugees from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia can become American citizens, the Justice Department has estimated.

"This bill acknowledges our gratitude, debt and commitment to a better life for them," Carter said.

There has been little agitation for that opportunity from Americans held in Canada. But the Justice Department, based on interviews in Mexico, estimates that at least 300 of the approximately 600 Americans now held in Mexico would prefer to serve their sentences in U.S. prisons.

The treaties also allow Mexicans and Canadians now held in the United States to return to their home countries, but there is no estimate of how many would like to do so.

Most of the Americans jailed in Mexico were arrested for carrying drugs after the Nixon administration pressured the Mexican government in the early 1970s to crack down on narcotics traffic, the State Department says.

Those arrested were not those who supplied the money for the drug trade, but "the mules who acted as couriers," the department says.

The prisoners and their families say the Mexican justice system is riddled with bribery. Prisoners say they often must pay even for food and shelter.

Their complaints led to the U.S.-Mexican treaty, which was signed last November and quickly ratified by the Mexican government. The Canadian agreement followed.

80 schools close doors

By Associated Press

Eighty city schools in Toledo, Ohio, were to close after classes today, with school suspended for the city's 52,000 students until January unless voters approve a tax increase.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia school officials said Thursday that schools there will remain open at least two weeks while the legislature deliberates a way to allow the district to borrow $50 million to cover a cash emergency.

Also on Thursday, a federal judge scheduled hearings next month on a desegregation plan for Cleveland schools.

Toledo voters will decide a 6.1-mill special levy on Nov. 8. If approved, property taxes would be increased — for the first time since 1968.

Congressman is target

Federal grand jury probing leak to Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury is investigating whether a member of Congress leaked information to South Korean intelligence officials, Rep. Clement J. Zablocki said today.

A published report said the target of the probe is Rep. Edward J. Derwinski.

Zablocki, chairman of the House International Relations Committee, said the congressman being investigated is suspected of almost thwarting a South Korean diplomat's defection to the United States by warning the South Koreans that the diplomat was about to defect.

Zablocki, a Democrat from Wisconsin, said he was not told the member's name. However, an article in today's Wall Street Journal says the target of the probe in Derwinski, Republican from Illinois.

Derwinski, ranking GOP member on the committee's panel investigating South Korean activities in the United States, issued a statement saying he would withhold comment on the news account.

"I do not have any information as to the source of the allegations," Derwinski said. "In view of the ongoing investigation it is appropriate that I withhold any comment on the allegations at this time."

Zablocki said he was informed the information leaked to the South Koreans was that one of their diplomats had told the House panel he planned to defect.

The Wall Street Journal said U.S. intelligence learned of the leak and managed to get the diplomat and his family away from their home only 30 minutes before South Korean intelligence agents arrived to try to stop the defection.

It named the diplomat as Sohn Young Ho, a South Korean diplomat in New York City, who defected Sept. 16.

The newspaper said a potential problem in prosecuting the case might be unwillingness by U.S. intelligence officials to reveal how they knew a congressman had telephoned or talked to foreign agents.

Zablocki said he understands a crucial question in the investigation is whether the information was relayed to the Koreans at a time that would make it likely to have triggered their efforts to block the defection.

"It's caused me no end of agony, because we have had an excellent record of handling classified information," Zablocki said. "Now we've had a rash of leaks," he said.

He said he had been told there were some less serious leaks from the subcommittee's Korean investigation.

Three Pomonans held in theft of railroad ties

Three young Pomona men were arrested by La Verne police early today and accused of stealing 45 brand-new railroad ties valued at $650 from a stack of 50 along the Santa Fe Railroad tracks in La Verne

Police Sgt. David Cazares said he made the arrests when the three men, all 20 years old, returned to Arrow Highway and Wheeler Road to load the remaining five ties in a pickup truck. The suspects were booked on suspicion of grand theft.

The ties, measuring eight feet long by six inches square, weigh about 150 pounds and are worth $15 each, Officer Dutch Fields said.

Those arrested were Robert Franklin, of 2378 Stanford Ave., Andrew Pedraza, of 883 S. Buena Vista Ave., and Daniel Bauman, of 2190 Marquette St.

The stolen ties were to be picked up this morning by Santa Fe employees from a storage yard at Reservoir Street and Grand Avenue in Pomona, Fields said.

He added that railroad ties are in demand for use in fencing and retaining walls, but the ones from La Verne were intended for use in constructing a log cabin.

Motorist hits parked truck, dies instantly

A Glendora motorist was killed early today when his small sedan crashed into the rear of a heavily-loaded, parked semi-trailer truck on Foothill Boulevard in Pomona.

The victim, Dennis Paul Songer, 31, was killed outright in the crash. Police said he suffered chest injuries.

The truck, parked near Sumner Avenue, was loaded with 45,000 pounds of frozen liver, officers said. They added that the sedan left no skid marks leading to the point of impact, indicating that the driver may have fallen asleep.

Songer's auto was a total loss, police said. The accident occurred shortly after 3:30 a.m.

The increase in the index of leading indicators last month was a moderate three-tenths of 1 per cent.

GEN. OMAR BRADLEY

Omar Bradley bids farewell to California

LOS ALAMITOS (AP) — With trembling hands and voice, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the nation's only living five-star general, bid farewell to California, saying he will miss the "warm hospitality, sunshine and laughter."

Bradley, who will be moving to Fort Bliss, Tex., in mid-November, was paid a tribute filled with pomp and circumstance by the California National Guard on Thursday. The farewell salute included an ear-shattering 19-cannon salute and the presentation by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of the Medal of Valor, California's highest honor. All branches of the armed forces participated.

The 84-year-old World War II field commander arrived by helicopter and, in a blue convertible once owned by Dwight D. Eisenhower, reviewed six groupings of troops who stood at attention in precise rows.

Wearing black-rimmed sunglasses, Bradley was pushed in his wheelchair to the reviewing stand, where he stood — with help — for the national anthem. He listened to several speeches before taking the microphone himself, saying his wife was to have made their parting remarks, but she had laryngitis.

"We will miss California's warm hospitality, sunshine and laughter," he said, reading from yellow index cards. "We'll try to come back as often as we can."

Bradley said moving to Fort Bliss would enable him to be close to military people. "Living on the post will permit me to serve the Army and the country," he said.

Mrs. Bradley, wearing a gray suit with matching suede boots and handbag, apologized for her hoarse voice and dabbed away tears with a tissue.

"I'm glad it didn't rain on our parade," she said.

The sun ducked in and out of cloudy skies while pigeons circled the crowd of nearly 2,000 people at the Armed Forces Reserve Center.

"Like our flag, he has become the embodiment not of sentiment, but of history," said Maj. Gen. Frank J. Schober Jr., commander of the California National Guard.

Demonstrators confront Prince Charles in S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As Prince Charles continues his tour with a trip across the Golden Gate Bridge today, pro-Irish activists plan to dot his path with reminders of the conflict in Northern Ireland.

Demonstrators greeted the prince Thursday with pickets, signs and a procession of hearses at two different receptions in his honor.

At the home of the British consul in the exclusive Pacific Heights district, several hundred protesters shouted "Stop The Torture" as the prince's motorcade arrived.

The demonstrators, organized by the Irish Republican Committee, claim Irish prisoners are tortured in British jails. They threw leaflets reading "Prince of Torture" at his car, and carried banners reading "Stop the Torture Charlie," and "Brits Out of Ireland."

They also put 13 miniature black coffins in the street in front of the residence. Stepping out of his limousine amid a slew of security guards and helmeted riot police, the prince appeared shaken by the sight of the coffins, which bore the names of the dead of Northern Ireland.

He also seemed taken aback by the large, chanting crowd, including some protestors atop an old bus adorned with banners! Other protesters had to be restrained by police lines, but officers characterized the demonstration as "relatively peaceful." No one attempted to reach His Royal Highness.

Earlier in the evening, the prince attended a reception at the Press Club of San Francisco. Just before he arrived, three shiny, black hearses passed by, each with banners reading "Prince Charlie: Stop Killing Irish Children."

In addition to the mock funeral procession, demonstrators across the street from the Press Club picketed with signs reading, "Press Club: No Irish Need Apply."

The pickets claim the Press Club refused them admittance but the club said the Irish Republican Committee never made a formal request.

Inside the club, the prince observed the royal tradition of not answering questions of a political nature. However, he smiled and chatted with reporters, asking about their jobs and employers.

He said he was not bothered by the demonstrators outside. "They were really very polite...I just saw a few signs," he said.

Prince Charles will remain in the Bay Area until Sunday and then fly to Australia.

Warns air official

'Growing cancer epidemic' due to smog in California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Air pollution has more than doubled the lung cancer rate in some urban areas of California and smog levels are continuing to climb, the state's top clean air official reports.

"California is suffering from a growing cancer epidemic," Chairman Tom Quinn of the state Air Resources Board said Thursday.

"Lung cancer rates in the Los Angeles and San Francisco areas are now more than double the national average," Quinn said in a speech before a group of Democrats at a reception in his honor.

"The most alarming increase has occurred in San Mateo County," a fast-growing residential and industrial area just south of San Francisco, he said.

Where comparable urban areas such as Chicago have lung cancer rates of less than nine per 100,000 population, it was 41.2 from 1969 to 1973, climbing 51.7 in 1975, he said. The same trend was noted in other Bay Area counties.

In Los Angeles County, the rate was 45.5 between 1972 and 1975, compared with a national average of about 19 per 100,000 population.

"California is becoming the nation's cancer capital, and the growing cancer rates correspond to growing air pollution levels," Quinn said. "We are seeing the highest cancer rates among people who live near heavy industry, such as oil refineries, and the lowest rates among people living in clean areas, such as Marin County," north of San Francisco.

He said the lung cancer rates for women, generally far below the rates for men, are showing an "alarming increase." In Los Angeles, the female lung cancer rate is about 22 per 100,000, compared with a national average of less that six.

Despite the fact that California now has the cleanest motor vehicles in the nation, air pollution continues to climb because of industrial pollution, he said.

The air board will conduct a major effort in the next year to clean up industries, especially oil refineries, Quinn said.

"By this time next year we will have dramatically less pollution by the oil industry," he said. Quinn said the cleanup effort would focus on major industries, "which can afford it," rather than small industries which might be forced out of business.

The largest single cause of increased industrial air pollution has been a switch from natural gas to coal and fuel oil as a fuel, Quinn said. But technology has been developed in Japan which will be adopted in California to curb the smog, he said.

Even though some other areas of the nation have more air pollution, the problem in the East and Midwest is less because they generally don't have California's problem of thermal inversions — air masses that trap smog between mountains, he said.

Coast Guard races to save Mexican ship

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Two U.S. Coast Guard cutters slashed through choppy seas today and reached a Mexican tanker that was in danger of pitching into the rugged central California coastline south of here.

The Coast Guard said the vessels reached the 175-foot Ariadna II early today and would use tie lines to hold it in safe waters.

Gale-whipped winds had driven the tanker and its 10-man crew to within a mile of Point Sur, about 20 miles south of here.

"It was getting real close," said Coast Guard Petty Officer Lynnard Phipps.

Phipps said a third cutter was bound for the disabled craft from San Francisco and would tow it to a safe port, probably Monterey.

"The other two should be able to keep it from going on the beach until the Midget arrives," Phipps said.

The Ariadna II, a 34-year-old vessel, sent out a distress signal Thursday night after a fuel system breakdown killed the ship's power.

Coast Guard information officer Helen Waters said the ship was bound from Mexico to San Francisco with a load of liquid paraffin.

Blind couple wins case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A blind couple that was refused a room in a Los Angeles hotel because they brought along their seeing eye dog has been awarded $15,000 in the settlement of a suit filed against the hotel, officials said.

Howard Caler, 54, and his wife, Sinforosa, 37, settled a $1 million suit in Superior Court Thursday.

The Calers charged that the Rosslyn Hotel had accepted a reservation request from them in March 1974, when they planned to visit the city from San Diego, where they resided then.

When they arrived with their two young children and guide dog, the suit claimed, the hotel refused to lodge them because of a policy prohibiting dogs.

State law provides that blind persons cannot be denied full access to hotels and other public places because of their seeing eye dogs.

Innocent plea

OXNARD (AP)—An 18-year-old youth has pleaded innocent to murder and other charges in the death of a high school music student and the rape attack of his girlfriend.

A preliminary hearing for Johnny G. Lopez was set for Nov. 8.

Meanwhile, Superior Court Judge Jerome Berenson said Thursday that circumstances surrounding the slaying of Paul Yenney Jr., 17, and the beating of Linda Fiene, 18, warranted public naming of a second youth charged in the case, even though he is a 17-year-old juvenile.

KKK won't quit

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The Ku Klux Klan says its private patrols in search of illegal aliens along the Mexican border will continue despite a plea from U.S. Atty. Griffin Bell urging a halt to their activities.

Bel and Leonel J. Castillo, Immigration and Naturalization Service commissioner, sent a telegram Thursday to Border Patrol officials here reiterating the Justice Department's position that only federal officers "will be allowed to enforce general and immigration laws" along the 2,000-mile Mexican border.

Drug suspects released

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four men arrested when police seized a "department store" of drugs worth an estimated $6.5 million last August have been released because the search warrant leading to the seizure was incorrectly filed, officials said.

Time for peace

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Now is the time for a lasting Mideast peace settlement and America should take a strong role in achieving that goal, says Prince Saud Al Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

"The time has come, indeed is long overdue, for a comprehensive settlement in the Middle East," Al Faisal, minister of state for foreign affairs, said Thursday. "The conditions have never been as propitious as now on behalf of the entire international community."

Red Adair successful

100-foot torch extinguished; oil will flow

TAFT, Calif. (AP) — An oil well that exploded and burst into flames, killing three workers, is expected to be producing again in "a few days."

The flaming 100-foot gusher of oil was extinguished Thursday with the help of plastic explosives triggered by famed oil well firefighter Red Adair.

The explosives, gingerly placed in brackets Adair had bolted to the well, cut off enough oxygen to the fire so local firefighters could douse the final flames.

Adair, who has been called upon to snuff numerous oil well fires, returned to Houston without talking to reporters.

His fee was not disclosed, but Cmdr. Roger Martin, head of the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve, said the cost was worth it.

"This well is going to be back in production within a few days," Martin said. "He (Adair) not only put the fire out, he secured the runaway well and did so in a manner that did not damage the well down hole at all."

The fire started with an explosion deep underground Tuesday afternoon. A cause has not been determined yet.

The reserve was opened to domestic production last year. With an estimated 1.3 billion barrels of water underground, Elk Hills is the nation's largest oil reserve outside Alaska.

GEN. OMAR BRADLEY

Omar Bradley bids farewell to California

LOS ALAMITOS (AP) — With trembling hands and voice, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, the nation's only living five-star general, bid farewell to California, saying he will miss the "warm hospitality, sunshine and laughter."

Bradley, who will be moving to Fort Bliss, Tex., in mid-November, was paid a tribute filled with pomp and circumstance by the California National Guard on Thursday. The farewell salute included an ear-shattering 19-cannon salute and the presentation by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of the Medal of Valor, California's highest honor. All branches of the armed forces participated.

The 84-year-old World War II field commander arrived by helicopter and, in a blue convertible once owned by Dwight D. Eisenhower, reviewed six groupings of troops who stood at attention in precise rows.

Wearing black-rimmed sunglasses, Bradley was pushed in his wheelchair to the reviewing stand, where he stood — with help — for the national anthem. He listened to several speeches before taking the microphone himself, saying his wife was to have made their parting remarks, but she had laryngitis.

"We will miss California's warm hospitality, sunshine and laughter," he said, reading from yellow index cards. "We'll try to come back as often as we can."

Bradley said moving to Fort Bliss would enable him to be close to military people. "Living on the post will permit me to serve the Army and the country," he said.

Mrs. Bradley, wearing a gray suit with matching suede boots and handbag, apologized for her hoarse voice and dabbed away tears with a tissue.

"I'm glad it didn't rain on our parade," she said.

The sun ducked in and out of cloudy skies while pigeons circled the crowd of nearly 2,000 people at the Armed Forces Reserve Center.

"Like our flag, he has become the embodiment not of sentiment, but of history," said Maj. Gen. Frank J. Schober Jr., commander of the California National Guard.

Demonstrators confront Prince Charles in S.F.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As Prince Charles continues his tour with a trip across the Golden Gate Bridge today, pro-Irish activists plan to dot his path with reminders of the conflict in Northern Ireland.

Demonstrators greeted the prince Thursday with pickets, signs and a procession of hearses at two different receptions in his honor.

House OKs massive S.S. tax hike

Social Security Proposal

Year	Percentage Charged	Maximum Salary	Maximum Tax
1977	5.85%	$16,500	$965
1978	6.05%	$19,900	$1,204
1979	6.05%	$22,900	$1,385
1980	6.05%	$25,900	$1,567
1981	6.65%	$27,900	$1,855
1982	6.65%	$30,000	$1,995

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation that would put an unprecedented tax bite on the 104 million Americans who have Social Security taxes withheld from their paychecks is heading to the Senate after winning House approval.

A Senate vote on a similar bill could come as early as next week.

On Thursday, the House passed, 275 to 146, its version of legislation to increase the tax for every worker covered by the program, with the heaviest impact falling on upper-income workers. Their employers also would pay more under the House bill.

A decade from now, anyone earning $42,600 would pay more than three times as much Social Security tax as is now withheld. The tax would go from $965 this year to $3,025 in 1987.

Someone earning $20,000 would pay $1,420, instead of $965. A worker with a salary of $10,000 would pay $710, up from $585.

The House did not consider any change in the benefits Social Security pays to 33 million people, including retired workers and their dependents or survivors, disabled workers and their dependents, and Medicare recipients.

Congress will probably enact hefty tax increases this year to keep the Social Security system from going broke. The system has amassed $5.6 billion in deficits since 1975.

Because of population age shifts and such other factors as high unemployment, Social Security is taking in less money than it is paying out in benefits.

"We are concerned about keeping the system solvent and this bill will do it," Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said after the House approved the bill produced by the Ways and Means Committee, which he heads.

Although some members complained about the major tax increase, most agreed the financial crisis was severe enough to merit drastic steps.

However, the House added two amendments that increased the tax rate beyond what the committee called for.

One amendment would remove limits on wages earned by Social Security recipients, phasing out the current maximum of $3,000 on outside earnings by 1982.

Under current law, recipients lose $1 in benefits for every $2 they take in above that amount. Elderly persons could therefore continue to receive a full salary while drawing full Social Security benefits.

The second amendment, approved earlier, continues an exemption for more than six million public employes and congressmen, who have separate retirement plans.

The measure was sharply criticized by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which called the final vote "unbelievable."

"We are absolutely astonished to see the members of the House of Representatives voting to triple maximum Social Security taxes over the next 10 years while at the same time still voting to exclude themselves and all federal workers..." said Michael J. Romig, a spokesman for the business organization.

Passage of the bill came after about 12 hours of debate in two days. Most amendments were defeated.

Rep. Barber B. Conable, R-N.Y., who unsuccessfully tried to limit the increases, called the bill "a bigger tax increase than any tax relief measure that we are likely to consider."

Conable had been expected to try to raise the age for receiving full Social Security benefits from 65 to 68, a move that would have limited the new taxes. But he said after the vote that he dropped his plans because, "We weren't going to get any votes on it."

The House-approved bill also would allow recipients to continue receiving benefits even after marrying. Some elderly couples now live together without marrying because they would otherwise lose benefits.

Under the pending Senate bill, employers would for the first time pay more than their employes.

The Social Security tax is now 5.85 per cent of wages, with workers earning $16,500 paying the maximum of $965. This is already scheduled to go up substantially and the bill would add additional increases.

Under the bill, the tax next year would be 6.05 per cent on incomes up to $19,900. The maximum tax would be $1,204.

By 1982, the tax rate would be 6.65 per cent on pay up to $30,000, or a maximum of $1,965. In 1987 the tax rate would be 7.1 per cent on wages up to $42,600, or $3,025.

Montclair selects builder of center

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The Montclair City Council approved the "apparent" low bidder for construction of the new Community Center Thursday.

In recommending that Earle T. Casler Construction Co. Inc. of Upland be awarded the contract, staff made it clear that approval must be contingent upon Casler meeting the federal requirement on minority contracting for the project.

Otherwise, the 1976 Public Works Act project will go to Berry Construction Inc. of Upland.

The two firms gave the separate bids of $598,606 and $656,766. Although the Casler bid is lower, there is some question on whether he has met the federal stipulation.

Under the second round of funding for the economy stimulus program, the federal government requires that 10 percent of the total grant to an agency be given to minority subcontractors or suppliers. The Montclair grant of $1,045,000 requires that $104,500 go to meet the prerequisite.

After the bid opening Wednesday afternoon, City Engineer Carl Sawtell and Mike Milhiser, assistant city administrator, discovered the Casler minority subcontracting figure did not total the necessary amount.

The error in the total may be due to numbers being unclear after copying the information pages.

Steve Fisher of Operation Second Chance and City Atty. Eugene Demchuk said that if indeed the mistake is in the copying and that the necessary federal forms are submitted to Montclair City Hall by 5 p.m. Monday, then Casler retains the contract.

If these deadlines are not met, the Montclair council will meet in special session to award the contract to Berry.

City Administrator Lauren Wasserman said the two bids were considerably lower than the estimates projected by staff. The inflated construction estimate was $897,000.

"The estimates were very inflated because of uncertainties of what impact the minority contracting would have on the total bid," Wasserman said.

Milhiser said that due to the low bids, equipment, furnishings and fixtures that had been removed from the project can now be reinstated.

The center is to be located east of the library and City Hall parking lot. The total square footage is slightly more than 12,000 feet and includes rest rooms, lounge, kitchen, office, electrical and storage areas, two meeting rooms, a stage area, and furnishings.

The project also includes architectural services, site work and landscaping and a directory sign for the total Civic Center complex.

Casler is the current contractor for the first phase of the Civic Center improvement and expansion which includes a new council chamber, administration, community development and engineering offices, expansion of the recreational facilities and enclosure of the walkways in the complex.

Construction on the Community Center is expected to begin by late November.

Garage bedroom damaged by fire

Electrical wiring deficiency was blamed by the Pomona Fire Department for the blaze in a garage bedroom at 1639 E. Ninth St., at 7:44 p.m. Thursday which heavily damaged the structure.

Occupant Sherry Koczor was not at home at the time of the fire, officials said.

Loss estimate was $2,500 to the structure and $1,000 to contents.

Delegation to join rally against KKK

A San Bernardino and Riverside counties delegation will join 5,000 expected demonstrators in San Ysidro Saturday to protest the activities of the Klu Klux Klan in the area.

Armando Navarro of Upland, director of the National Institute for Community Development, said that 40 persons from Ontario-San Bernardino-Riverside regions will participate in the massive protest in Larson Park at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The San Ysidro park is located a few meters from the border of the United States and Mexico. The demonstration is to draw attention to the "problems the Chicano have there in San Diego and surrounding areas because of the KKK and to protest the attitude and actions of the San Diego and federal officials who have collaborated with the Klan," Navarro said.

Although local, state and federal officials have denounced the Klan's private border patrol openly, Navarro contended that San Diego officials have given Klansmen the red carpet treatment, including a gathering for David Dukes, the Grand Dragon of the Knights of the Klu Klux Klan from Metrairie, La.

The demonstrators will be drawn from Chicano residents and leaders from throughout the Southwest. Among those speaking will be Herman Baca of National City, chairman of the Committee for Chicano Rights; Rudolfo "Corky" Gonzales of Colorado, leader of the Crusade for Justice; Bert Corona, a veteran activist in Los Angeles; Raul Ruiz, editor of La Raza Magazine and an East Los Angeles activist; and Navarro.

4 held in pistol-whipping holdup

Three men and a woman have been arrested by West End sheriff's detectives in connection with the reported pistol-whipping of a customer and the robbery of more than $8,000 from the Arrow and Grove Market in Cucamonga last Friday.

Booked in the West End jail for investigation of armed robbery, kidnapping and burglary were Scott Clinton Lehman, 26, Ontario; John Joseph Morris, 24, of Fontana; and Anthony Patrick Iorio, 25, of Ontario. Also arrested for allegedly aiding and abetting an armed robbery was Robbie Marsan Lehman, 21, of Montclair.

West End sheriff's detectives said the four were arrested at their homes following a week-long investigation.

Last Friday, deputies reported, three men armed with handguns entered the market at Arrow Highway and Grove Avenue in Cucamonga and held three clerks and seven customers at bay.

The gunman ordered the customers and two of the clerks to lie on the floor while the robbers took one of the employees into the back office and made him open the safe.

The other two robbers rifled the cash registers in the front of the store and, for no apparent reason, brutally beat and pistol-whipped an Ontario man who was a customer in the store.

The three robbers then fled from the area.

Detectives said that one gun, possibly used in the robbery, had been confiscated. However, no money was recovered during the arrests.

The detectives said they are seeking several other persons for questioning in the case.

The Ontario man who was pistol-whipped suffered severe face and head lacerations. He was treated and later released from San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Body of shooting victim identified

The body of a man found shot to death Tuesday night on the east side of the Delinquency Prevention Center in Old Northtown, Cucamonga, has been identified as that of Miguel Peralta, 30 to 35 years of age, a Mexican national from the state of Sonora.

The identification was made after deputy coroners made a house-to-house inquiry as to the slain man's identity.

Deputy Coroner Harvey Castro said one man had been located who recalled that Peralta, who had been missing for several days, was living in Cucamonga. The informant in San Bernardino later positively identified Peralta.

Man arrested for pulling knife on hospital workers

A 36-year-old Pomona man booked in the West End jail is accused of pulling a knife on several employees at Chino General Hospital Thursday night, Chino police reported.

Carroll Adrain Cooke of 1790 W. Holt Ave., was arrested for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon and traffic violations following the incident.

Police said the suspect had taken his wife to the hospital for an emergency and apparently got into a verbal argument with hospital employees.

The suspect then allegedly pulled a knife and threatened the employees before fleeing to his car which was parked nearby, said investigators.

He was arrested by officers outside of the hospital.

Four men arrested in drive on prostitution

Four men were arrested in Pomona Thursday evening in a police crackdown on prostitution along Holt Avenue, but last night's suspects were not women but men charged with soliciting an undercover reserve policewoman for an act of prostitution.

The ages of the men arrested ranged from 18 to 65 and included an Ontario nursery owner and a California Youth Authority counselor, Sgt. Roy Dixon said today.

The arrests were made within a period of about one hour and were the result of complaints made by businessmen in the area of Holt and Garey avenues, Dixon said. He added that the neighborhood has become a popular location for prostitutes to be picked up by customers, and warned that police intended to continue making arrests.

The suspects arrested Thursday were Theodore Ralston Quay Jr., 65, of 11274 Fremont St., Ontario, a nurseryman; Gary William Whorley, 31, of 5927 Chino Ave., Chino, a maintenance man; Robert Allen Franklin, 18, of 353 Valera St., Pomona, an auto mechanic: and Paul Leo Miller, 29, of 9589 Carrillo Ave., Montclair, a CYA employe.

Electrocuted while putting up antenna

A La Puente man was electrocuted late Thursday afternoon in Hacienda Heights while helping his brother-in-law erect a television antenna, sheriff's deputies said.

The victim, Steven Berdin, 20, of 15660 Hudson St., died shortly after 5:30 p.m. at Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina.

Deputies said Berdin was assisting Sal Perez, 22, erect an antenna on the roof of Perez' home at 14835 Palm Ave., when the antenna fell against a high-voltage power line. They said Berdin was unable to let go of the antenna and was shocked fatally.

Van occupants sought for firing shots at students

Ontario police are seeking a group of youths in two vans who drove by two carloads of students parked on the west side of Ontario High School and fired five or six shots in their direction Thursday afternoon.

Police said several carloads of Ontario High School students were sitting in their cars just off the campus about 2:15 p.m. when a green and a blue van, containing a number of youths, drove by slowly.

The students told officers that someone in one of the vans fired five to six shots at them and their parked vehicle before speeding off.

Police said that two bullets, believed fired from a .22-caliber weapon, struck one of the students' vehicles in the left front fender and windshield.

The second vehicle reportedly fired at by the assailants was not located.

Police said the two vans are believed to be registered to owners in the Chino area. Police said the shooting incident has been classified as an attempted murder.

5 youths held in series of thefts

Montclair police have arrested five youths believed responsible for a series of commercial and residential burglaries.

The youths, 14 to 16 years old, were arrested at their homes. Some property believed taken in the burglaries, including three guns, were found, said investigators.

Two youths had been arrested last week and accused of stealing a truck in Montclair. They were taken to juvenile hall but later released.

More arrests, including at least two adults, are pending, said officers.

House OKs massive S.S. tax hike

Social Security Proposal

Year	Percentage Charged	Maximum Salary	Maximum Tax
1977	5.85%	$16,500	$965
1978	6.05%	$19,900	$1,204
1979	6.05%	$22,900	$1,385
1980	6.05%	$25,900	$1,567
1981	6.65%	$27,900	$1,855
1982	6.65%	$30,000	$1,995

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation that would put an unprecedented tax bite on the 104 million Americans who have Social Security taxes withheld from their paychecks is heading to the Senate after winning House approval.

A Senate vote on a similar bill could come as early as next week.

On Thursday, the House passed, 275 to 146, its version of legislation to increase the tax for every worker covered by the program, with the heaviest impact falling on upper-income workers. Their employers also would pay more under the House bill.

A decade from now, anyone earning $42,600 would pay more than three times as much Social Security tax as is now withheld. The tax would go from $965 this year to $3,025 in 1987.

Someone earning $20,000 would pay $1,420, instead of $965. A worker with a salary of $10,000 would pay $710, up from $585.

The House did not consider any change in the benefits Social Security pays to 33 million people, including retired workers and their dependents or survivors, disabled workers and their dependents, and Medicare recipients.

Congress will probably enact hefty tax increases this year to keep the Social Security system from going broke. The system has amassed $5.6 billion in deficits since 1975.

Because of population age shifts and such other factors as high unemployment, Social Security is taking in less money than it is paying out in benefits.

"We are concerned about keeping the system solvent and this bill will do it," Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said after the House approved the bill produced by the Ways and Means Committee, which he heads.

Although some members complained about the major tax increase, most agreed the financial crisis was severe enough to merit drastic steps.

However, the House added two amendments that increased the tax rate beyond what the committee called for.

One amendment would remove limits on wages earned by Social Security recipients, phasing out the current maximum of $3,000 on outside earnings by 1982.

Under current law, recipients lose $1 in benefits for every $2 they take in above that amount. Elderly persons could therefore continue to receive a full salary while drawing full Social Security benefits.

The second amendment, approved earlier, continues an exemption for more than six million public employes and congressmen, who have separate retirement plans.

The measure was sharply criticized by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which called the final vote "unbelievable."

"We are absolutely astonished to see the members of the House of Representatives voting to triple maximum Social Security taxes over the next 10 years while at the same time still voting to exclude themselves and all federal workers..." said Michael J. Romig, a spokesman for the business organization.

Passage of the bill came after about 12 hours of debate in two days. Most amendments were defeated.

Rep. Barber B. Conable, R-N.Y., who unsuccessfully tried to limit the increases, called the bill "a bigger tax increase than any tax relief measure that we are likely to consider."

Conable had been expected to try to raise the age for receiving full Social Security benefits from 65 to 68, a move that would have limited the new taxes. But he said after the vote that he dropped his plans because, "We weren't going to get any votes on it."

The House-approved bill also would allow recipients to continue receiving benefits even after marrying. Some elderly couples now live together without marrying because they would otherwise lose benefits.

Under the pending Senate bill, employers would for the first time pay more than their employes.

The Social Security tax is now 5.85 per cent of wages, with workers earning $16,500 paying the maximum of $965. This is already scheduled to go up substantially and the bill would add additional increases.

Under the bill, the tax next year would be 6.05 per cent on incomes up to $19,900. The maximum tax would be $1,204.

By 1982, the tax rate would be 6.65 per cent on pay up to $30,000, or a maximum of $1,965. In 1987 the tax rate would be 7.1 per cent on wages up to $42,600, or $3,025.

4 held in pistol-whipping holdup

Three men and a woman have been arrested by West End sheriff's detectives in connection with the reported pistol-whipping of a customer and the robbery of more than $8,000 from the Arrow and Grove Market in Cucamonga last Friday.

Booked in the West End jail for investigation of armed robbery, kidnapping and burglary were Scott Clinton Lehman, 26, Ontario; John Joseph Morris, 24, of Fontana; and Anthony Patrick Iorio, 25, of Ontario. Also arrested for allegedly aiding and abetting an armed robbery was Robbie Marsan Lehman, 21, of Montclair.

West End sheriff's detectives said the four were arrested at their homes following a week-long investigation.

Last Friday, deputies reported, three men armed with handguns entered the market at Arrow Highway and Grove Avenue in Cucamonga and held three clerks and seven customers at bay.

The gunman ordered the customers and two of the clerks to lie on the floor while the robbers took one of the employees into the back office and made him open the safe.

The other two robbers rifled the cash registers in the front of the store and, for no apparent reason, brutally beat and pistol-whipped an Ontario man who was a customer in the store.

The three robbers then fled from the area.

Detectives said that one gun, possibly used in the robbery, had been confiscated. However, no money was recovered during the arrests.

The detectives said they are seeking several other persons for questioning in the case.

The Ontario man who was pistol-whipped suffered severe face and head lacerations. He was treated and later released from San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

A 36-year-old Pomona man booked in the West End jail is accused of pulling a knife on several employees at Chino General Hospital Thursday night, Chino police reported.

Carroll Adrain Cooke of 1790 W. Holt Ave., was arrested for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon and traffic violations following the incident.

Police said the suspect had taken his wife to the hospital for an emergency and apparently got into a verbal argument with hospital employees.

The suspect then allegedly pulled a knife and threatened the employees before fleeing to his car which was parked nearby, said investigators.

He was arrested by officers outside of the hospital.

Body of shooting victim identified

The body of a man found shot to death Tuesday night on the east side of the Delinquency Prevention Center in Old Northtown, Cucamonga, has been identified as that of Miguel Peralta, 30 to 35 years of age, a Mexican national from the state of Sonora.

The identification was made after deputy coroners made a house-to-house inquiry as to the slain man's identity.

Deputy Coroner Harvey Castro said one man had been located who recalled that Peralta, who had been missing for several days, was living in Cucamonga. The informant in San Bernardino later positively identified Peralta.

Castro said that Peralta died of gunshot wounds to the head and the heart.

Sheriff's homicide investigators said they had no new leads in the murder case this morning.

Montclair selects builder of center

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

The Montclair City Council approved the "apparent" low bidder for construction of the new Community Center Thursday.

In recommending that Earle T. Casler Construction Co. Inc. of Upland be awarded the contract, staff made it clear that approval must be contingent upon Casler meeting the federal requirement on minority contracting for the project.

Otherwise, the 1976 Public Works Act project will go to Berry Construction Inc. of Upland.

The two firms gave the separate bids of $598,606 and $656,766. Although the Casler bid is lower, there is some question on whether he has met the federal stipulation.

Under the second round of funding for the economy stimulus program, the federal government requires that 10 percent of the total grant to an agency be given to minority subcontractors or suppliers. The Montclair grant of $1,045,000 requires that $104,500 go to meet the prerequisite.

After the bid opening Wednesday afternoon, City Engineer Carl Sawtell and Mike Milhiser, assistant city administrator, discovered the Casler minority subcontracting figure did not total the necessary amount.

The error in the total may be due to numbers being unclear after copying the information pages.

Steve Fisher of Operation Second Chance and City Atty. Eugene Demchuk said that if indeed the mistake is in the copying and that the necessary federal forms are submitted to Montclair City Hall by 5 p.m. Monday, then Casler retains the contract.

If these deadlines are not met, the Montclair council will meet in special session to award the contract to Berry.

City Administrator Lauren Wasserman said the two bids were considerably lower than the estimates projected by staff. The inflated construction estimate was $897,000.

"The estimates were very inflated because of uncertainties of what impact the minority contracting would have on the total bid," Wasserman said.

Milhiser said that due to the low bids, equipment, furnishings and fixtures that had been removed from the project can now be reinstated.

The center is to be located east of the library and City Hall parking lot. The total square footage is slightly more than 12,000 feet and includes rest rooms, lounge, kitchen, office, electrical and storage areas, two meeting rooms, a stage area, and furnishings.

The project also includes architectural services, site work and landscaping and a directory sign for the total Civic Center complex.

Casler is the current contractor for the first phase of the Civic Center improvement and expansion which includes a new council chamber, administration, community development and engineering offices, expansion of the recreational facilities and enclosure of the walkways in the complex.

Construction on the Community Center is expected to begin by late November.

Delegation to join rally against KKK

A San Bernardino and Riverside counties delegation will join 5,000 expected demonstrators in San Ysidro Saturday to protest the activities of the Klu Klux Klan in the area.

Armando Navarro of Upland, director of the National Institute for Community Development, said that 40 persons from Ontario-San Bernardino-Riverside regions will participate in the massive protest in Larson Park at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The San Ysidro park is located a few meters from the border of the United States and Mexico. The demonstration is to draw attention to the "problems the Chicano have there in San Diego and surrounding areas because of the KKK and to protest the attitude and actions of the San Diego and federal officials who have collaborated with the Klan," Navarro said.

Although local, state and federal officials have denounced the Klan's private border patrol openly, Navarro contended that San Diego officials have given Klansmen the red carpet treatment, including a gathering for David Dukes, the Grand Dragon of the Knights of the Klu Klux Klan from Metrairie, La.

The demonstrators will be drawn from Chicano residents and leaders from throughout the Southwest. Among those speaking will be Herman Baca of National City, chairman of the Committee for Chicano Rights; Rudolfo "Corky" Gonzales of Colorado, leader of the Crusade for Justice; Bert Corona, a veteran activist in Los Angeles; Raul Ruiz, editor of La Raza Magazine and an East Los Angeles activist; and Navarro.

Garage bedroom damaged by fire

Electrical wiring deficiency was blamed by the Pomona Fire Department for the blaze in a garage bedroom at 1639 E. Ninth St., at 7:44 p.m. Thursday which heavily damaged the structure.

Occupant Sherry Koczor was not at home at the time of the fire, officials said.

Loss estimate was $2,500 to the structure and $1,000 to contents.

Davis' solution to prison violence

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Los Angeles Police Chief Ed Davis says the solution to prison gang violence is to give guards more authority over the length of prison sentences.

Davis also said Thursday that the rise in prison gang activity should be blamed largely on the policies of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., whom he hopes to unseat.

"The Mexican Mafia is a California governmentally instigated operation ... through poor management of prisons," said Davis, who is expected to seek the Republican nomination for governor.

State prisons are "going to blow up" soon because of a new sentencing law sponsored by Brown, Davis predicted.

At a news conference at which his candidacy was endorsed by a prison guards' group, Davis said guards should have more control over prison terms.

Asked what he would do about prison gangs, Davis said, "Once every six months, the men who work in the prison system should issue a report card for each inmate, whether they've been good or bad.

"If they're good, they get (time off for) good behavior. If they're bad, they don't .... This will reduce the power of prison gangs."

Coupled with Davis' advocacy of the state's former system of indeterminate sentencing, the proposal would give guards the power to determine, to a great extent, when an inmate was released.

Wiretaps played at trial

Actor Majors linked to sports gambling, extramarital dating

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Lee Majors' agent has blasted reports of the "Six Million Dollar Man's" alleged sports gambling and extra-marital dating as malicious gossip.

Majors was in Hawaii working on his television series Thursday and could not be reached for comment about wiretapped telephone conversations which were played during a federal court sports gambling trial in Oklahoma City.

But his agent, Jay Bernstein, said he is sure Majors would want to deny any knowledge of the woman named Barbara he allegedly dated.

Majors is the husband of actress Farrah Fawcett-Majors.

"I'm shocked and horrified at the maliciousness of this gossip," Bernstein said.

Tapes of Nov. 24, 1976, conversations recorded with the use of court-approved wiretaps and replayed Wednesday are among 60 such recordings that have been played for jurors. Majors is not charged in the case.

Persons who have been identified as defendants in the case discuss Majors and two football bets he allegedly made during the conversations. The television star was in Oklahoma to particpate in the Grand National Quail Hunt in Enid, an annual sporting and social event which brings celebrities and business and political figures together.

In addition, the taped conversations indicated Majors had two dates with an Oklahoma City woman named Barbara, the last one during the November 1976 visit.

A man identified as one of the defendants, L.D. "Luke" Morris, can be heard on the tape saying he flew to Enid to pick Majors up for the 1976 date.

The man also tells the other person in the conversation, identified by prosecutors and government witnesses as Randall Lloyd Keef, that he took two bets from Majors.

The man alleged to be Keef says later in the conversation, "He's dating Barbara, the blonde?"

"Well, this is the second date she's had with him, but the last one was about six months ago and he said 'I'll call you next time I come in,'" replied the man alleged to be Morris.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Susie Pritchett said she decided not to subpoena Majors because he is not essential to her case.

U.S. still a danger—Castro

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro says the United States remains a "potential danger" to Cuba and is still trying to foment rebellion in his country.

In brief remarks, he told a Massachusetts trade delegation Wednesday that problems between the two countries persist. But he added that President Carter's policies make the United States appear less threatening.

Castro said the United States is encouraging terrorism aimed at Cuba by exiles.

He also called the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay "an instrument of humiliation" and said the United States should leave foreign bases it occupies against the will of the people.

Castro said he planned to release no more U.S. political prisoners from Cuban jails, but added that lifting the U.S. economic embargo against Cuba "would facilitate further releases."

Davis' solution to prison violence

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Los Angeles Police Chief Ed Davis says the solution to prison gang violence is to give guards more authority over the length of prison sentences.

Davis also said Thursday that the rise in prison gang activity should be blamed largely on the policies of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., whom he hopes to unseat.

"The Mexican Mafia is a California governmentally instigated operation ... through poor management of prisons," said Davis, who is expected to seek the Republican nomination for governor.

State prisons are "going to blow up" soon because of a new sentencing law sponsored by Brown, Davis predicted.

At a news conference at which his candidacy was endorsed by a prison guards' group, Davis said guards should have more control over prison terms.

Asked what he would do about prison gangs, Davis said, "Once every six months, the men who work in the prison system should issue a report card for each inmate, whether they've been good or bad.

"If they're good, they get (time off for) good behavior. If they're bad, they don't .... This will reduce the power of prison gangs."

Coupled with Davis' advocacy of the state's former system of indeterminate sentencing, the proposal would give guards the power to determine, to a great extent, when an inmate was released.

Wiretaps played at trial

Actor Majors linked to sports gambling, extramarital dating

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Lee Majors' agent has blasted reports of the "Six Million Dollar Man's" alleged sports gambling and extra-marital dating as malicious gossip.

Majors was in Hawaii working on his television series Thursday and could not be reached for comment about wiretapped telephone conversations which were played during a federal court sports gambling trial in Oklahoma City.

But his agent, Jay Bernstein, said he is sure Majors would want to deny any knowledge of the woman named Barbara he allegedly dated.

Majors is the husband of actress Farrah Fawcett-Majors.

"I'm shocked and horrified at the maliciousness of this gossip," Bernstein said.

Tapes of Nov. 24, 1976, conversations recorded with the use of court-approved wiretaps and replayed Wednesday are among 60 such recordings that have been played for jurors. Majors is not charged in the case.

Persons who have been identified as defendants in the case discuss Majors and two football bets he allegedly made during the conversations. The television star was in Oklahoma to particpate in the Grand National Quail Hunt in Enid, an annual sporting and social event which brings celebrities and business and political figures together.

In addition, the taped conversations indicated Majors had two dates with an Oklahoma City woman named Barbara, the last one during the November 1976 visit.

A man identified as one of the defendants, L.D. "Luke" Morris, can be heard on the tape saying he flew to Enid to pick Majors up for the 1976 date.

The man also tells the other person in the conversation, identified by prosecutors and government witnesses as Randall Lloyd Keef, that he took two bets from Majors.

The man alleged to be Keef says later in the conversation, "He's dating Barbara, the blonde?"

"Well, this is the second date she's had with him, but the last one was about six months ago and he said 'I'll call you next time I come in,'" replied the man alleged to be Morris.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Susie Pritchett said she decided not to subpoena Majors because he is not essential to her case.

U.S. still a danger— Castro

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro says the United States remains a "potential danger" to Cuba and is still trying to foment rebellion in his country.

In brief remarks, he told a Massachusetts trade delegation Wednesday that problems between the two countries persist. But he added that President Carter's policies make the United States appear less threatening.

Castro said the United States is encouraging terrorism aimed at Cuba by exiles.

He also called the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay "an instrument of humiliation" and said the United States should leave foreign bases it occupies against the will of the people.

Castro said he planned to release no more U.S. political prisoners from Cuban jails, but added that lifting the U.S. economic embargo against Cuba "would facilitate further releases."

Dropout charged in slaying of 4 relatives

IN CUSTODY — Harold Bicknell, 19, left, is shown as he arrived at Monterey Peninsula Airport after his arrest in San Diego in connection with the murders of four of his relatives. He had recently joined the Navy. He is being escorted by authorities.

Police expect more arrests in bizarre stabbing deaths

SEASIDE (AP) — A 19-year-old high school dropout has been jailed in the bizarre, bloody knifing murders of his grandmother, aunt and two cousins. Police say more arrests are expected.

Harold Arnold Bicknell, who enlisted in the Navy shortly after attending the victims' mass funeral last August, was flown here under guard Wednesday from the San Diego Naval Recruit Training Center.

Police who had been under public criticism from members of the family were exuberant.

"We're very proud. There's a ton off my gut," said Bill Gullett, the police commander who headed a task force assigned to investigate the killing of the Sunday school teaching grandmother, her daughter and two grandchildren which stunned this seaside city of 23,000, some 120 miles south of San Francisco.

Further arrests are expected within the week, Assistant Monterey County District Attorney Dean Flippo said at a news conference. But he refused to say how many arrests are anticipated, or what the charges would be.

Gullett said authorities are concerned about pretrial publicity, and won't discuss any details of the case outside of court, including motive or evidence which led to Bicknell's arrest.

Bicknell was arrested late Tuesday on a warrant charging him with four counts of first degree murder in the deaths of Josephine Smith, 66; her daughter, Suzanne Harris, 28; Mrs. Harris' daughter, Rachel, 6; and Mrs. Harris' niece, Renee Ferguson, 16.

Their bodies were discovered Aug. 11 in Mrs. Smith's three-bedroom house three blocks from the police station. Blood was splattered on the walls and furniture, and bloody footprints led from the kitchen to the front door.

An autopsy disclosed each had been stabbed between 18 and 35 times with a knife five to six inches long. None was molested sexually, but there were signs of a struggle in the house.

Assault case up to jury

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - A jury must decide whether a nationally televised show incited a copycat sexual assault on a 9-year-old girl, the California Court of Appeals has ruled.

The 3-0 decision Wednesday returned the $22 million damage suit against the National Broadcasting Co. and NBC affiliate KRON-TV to Superior Court for trial.

The ruling reversed Judge John Ertola's dismissal of the suit on grounds the First Amendment protects television stations from liability for damages stemming from material they broadcast.

The appeals court said Ertola's viewing the film "Born Innocent" and then dismissing the suit violated the girl's constitutional right to trial by jury.

The ruling said if a jury awarded damages, it would have been the responsibility of the trial court or Court of Appeal to determine whether the verdict could be sustained against a First Amendment challenge.

Valeria Niemi filed the suit on behalf of her daughter. It claimed the girl was attacked Sept. 13, 1974, by a group of teenaged girls on a San Francisco beach and "artificially raped" with a bottle. The complaint alleged the assailants had seen the "artificial rape" scene in "Born Innocent" which "caused them to decide to do a similar act to a minor girl."

After viewing the film, Ertola ruled it did not advocate or encourage violent and depraved acts and thus did not constitute an incitement.

The suit claimed the girls were influenced by the TV drama which three days earlier had explicitly portrayed a sexual attack with a "plumber's helper" on a young girl in a state-run home.

The appeal court noted that material communicated by public media, including fictional material such as seen in the TV show, is generally accorded protection under the First Amendment. But it said the freedom of speech guarantee is not absolute.

NBC attorney Anthony Liebig contended the suit proposed a new form of liability which "would stullify or chill any dramatic presentation."

Halloween is UNICEF Day, proceeds go to three nations

This is United Nations Week, by proclamation of the President of the United States, and Monday is UNICEF Day.

The Pomona Valley Chapter of the United Nations Association is observing this week by giving poster displays to local libraries.

On Halloween, children may take the familiar orange boxes to solicit UNICEF funds when they go to homes for treats. Boxes are obtained from Mrs. Pat Lunde by phoning 626-9977.

The sale of UNICEF greetings and gifts is directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Lowery, Mrs. Karen Rosenthal and Mrs. Ann Gould, all of Claremont. The place of sale is the Claremont Tea Co., 221 Yale Ave., Claremont.

The UNICEF Day chairman for the United States is actor David Hartman.

The national office of UNICEF has announced that the money collected this year will be used in Bolivia, Senegal and Thailand.

Chino open house

The Chino Recreation and Parks Department will sponsor an open house at the Central Park Recreation Center (old city hall) on Sunday from 1 to 3 p.m.

It will feature displays from the Tiny Tots program, cake decorating, acro equipment and handcrafts.

The main event will be a Halloween costume contest for children in preschool through sixth grades. Costumes will be judged on originality, appearance and display. Trophies will be awarded.

NEW CITY HALL LOBBY

Visitors to the new La Verne City Hall stand in the lobby as they await information. The city staff moved into the Shea Building this week, freeing the old City Hall for an enlarged police station. The city purchased the new City Hall for $750,000. The decorative artificial tree will be removed and replaced by the city's Liberty Bell, which was shipped from England.

No quick end seen to Chino sewage crisis

City and chamber officials agree lack of treatment capacity threatens growth

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

There is little hope of solving an area-wide sewage treatment crisis in the "forseeable future," agree members of the Chino City Council and the Chino Valley Chamber of Commerce.

City officials and businessmen are pessimistic about chances of finding additional sewage capacity soon for future residential and commercial development.

"We're really concerned about this problem," said Warren Stewart, chamber president. City Manager John Gerardi reported a recent sewage plant expansion in Chino by the Chino Basin Municipal Water District (CBMWD) is nearly completed, but by the time it opens in January all treatment capacity made available through the expansion will have been used.

"We still have about 200,000 gallons of capacity available," said Gerardi. "That would allow the construction of possibly 600 homes in the Chino area."

City officials, however, said the 200,000 gallons of available capacity will probably be allocated to industrial and commercial development in the city rather than housing.

City officials and businessmen have conducted an aggressive campaign to attract new industries to Chino, said Gerardi.

He criticized CBMWD officials for ignoring indications during the past several years that an enormous growth was going to occur in Chino.

When a regional sewage agency (CMBWD) was established in the West End to provide for waste disposal, that contract specifically required CBMWD to process all wastes from the local area, said Gerardi.

"Frankly, they (CBMWD) haven't been doing the job they should have been doing," he reported.

Gerardi identified three options available to provide more sewage capacity in Chino:

—Construction of an industrial waste line to connect to a large sewage pipe south of Chino.

—Construction of a similar pipe to the north of Chino to connect with an industrial outfall line near Pomona.

—Construction of a new sewage treatment plant or expansion of the present facility in Chino.

All of the options, however, were frought with problems, Gerardi said.

Building a sewage pipe to the south would cause many environmental problems and would probably not be allowed by the Santa Ana Regional Water Quality Control Board, Gerardi reported.

Construction of a similar line to the north would cost a lot of money and would require huge pumps, he said.

Expansion of present facilities, he said, was the easiest option, but the problem is "they (CBMWD) have no money with which to do it."

Gerardi said there is a possibility that all persons who in the future want to tie into the regional sewage system will be charged a fee to do so. Officials are considering levying a $600 fee for each new home, he said.

It's not a very popular approach, but it is probably the only way to raise the money," he said.

Chamber members asked if there was any way they could assist the city in getting additional allocations of sewage treatment capacity.

"Continue with what you have been doing. We've got to keep the pressure on CBMWD," said Gerardi.

He added that the present "squeaky wheel getting the grease approach" in pressuring CBMWD to help Chino with its problem appears to be working.

A new committee on sewage and water problems appointed by the chamber would help, he said.

Stewart had earlier reported the chamber had formed such a committee. Dave Bolick, chamber manager, raised the issue of prisons in regard to the sewage problem. He asked if the California Institution for Men could treat sewage for surrounding prisons. CIM has its own sewage treatment facility.

Gerardi reported such a move was being studied by state and local water officials but that no firm plans had been made.

Bolick said plans for new prisons in Chino would probably compound the sewage treatment problem.

La Verne staff moves to spacious new City Hall; police have room to expand

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The La Verne city staff, in a $1 million move, settled into its spaceous new home at 3660 D St. this week, freeing the old City Hall for enlargement of the city police station.

The Shea Building, which the city bought for $750,000, becomes the third city hall in the history of La Verne. And City Manager George Caswell said he is highly satisfied with the purchase.

"We couldn't build it for twice as much," he declared. "We have enough room to accommodate the city's growth to saturation"

The city now has nearly 20,000 residents. At saturation, population is expected to be 32,000.

The building has 16,000 square feet of floor space, more than twice as much as the quarters the staff left behind at 2061 Third St. It is located on two acres of land. There is plenty of parking space and more than enough land remaining on the north and east to turn the location into a civic center.

The Los Angeles County library system is planning to build a new branch next to the new City Hall.

The lobby of the new building has a central planter area which now sports an artificial tree. Caswell said that's the location of the city's Liberty Bell which was shipped here from England during last year's Bicentennial celebration.

The building has a large room for City Council chambers, accommodating an audience of 80, about 20 more than the old City Hall. It also has a conference room for executive meetings.

Caswell said only minor renovations costing about $18,000 were needed to turn the building into a city hall. Most of the money went toward fixing up the council chambers.

Approximately 2,000 square feet of floor space is now occupied through an earlier contract by the state Department of Rehabilitation, and Caswell said that agreement will be assumed by the city.

"We really don't need that space right now," he explained. "It's a nice rental income to us for the time being."

Although open house is not scheduled until December — some of the boxes have not been unpacked yet — the City Council will hold its meeting there Nov. 7.

Meanwhile, Caswell said, work is getting under way to fix up the old building for the police department at an estimated cost of $250,000.

The department already is using the east wing of the old City Hall, but it has been out of room for the past several years.

The renovation program will double the space of the department, providing three modern jail cells, a communication center, squad room and more offices.

The city manager said the barracks building which has been used for the recreation department and public works west of the old City Hall will be left standing in case the police department needs it during the renovation period. Then it will be demolished in favor of more parking space.

"The whole thing will cost more than $1 million but it will all be bought with cash," Caswell declared. "The money comes from the city's growth and from federal revenue sharing funds. There will be no bond issue, no additional taxes."

He credited the council with "a great deal of foresight" in planning.

"We have used the money well," he contended. "Two years ago we built a new fire station and last year we bought a city yard. This year it's the City Hall. And while we have done all that we have reduced the tax rate by more than 10 cents."

He said the new location of the City Hall, about a mile north of the one that has been vacated, provides a more central location for residents.

La Verne seeks new assistant for administrator

A search began today to find a successor to Ruth S. Hogan, administrative assistant to La Verne City Manager George Caswell.

Mrs. Hogan, who also has served as La Verne's city clerk, an elective position, for the past 21 years, is on an indefinite leave of absence due to illness. She is suffering with diabetic complications.

Her position as city clerk runs through April, 1980. She has been holding the two positions concurrently.

Caswell said the workload is too much for a city manager to handle without some assistance. He said he will start interviewing applicants next month.

Judge Egly tells educators

Integrate now, not in court

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

"Don't wait until you are faced with a lawsuit, get busy taking steps to correct the racial imbalance in your schools now."

A Los Angeles judge and the chairman of the United States Commission on Civil Rights both gave educators from throughout the state this same advice at a desegregation forum held Thursday at Cal Poly Pomona's Kellogg West center.

Superior Judge Paul Egly, who is presiding over court hearings on the Los Angeles integration case, warned school board members and administrators.

He said, "You have not yet faced the troubles you are going to face in a desegregation case when militant plaintiffs and attorneys who are not aware of school district problems make unreasonable requests. They create a complete disruption of the school district."

The judge continued, "If I understand the law of California, every school district should get busy taking steps to correct its racial imbalance."

Egly said it would be improper to discuss the Los Angeles case or the San Bernardino desegregation suit, which he also is handling.

The audience, brought together by Los Angeles County Supt. of Schools Richard M. Clowes, included many representatives from suburban districts which have not yet faced a desegregation lawsuit.

Egly's remarks during the morning session were repeated in an afternoon talk by Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, a member of the Civil Rights Commission since it was established in 1957.

"I appreciate the judge's approach," said Flemming. "The courts have made it clear what the rights of children and young people are. Let's get together and work out plans to offer equal access to education to everyone."

Flemming, a former president of two universities and member of President Eisenhower's cabinet, continued "The Supreme Court has found that segregated schools violate the rights promised in the Constitution. Desegregation within this generation would prove that the Constitution is a living document."

Flemming said he believed the integration of public schools "is the most important issue in civil rights."

He continued, "A segregated system is inherently unequal. Whatever the quality of education may be within a specific school system, every child has a right to that education. If the quality is less than best, we have another obligation to improve that quality.

"There is no doubt that desegregation of schools has contributed to white flight, but it is only one factor. White flight has been going on for many years, primarily because of lack of fair housing programs.

"Even if flight is a problem, it doesn't give any community the right to turn its back on the Constitution. The schools still must provide whatever facilities the area has to all of its children."

Council asked to stop enforcement of RV law

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Pomona Planning Commission has recommended that the City Council declare a moratorium on enforcement of a city ordinance banning the parking of recreational vehicles in front yards unless screened from public view.

Residents from the Westmont area Wednesday night complained to the commission about being cited for having camper shells, boats, and trailers in front yards.

The commission decided that the term "recreational vehicle" must be defined because the zoning ordinance pertains only to trailers, boats, camper bodies and mobile homes, but not to vehicles such as dune buggies which might be transported on trailers.

The ordinance states that no motor vehicle shall be stored or parked on private property unless enclosed from all sides so as not to be seen from the street, unless the vehicle is capable of movement under its own power.

Senior planner James Lightfoot said the city has received about 200 complaints from residents whose neighbors have stored trailers and such in their front yards or driveways.

Lightfoot said the ordinance has been on the books for 20 years.

"We only act on citizen complaints in enforcing this ordinance," he explained.

He did not say when the city council would receive and act on the moratorium recommendation.

In other matters, the commission by a narrow 3-2 margin, said that Walter Corbin who runs a "skill game center" may have customers under 18 on his premises after 10 p.m. on weekend nights if they are accompanied by a parent.

The matter of the center at 1470 W. Grove St. came up under a semi-annual review of a conditional use permit.

Corbin had submitted a petition containing 325 names supporting his request for allowing customers under 18 on the premises after 10 p.m.

Magic show

Magicians John Allen and Ray Slaboda will present a free magic show for children and parents at 4 p.m. Nov. 16 at the Upland library. Librarians said the show is a highlight of National Children's Book Week celebrated at the library.

He said, "You have not yet faced the troubles you are going to face in a desegregation case when militant plaintiffs and attorneys who are not aware of school district problems make unreasonable requests. They create a complete disruption of the school district."

The judge continued, "If I understand the law of California, every school district should get busy taking steps to correct its racial imbalance."

Egly said it would be improper to discuss the Los Angeles case or the San Bernardino desegregation suit, which he also is handling.

The audience, brought together by Los Angeles County Supt. of Schools Richard M. Clowes, included many representatives from suburban districts which have not yet faced a desegregation lawsuit.

Egly's remarks during the morning session were repeated in an afternoon talk by Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, a member of the Civil Rights Commission since it was established in 1957.

"I appreciate the judge's approach," said Flemming. "The courts have made it clear what the rights of children and young people are. Let's get together and work out plans to offer equal access to education to everyone."

Flemming, a former president of two universities and member of President Eisenhower's cabinet, continued "The Supreme Court has found that segregated schools violate the rights promised in the Constitution. Desegregation within this generation would prove that the Constitution is a living document."

Flemming said he believed the integration of public schools "is the most important issue in civil rights."

He continued, "A segregated system is inherently unequal. Whatever the quality of education may be within a specific school system, every child has a right to that education. If the quality is less than best, we have another obligation to improve that quality.

"There is no doubt that desegregation of schools has contributed to white flight, but it is only one factor. White flight has been going on for many years, primarily because of lack of fair housing programs.

"Even if flight is a problem, it doesn't give any community the right to turn its back on the Constitution. The schools still must provide whatever facilities the area has to all of its children."

Council asked to stop enforcement of RV law

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

The Pomona Planning Commission has recommended that the City Council declare a moratorium on enforcement of a city ordinance banning the parking of recreational vehicles in front yards unless screened from public view.

Residents from the Westmont area Wednesday night complained to the commission about being cited for having camper shells, boats, and trailers in front yards.

The commission decided that the term "recreational vehicle" must be defined because the zoning ordinance pertains only to trailers, boats, camper bodies and mobile homes, but not to vehicles such as dune buggies which might be transported on trailers.

The ordinance states that no motor vehicle shall be stored or parked on private property unless enclosed from all sides so as not to be seen from the street, unless the vehicle is capable of movement under its own power.

Senior planner James Lightfoot said the city has received about 200 complaints from residents whose neighbors have stored trailers and such in their front yards or driveways.

Lightfoot said the ordinance has been on the books for 20 years.

"We only act on citizen complaints in enforcing this ordinance," he explained.

He did not say when the city council would receive and act on the moratorium recommendation.

In other matters, the commission by a narrow 3-2 margin, said that Walter Corbin who runs a "skill game center" may have customers under 18 on his premises after 10 p.m. on weekend nights if they are accompanied by a parent.

The matter of the center at 1470 W. Grove St. came up under a semi-annual review of a conditional use permit.

Corbin had submitted a petition containing 325 names supporting his request for allowing customers under 18 on the premises after 10 p.m.

Is MX right defense Rx?

Defense Secretary Harold Brown has recommended full-scale development of the MX intercontinental ballistic missile, a superweapon that could upset the strategic balance between this country and the Soviet Union.

Before accepting such fateful advice, President Carter and Congress should give the matter the most careful study, for the MX has as many diplomatic drawbacks as it has technological advantages.

The MX (for missile experimental) would be America's first mobile land-based ICBM. It would be deployed in an underground tunnel. The enemy wouldn't know exactly where it was and could not confidently attack it.

Also, the MX would be more powerful, more accurate and capable of carrying more warheads (14) than any existing ICBM. In one strike, the 300 MXs Brown wants could destroy Russia's land-based missiles, about 70 percent of its striking power.

The MX's awesome abilities raise a number of frightening questions.

In a crisis and fearing the loss of the bulk of their strategic power, would not Soviet leaders be under great pressure to strike first, thus making a nuclear holocaust more likely?

Would the Kremlin let the United States retain the MX advantage? Or would it go all out to build similar weapons, giving a costly and dangerous twist to the arms race?

The Air Force, which would benefit from the $30 billion MX program, insists the new missile is needed because Russia soon will be able to destroy U.S. Minutemen and Titan missiles in their fixed silos?

Although scary, this argument is unconvincing. Many disinterested experts doubt that Moscow's missiles have the accuracy and quick-launch ability to simultaneously attack 1,054 American ICBMS.

And even if this could be done successfully, this country would be left with nuclear-armed bombers and 656 submarine-launched missiles, which are almost invulnerable to surprise attack and could destroy the Soviet Union as a functioning society.

In addition, there is the gravest doubt that the 300 MX missiles could be designed, tested, procured and deployed for anything like the Air Force's stated $30 billion. Given inflation and the Pentagon's record of cost overruns, we might be talking about $100 billion for a weapon of undemonstrated need.

For all these reasons, the White House and Congress should adopt a wary and show-me attitude toward the Air Force campaign for the MX. Even if the country can afford the weapon, it might not be able to afford the arms race MX could foment, nor its undermining of present arms control negotiations.

How's your love life?

Advertisers who suggest you can put some zing into it if you use the right toothpaste or some other product should be forced to prove it, says a former consumer affairs minister in the Canadian government.

Laws protect consumers against advertisements that mislead in other ways, but not against "life style" claims, says Herb Gray. There would be "interesting problems," he thinks, if such claims were required to be tested in court.

So interesting, we think, that this is one thicket the law had best not plunge into — not because this kind of advertising cannot be misleading but because some things are just not susceptible to legal proof.

People have a natural desire to believe that the right toothpaste, mouthwash, deodorant or whatever will enhance their attractiveness to the opposite sex, impress their boss or excite the envy and admiration of their fellows. We can picture manufacturers trooping into court with stacks of signed testimonials from satisfied customers.

Hope springs eternal, in other words, and advertisers are only telling us what we want to hear. There's not much even a consumer advocate can do about that.

Vote yes on water bonds

Dear Editor:

On Nov. 8 the L.A. County Registrar of Voters will conduct an election for the voters in the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District. The district consists of Pomona, Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas, Covina, Glendora, Walnut, Rowland Heights and Diamond Bar. The voters will decide by majority vote whether (or not) to authorize a $26 million general obligation bond issue.

The Pomona Valley Municipal Water District (PVMWD) was organized and incorporated in 1950 by the majority vote of the voters in the district. The reason for voter approval (and still is) was the need at that time of obtaining supplemental imported water supplies for the Pomona Valley area during the peak periods. The purpose and need for the existence of PVMWD has not changed. Studies made by the Engineering-Science Inc. of Arcadia indicate much of the groundwater in the Pomona Valley and outlying areas contain nitrates considerably in excess of Federal Environmental Protection Agency and State Department of Public Health standards.

If the requirements of the mentioned agencies are to be met, water from PVMWD will have to be used more often to effect a proper blending of groundwater and other sources to meet acceptable standards. In the poem "Ancient Mariner" the quotation is made, "water, water everywhere, but not a drop to drink," and so in Pomona Valley there may at this time be sufficient water to drink, but will it some day continue to be acceptable for drinking, and if so, how much?

Back in 1927 the voters in Pomona decided to spend funds to buy their own water company. What fortitude and progressive thinking those early dedicated people had! For today Pomona has one of the lowest water rates in the Pomona Valley. Let's look ahead and plan for our young loved ones. They, too, some day will be charged with the responsibility of shaping the valley in the future years. Let's show them as the citizens before us thought of our future by voting "yes" on Nov. 8. This will mark the beginning of a good investment!

Caught up in Koreagate mess

WASHINGTON—The Justice Department has pieced together enough evidence, insiders say, to indict ex-Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., in the Korean payoff scandal. But out of compassion, government attorneys are reluctant to bring charges against the aging, ailing Passman.

He was born at the turn of the century to tenant farmers, and his early memories are of meals of unseasoned corn bread and clabbered milk. In the summers in backward Washington Parish, his feet were bare as the table, and at 10 he was hired out to a neighboring farmer for $5 a month.

The memory of his grim childhood developed in Passman a fierce attachment for every dollar that passed through his hands. Apparently, he couldn't bring himself to let go of the cash that his Korean benefactors allegedly proffered.

On congressional junkets, he was an almost compulsive barterer and buyer at jewelry stores from Geneva to Hong Kong. On his return to the United States, he would demand that Customs pass his luggage unopened.

Customs officers visited his Capitol office in 1964 to quiz him about bringing in undeclared jewelry. Passman admitted he had brought some jewelry home with him from Hong Kong, but he insisted it was just on consignment. He, therefore, didn't feel a need to clear it through customs. The Customs agents left without further argument.

While Passman treated every dollar with tenderness, he was not unmindful of those less blessed. He tithed to the church and was an active Mason. When friends were down on their luck, he was available for a loan and a lecture on economy and Christian living.

At age 77, he is beginning to falter. His six-foot frame, once lean and straight, is now frail. His voice, once stern with righteousness, now quivers. He recently spent 27 days in the hospital; now he must go back for additional treatment.

He told us that he had refused some jewelry that Tongsun Park had once offered him. The only money he ever accepted, he said, was in exchange for watches. He dealt in antique watches and sold "several" to Park, Passman said. Then he added plaintively: "I don't know why people are after me. I am just not able to fight any more."

WATERGATE INCIDENT — There are still a few jigsaw pieces missing from the Watergate puzzle. The Nixon tapes reveal, for example, that Richard Nixon hoped to save his own skin by offering the special prosecutor a sacrificial lamb.

The scapegoat he had in mind, according to the tapes, was his own close friend and former law partner, ex-Attorney General John Mitchell. It was whispered around Washington that Mitchell had learned of the double-cross and had turned balky and bitter.

The real truth, we've now learned, is that Mitchell offered himself as a sacrificial lamb. He would be willing to plead guilty to a felony, he proposed, if the special prosecutor would spare Nixon.

Mitchell directed his attorney, William Hundley, to present the offer to the special prosecutor's office in 1973. Hundley spoke to James Neal, who was then second in command under Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox. The prosecutors, however, refused to make a deal.

So far as our sources know, Mitchell never told Nixon about his gesture.

Footnote: Of course, Nixon was pardoned, and Mitchell is now serving out his sentence. Attorney Hundley, meanwhile, has made a personal appeal to Attorney General Griffin Bell to release Mitchell for medical treatment.

'In typical John Mitchell fashion," wrote Hundley, "he down-played the medical problem when interviewed by the probation officer . . . I am really concerned that the constant pain, the need for surgery and the continued incarceration, coupled with all his other problems, could be too much even for a strong man like John Mitchell."

MERRY XXMAS — Exxon simply won't allow two X's in Xmas. Like a modern scrooge, the giant, multibillion-dollar oil consortium has stopped a small Dallas firm from selling XXmas cards.

The Horchow Collection, in its Christmas card catalog, offered an ingenious card patterned after an Exxon credit card but using "Xxmas Greetings" in place of the word Exxon.

The card seemed harmless enough; it might even be considered a free ad for the oil conglomerate. But Exxon takes itself with such seriousness that it threatened legal action.

"Exxon's lawyers took exception to it," explained Horchow's Kitty Lane, with a notable lack of Christmas cheer in her voice. "To try to fight something like Exxon, it's a losing battle."

Horchow sent out a letter to customers who had ordered the card, asking them to choose another one. "If Exxon were represented by a reindeer instead of a tiger," the letter suggested, "it might have been a different story.'

In New York City, an Exxon spokesman confirmed that the company had asked Horchow to kill the Xxmas card. "It was clearly a trade mark infringement," he told us.

We thought we heard him add: "Humbug!"

Just in jest

Day by day in every way I grow increasingly suspicious where government employees are concerned. And recently that feeling has become even more intensified when I note how many of them are successfully managing to take early retirements and collect disability benefits because of health impairments they allege were caused by job-related stress. So just the other day, when I read that some state employees were complaining about fumes from office photocopiers — well, in view of the excuses some folks have been thinking up lately in order to featherbed their futures, I'm sure you will agree it was only natural that my first reaction was: "Ye Gods, here we go again!"

Achievement, not quotas

By EARL G. WATERS

It is unfortunate the UCD admissions case, referred to as the Bakke Case, has ballooned into a national forum regarding the opportunities for minorities and underprivileged. Not only has this distorted the whole matter but it has unnecessarily revived emotions and racial animosities which will make more difficult the legal remedies available to aid those in need of help.

The irony is that, despite all the rhetoric surrounding the case as to race and color, there is no mention of these anywhere in the Constitution, excepting the 15th Amendment which relates to the right to vote.

It is clear then the Supreme Court, if it rules strictly on the Constitution, will rely on the 14th Amendment which guarantees equal protection of the law. And it is difficult to envision the court doing anything other than upholding California's Supreme Court which found that basing admissions on race or color was violative of the Constitution. To rule otherwise would open a Pandora's Box to the future.

For the danger inherent in permitting special treatment for "minorities" is that the term itself is both transitory and all-inclusive. Today's minority quickly becomes tomorrow's majority.

Probably nowhere else in the world is the status of individuals based upon race and color so fluid as in America which has been since its founding the melting pot of the universe. And California, more than any other state, excepting perhaps Hawaii, has had the most experience with assimilating the divergent mixtures which make up the state's population.

Each facet of this population has passed through a period of discrimination. Most have outlived it as those who thrive on animosity toward their fellow man have found new targets for their hatred.

But to make laws to favor any specific group of people not only violates the Constitution but can boomerang on the very ones those laws seek to help. At the moment it appears those advocating special admissions treatment seek to aid the non-Caucasians and persons of Mexican ancestry.

Yet, according to studies made by Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally, those minorities will be the majority in less than a decade. If the court now tolerates favoritism for them because of their present minority status, will it not work against them when they become the majority?

Having just witnessed the baseball playoffs and the World Series as well as the football season now in full swing, it could be claimed that whites are being discriminated against in these sports. Wouldn't it be the quintessence of foolishness to contend the quota system should be applied in the hiring of athletes? The parallel seems plain.

Achievement is the thing that rules in sports and should rule as well in all other things. If those who desire to participate, whether it be sports, education or employment, lack the qualifications to meet the standards, every opportunity should be given to help them attain those standards, but the standard should not be lowered.

Perhaps, however, the traditional tests of qualification need reviewing and even altered. If so, the alterations should apply equally to all.

Even so, discriminations will never cease to be. Humans are human and it is the nature of the beast to be influenced and show favoritism. What is at stake in Bakke is government endorsement of that undesirable trait.

Carter's rush to judgment

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The country's position with regard to the Panama Canal is distressing. Most Americans abhor blackmail and there is much about the treaty propaganda that suggests we are being blackmailed.

For that reason treaty opponents have enjoyed vocal public support. Headlines such as "Torrijos Fears Rebellion If Senate Spurns Panama Treaties," which ran in a Washington newspaper, fortify the illusion of blackmail.

That is bad enough, but the continual discussion of what might happen has another more serious effect. With each mention of violence in the Canal Zone, violence becomes more certain. Deposing Torrijos would probably be applauded, but destruction of the canal in the process would be senseless.

But we are at a point where destruction may be unavoidable. President Carter has rushed into an agreement that almost everyone outside the White House, including many supporters, agrees is weak.

The pity is Mr. Carter had no compelling reason for negotiating a treaty so early in his term. Three presidents before him had been unable to reach agreement in nearly 13 years. He could have taken a little more time and come up with a better deal.

The simple fact that he was able to reach agreement in such short time indicates he bargained a weak position. A more considered approach would have been desired. For instance, the key U.S. senators might have been consulted. That is all spilt milk now and we are in the untenable position of needing a treaty to avert bloodshed and wanting a treaty that would assure continuing peace, but having instead a bad treaty that might not do either.

Unless the treaty we have, bad as it is, is ratified we are faced with the very real prospect of "rebellion" as Mr. Torrijos suggested. Our alternatives would be limited once violence began. We could either pull out, in the face of more blatant blackmail than we now confront, or we could fight, a course that would require tens of thousands of American men.

The mere suggestion of another Vietnam-like conflict would surely be rejected by most Americans, leaving only the first alternative. Why wait until there is a confrontation? We can decry the failure to make a better treaty, but because it is done we must accept it and hope for the best.

Footnote: Of course, Nixon was pardoned, and Mitchell is now serving out his sentence. Attorney Hundley, meanwhile, has made a personal appeal to Attorney General Griffin Bell to release Mitchell for medical treatment.

'In typical John Mitchell fashion," wrote Hundley, "he down-played the medical problem when interviewed by the probation officer . . . I am really concerned that the constant pain, the need for surgery and the continued incarceration, coupled with all his other problems, could be too much even for a strong man like John Mitchell."

MERRY XXMAS — Exxon simply won't allow two X's in Xmas. Like a modern scrooge, the giant, multibillion-dollar oil consortium has stopped a small Dallas firm from selling XXmas cards.

The Horchow Collection, in its Christmas card catalog, offered an ingenious card patterned after an Exxon credit card but using "Xxmas Greetings" in place of the word Exxon.

The card seemed harmless enough; it might even be considered a free ad for the oil conglomerate. But Exxon takes itself with such seriousness that it threatened legal action.

"Exxon's lawyers took exception to it," explained Horchow's Kitty Lane, with a notable lack of Christmas cheer in her voice. "To try to fight something like Exxon, it's a losing battle."

Horchow sent out a letter to customers who had ordered the card, asking them to choose another one. "If Exxon were represented by a reindeer instead of a tiger," the letter suggested, "it might have been a different story.'

In New York City, an Exxon spokesman confirmed that the company had asked Horchow to kill the Xxmas card. "It was clearly a trade mark infringement," he told us.

We thought we heard him add: "Humbug!"

Just in jest

Day by day in every way I grow increasingly suspicious where government employees are concerned. And recently that feeling has become even more intensified when I note how many of them are successfully managing to take early retirements and collect disability benefits because of health impairments they allege were caused by job-related stress. So just the other day, when I read that some state employees were complaining about fumes from office photocopiers — well, in view of the excuses some folks have been thinking up lately in order to featherbed their futures, I'm sure you will agree it was only natural that my first reaction was: "Ye Gods, here we go again!"

Achievement, not quotas

By EARL G. WATERS

It is unfortunate the UCD admissions case, referred to as the Bakke Case, has ballooned into a national forum regarding the opportunities for minorities and underprivileged. Not only has this distorted the whole matter but it has unnecessarily revived emotions and racial animosities which will make more difficult the legal remedies available to aid those in need of help.

The irony is that, despite all the rhetoric surrounding the case as to race and color, there is no mention of these anywhere in the Constitution, excepting the 15th Amendment which relates to the right to vote.

It is clear then the Supreme Court, if it rules strictly on the Constitution, will rely on the 14th Amendment which guarantees equal protection of the law. And it is difficult to envision the court doing anything other than upholding California's Supreme Court which found that basing admissions on race or color was violative of the Constitution. To rule otherwise would open a Pandora's Box to the future.

For the danger inherent in permitting special treatment for "minorities" is that the term itself is both transitory and all-inclusive. Today's minority quickly becomes tomorrow's majority.

Probably nowhere else in the world is the status of individuals based upon race and color so fluid as in America which has been since its founding the melting pot of the universe. And California, more than any other state, excepting perhaps Hawaii, has had the most experience with assimilating the divergent mixtures which make up the state's population.

Each facet of this population has passed through a period of discrimination. Most have outlived it as those who thrive on animosity toward their fellow man have found new targets for their hatred.

But to make laws to favor any specific group of people not only violates the Constitution but can boomerang on the very ones those laws seek to help. At the moment it appears those advocating special admissions treatment seek to aid the non-Caucasians and persons of Mexican ancestry.

Yet, according to studies made by Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally, those minorities will be the majority in less than a decade. If the court now tolerates favoritism for them because of their present minority status, will it not work against them when they become the majority?

Having just witnessed the baseball playoffs and the World Series as well as the football season now in full swing, it could be claimed that whites are being discriminated against in these sports. Wouldn't it be the quintessence of foolishness to contend the quota system should be applied in the hiring of athletes? The parallel seems plain.

Achievement is the thing that rules in sports and should rule as well in all other things. If those who desire to participate, whether it be sports, education or employment, lack the qualifications to meet the standards, every opportunity should be given to help them attain those standards, but the standard should not be lowered.

Perhaps, however, the traditional tests of qualification need reviewing and even altered. If so, the alterations should apply equally to all.

Even so, discriminations will never cease to be. Humans are human and it is the nature of the beast to be influenced and show favoritism. What is at stake in Bakke is government endorsement of that undesirable trait.

Our Man in Washington

Carter's rush to judgment

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The country's position with regard to the Panama Canal is distressing. Most Americans abhor blackmail and there is much about the treaty propaganda that suggests we are being blackmailed.

For that reason treaty opponents have enjoyed vocal public support. Headlines such as "Torrijos Fears Rebellion If Senate Spurns Panama Treaties," which ran in a Washington newspaper, fortify the illusion of blackmail.

That is bad enough, but the continual discussion of what might happen has another more serious effect. With each mention of violence in the Canal Zone, violence becomes more certain. Deposing Torrijos would probably be applauded, but destruction of the canal in the process would be senseless.

But we are at a point where destruction may be unavoidable. President Carter has rushed into an agreement that almost everyone outside the White House, including many supporters, agrees is weak.

The pity is Mr. Carter had no compelling reason for negotiating a treaty so early in his term. Three presidents before him had been unable to reach agreement in nearly 13 years. He could have taken a little more time and come up with a better deal.

The simple fact that he was able to reach agreement in such short time indicates he bargained a weak position. A more considered approach would have been desired. For instance, the key U.S. senators might have been consulted. That is all spilt milk now and we are in the untenable position of needing a treaty to avert bloodshed and wanting a treaty that would assure continuing peace, but having instead a bad treaty that might not do either.

Unless the treaty we have, bad as it is, is ratified we are faced with the very real prospect of "rebellion" as Mr. Torrijos suggested. Our alternatives would be limited once violence began. We could either pull out, in the face of more blatant blackmail than we now confront, or we could fight, a course that would require tens of thousands of American men.

The mere suggestion of another Vietnam-like conflict would surely be rejected by most Americans, leaving only the first alternative. Why wait until there is a confrontation? We can decry the failure to make a better treaty, but because it is done we must accept it and hope for the best.

Ann Landers

Some safety tips for Halloween

Dear Ann Landers: Please get this in the paper before Halloween. It could save some little lives. I am addressing myself to the parents of children under 11 years of age.

If your kids want to go trick-or-treating, don't just let them run loose. An older brother or sister (at least 16 years of age) or YOU should stay close enough to keep an eye on them at all times. Instruct the children to ring only doorbells of neighbors who know them. A two-block radius of your own home should be the limit.

Impress on your children that they must not eat anything given to them until they get home. Then examine whatever they collect and decide what is safe. Every year children die because some nut put razor blades in apples or poison in the fudge.

If your children wear costumes, make sure they can walk in them without falling down. Several youngsters have been hit by cars because they tripped in the street on long skirts. Also make certain they wear something white so they can be seen by oncoming cars. Black costumes or all-dark clothes are hazardous.

The best idea of all is to have a Halloween party in your own home and invite the neighbors' kids in. It would eliminate a lot of worry and be a great deal safer. Believe me, it's worth the trouble. — A Mother Who Learned The Hard Way

Dear Mother: Here's your letter three days before Halloween — and it's a good one. I especially like the last suggestion. There's no place like home.

Dear Ann Landers: A certain member of our family is a male homosexual. (I'll call him Greg.) We have all known for quite some time (he is now 32), but no one ever discusses it. Greg is an attorney, well respected, dresses conservatively (no flaming queen) and he is bright, witty and fun to be with.

Problem: My sister has a beautiful five-year-old boy. He just loves Greg. Sis dreads the day Greg asks to take the boy somewhere alone. How should she handle the situation? — Also Worried

Dear Also: If it's child molesting you are concerned about, may I disabuse you of a common myth? The vast majority of males who go in for this sort of thing are heterosexuals. Some gays have been known to bother little boys, but this is not their usual pattern.

If it were my son I would have no hesitation whatever about allowing Greg to be alone with the youngster. And — while we're on the subject — all children should be taught early (three years of age is not too soon) that they must never permit anyone to take off their clothing or touch their private parts. Moreover, if it is suggested, they should be instructed to say "no" and tell Mom or Dad immediately.

Dear Ann: I am a 14-year-old girl and have a brother Buddy who is six years old. He is a pest and a troublemaker.

I am being grounded for one full week because I slapped Buddy yesterday at 4 o'clock in the afternoon when I caught him eating a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. When dinner time comes he is never hungry. How can he be when he is eating junk every ten minutes? I worry that Buddy might die early because of his terrible eating habits. Please say something to help me. — Abused Sis

Dear Sis: You are right to be concerned about Buddy's eating habits but apparently your mother doesn't approve of your slapping the kid and neither do I. Are you really worried about his health or did you use that as an excuse to belt him one for something else?

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality?" You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers' new bookelt, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It — A Guide for Teens and Their Parents." Send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Harvey needs his own room

DEAR DR. MILLER: Because I have three female rabbits, it seems just sort of unnatural not to have a male rabbit around. It also seems foolish since I have decided to breed them. Well, I got Harvey but he is not making out too well. No matter which doe I put him in with he gets in a fight. Does he come on too strong? Is he just a lousy lover? Or is there anything I can do to help him improve his technique? — G.H.

DEAR G.H.: Under the proper circumstances, Harvey's technique may be perfectly adequate. Indeed you can help him, mainly by having him ensconced in HIS bedroom and seeing to it the does come to call on HIM. That way they can't resent his intrusion. His chances of starting off on the right rabbit's foot, romantically speaking, should be greatly improved.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My cats have never been through anything like this before. Will getting tapewormed be a big deal for them? — E.P.

DEAR E.P.: Not usually, though some cats have trouble retaining tapeworm medicine and an occasional cat may become quite sick after tapeworming. Tapeworm medicines are potentially poisonous to the pussycat — as well as the worms, of course — which is why, for efficiency and safety, worming is best done in the hospital. Most types of tapeworming require the cat to fast beforehand. Also, the cat should not have worn a flea collar for several days prior to the worming.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Junior's grandmother died while still young from complications of her bad back. What can we do to keep Junior's back from going bad, too? He is also a dachshund and I know now the breed sometimes has these bad back problems. What can I do with Junior to keep his back strong? — G.A.

DEAR G.A.: Adequate exercise (jogging's best) is important in maximizing circulation to the spine itself and in keeping strong those large muscles which form a column of support for the spine on each side. Nutrition is also vital and rule one here is to keep your long, low dog lean. When that long back must support a pendulous pot in the middle, the spine is under constant stress and much more likely to develop disk and/or other related problems. High quality food is important, too.

At least one important study indicates mineral balance is a critical factor in maintaining a healthy spine including those vulnerable cartilage disks between the vertebrae. Unfortunately, simply supplementing the diet with a mineral tablet may do nothing to correct a deficiency. Some minerals may be in overabundance; others, including iron and manganese, are often in critically short supply. Many factors influence this complex mineral metabolism — from the availability of adequate viatmin C to the amounts of pollutants (lead, in particular) absorbed by the body. Work with your own veterinarian in clarifying these nutritional requirements since they are vital in keeping Junior's back strong.

Birthdays are a piece of cake

Tomorrow is my daughter's birthday. I suppose, in spite of Women's Lib, it is still indelicate to tell a filly's age — let's just say that she is old enough to have voted for McGovern. You know you're getting old when the cocktail waitress no longer asks your daughter for her ID.

Gone but not forgotten are the bygone days when we filled the house with balloons and party-frocked little girls and young swains with their hair plastered down. We played pin-the-tail-on-the-donkey, a frantic Mother served ice cream and cake, and Dad took a dozen flash photos. Memories, memories. Her birthday party tomorrow will be a wine-tasting, followed by chateaubriand at a posh eatery and an evening at a local night club. Tempus fidgets.

Birthdays have been around as long as Adam — or at least Eve. In ancient tymes people could care less when they were born, and only royalty observed the natal day. (I recently made an obscene birthday call to a young friend of mine — former friend.) According to Sally Hopkins, historian for Hallmark ("When you care enough to give the Best") Cards, stargazers in Mesopotamia and Egypt used celestial bodies to determine time, and by 600 B.C. had developed a workable calendar so people could remember birthdays. It is not perfect, of course — I still can't remember my wife's birthday.

One of the first birthdays recorded was Pharoah's, described in the Book of Genesis. The celebration included a magnificent household feast with family and friends invited, no whipping of slaves, and all prisoners were released from jail. At the party, I suppose they played pin-the-tail-on-the-Sphinx.

When it came to a birthday, the Greeks had a word for it, as usual. They were among the first to record birthdays — not out of sentiment but for tax purposes and for military service. This led to the phrase, "death of taxes." By the 12th Century Christians routinely kept track of birthdays, poet and peasant, prince and pauper, and parties were held for one and all. (Paupers played pin-the-tail-on-Avalord.)

The birthday cake originated under Roman Emperor Hadrian who sent them by special messenger to invited guests unable (or too wary) to attend his birthday celebration. Hallmark Sally says "To the ancient Greeks, birthday candles had a special magic for granting wishes; that's why children today make a wish before blowing out the candles." One tradition holds that the number of blasts you need to blow out all the candles is the number of children you are going to have. Cute, for a child of 12; unnerving for a matron of 30. Russians have a birthday pie, and Icelanders served canned fruit. How do you put candles on slices of melon and peach? Danes hang a flag out the window on birthdays, which we also do on the birthdays of Washington, Lincoln and Nixon.

However it's celebrated, one's birthday is one day in the year for the subject to feel like royalty.

Happy Birthday, Princess.

Regulating your body heat

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate your comments on relief from anhidrosis. The absence of both sensible and insensible perspiration creates a body temperature of 103 degrees plus in 80 degree weather. Would orthostatic hypotension with blood pressure levels of 70 over 50 being common contribute to this uncomfortable situation?

DEAR READER — The low blood pressure and absence of sweating are probably caused by the same abnormalities. Individuals with these two disorders also often have problems with sphincters that may affect bowel or bladder function to some degree.

We think these are related to abnormalities in the sympathetic nervous system possibly involving more than one area. I think you should be evaluated by a neurologist if you have not been already.

Meanwhile, sweating is an important mechanism to cool the body. The insensible perspiration alone enables us to be air conditioned with evaporative cooling. You will need to take every advantage of mechanisms to keep the body cool that you can. So I am sending you the Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever, to give you a summary of how the body heat is regulated. Others interrested in either fever or cooling the body who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for it to P.O. box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Perhaps you may be interested in my case. I am a male in my 98th year and have been having trouble with my feet swelling. My doctor said that he could not do anything, that the swelling was due to my advanced age. I raised the foot of my bed about six inches and within a month the swelling had subsided. I do not indulge in alcohol and eat the plainest food and otherwise am in good health.

DEAR READER — Congratulations on your 98 years. Swelling of the feet can have several different causes, including nutritional problems, heart disease, liver disease, varicose veins and others. What to do about it often depends upon what causes it.

It is fluid, and fluid tends to run downhill. As long as the feet are below the level of the heart they will tend to swell if a person accumulates excess fluid from any cause. Elevating the foot of the bed at night might help get the fluid out of your feet but it simply shifts upward in the body which may not be so good. It is likely to accumulate in the loose skin over the back. The shifting of the fluid does not mean that it has been eliminated from the body.

Old age alone does not cause fluid accumulation. There is a reason. The underlying problem may not be correctible but usually there is some help for it. If it is heart failure, heart medicines (the digitalis group), diuretics to stimulate the elimination of salt and a salt-restricted diet often help. If it is kidneys, liver or varicose veins, other measures may be indicated.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Saturday Oct. 29, 1977
Your Birthday, Oct. 29, 1977

You will make several changes this coming year that will produce fortunate results. They will seem minor at the time, but the residual effects will be extensively beneficial.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Joint ventures can be very rewarding and profitable for you today, particularly if the final decisions have your stamp of approval. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You should be rather lucky today, but it will come about circuitously. You'll just happen to be involved with the right people at the right time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you choose to mix business and pleasure today, they should blend well. Set up a luncheon or dinner with the boss or that important client.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Conditions generally will be to your liking today. A factor that could add even a greater dimension to your fun would be something creative.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be all eyes-and-ears today. You might see or hear of an opportunity of considerable magnitude. A social contact could be the tipster.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Observe closely today how one you hold in high esteem operates. An opportunity will arise to emulate his technique in your own affairs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The type of wealth you'll be able to garner today will not be material. It will be the good will and golden thoughts of someone you'll help.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) For the next few days your material prospects look very encouraging. This is due to your talents and resourcefulness.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If there is something specific you need today, go directly to the person who can give you a definite yes or no. Success lies in dealing with key people.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A situation that has caused you concern is about to take a surprising twist. Keep the faith. It will end up far better than you dared hope.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Center your efforts today on projects or plans that are large in scope. The bigger the better. Returns will be in proportion to their size.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A positive attitude is something we should strive for at all times. Today it's doubly important, for the results you can achieve will be astounding.

What people say

"Wall Streeters today, because of the market, are keeping more down with the Dow Joneses than up with them."

—Myrna Liebowitz, president of the Women's Stock-brokers Association.

"Unfortunately you no longer have the only game in town. Those gentleman who ran the studios could drive around Beverly Hills and Bel Air and they could tell America what to see. Period. Now you've got that big eye of television to compete with. And every four to six weeks, every time you come out with a new picture, you've got to audition all over again — each time you're the new kid on the block."

Failures often bring success

A scholar who has made a study of highly successful people contends the large majority of same have histories of failure. Most bombed repeatedly, he contends, before putting it together. Calls to mind Thomas Edison's claim: that an experiment that failed was not a waste of time; rather it pointed out one more thing that wouldn't work. Most successful people succeed, clearly, not only because they know what to do, but also because they know from experience what not to do, again. Would write a book on this matter, except you've just now read everything I know about it.

You know those coins that the riders of busses toss into the fare boxes? In New York City, not another hand touches that money until after it's deposited in the bank. Fancy little vacuum machines sort it.

Odd, is it not, that there is no place either in Spain or in Italy named in honor of Christopher Columbus?

HARRY S. TRUMAN

Q. "I know the S in Harry S. Truman's name didn't stand for any particular middle name, but why did his parents give him just that initial?"

A. His two grandfathers had names that began with S. To avoid offending either, his folks just settled for the initial.

Q. "How do you account for the fact that the New England fishermen report their catch is up this year by 30 percent over last year?"

A. The United States extended its territorial waters to 200 miles.

Q. "For how much is the average life insurance policy sold in this country?"

A. $8,750.

LANGUAGE MAN

Our Language man is trying to disprove the claim that in ancient Scotland the prefix "Mac" meant "legitimate son of" while the prefix "O" meant "illegitimate son of." Research goes on. Stand by.

Those amputees who wear the so-called "bionic" arms and legs say their manufactured limbs give them far less, not more strength. No artificial hand has been devised as yet with as powerful a grip as the original fingers.

Consider those digital watches that flash minute-by-minute readings of the time. Because of them, it's reported, the percentage of first-grade students who can tell time on a conventional clock is dropping sharply.

A note in hand from a long-time Women's Libber reports wistfully, "The Movement has freed me to shovel snow."

South looked over dummy carefully before playing to the first trick. He wanted to find a way to win 12 tricks. His first decision was that he just wouldn't make the hand if he had to lose a trump trick.

He had nine top tricks. Could he ruff two diamonds and a spade in dummy? It didn't seem likely. How about doing something with the clubs?

Then South let the spade come around to his ace and promptly played out his ace and king of trumps. Should trumps break 3-1 he wanted to win the third lead in dummy. Sure enough they did break 3-1.

He entered dummy with the queen of trumps, led the queen of clubs and discarded a spade after East played low. West took his ace and led another spade. South won with dummy's king and led the jack of clubs.

It didn't matter what East did. South was going to make two spades, two diamonds, two clubs and his own five trumps with one diamond ruff in dummy.

Ann Landers

Some safety tips for Halloween

Dear Ann Landers: Please get this in the paper before Halloween. It could save some little lives. I am addressing myself to the parents of children under 11 years of age.

If your kids want to go trick-or-treating, don't just let them run loose. An older brother or sister (at least 16 years of age) or YOU should stay close enough to keep an eye on them at all times. Instruct the children to ring only doorbells of neighbors who know them. A two-block radius of your own home should be the limit.

Impress on your children that they must not eat anything given to them until they get home. Then examine whatever they collect and decide what is safe. Every year children die because some nut put razor blades in apples or poison in the fudge.

If your children wear costumes, make sure they can walk in them without falling down. Several youngsters have been hit by cars because they tripped in the street on long skirts. Also make certain they wear something white so they can be seen by oncoming cars. Black costumes or all-dark clothes are hazardous.

The best idea of all is to have a Halloween party in your own home and invite the neighbors' kids in. It would eliminate a lot of worry and be a great deal safer. Believe me, it's worth the trouble. — A Mother Who Learned The Hard Way

Dear Mother: Here's your letter three days before Halloween — and it's a good one. I especially like the last suggestion. There's no place like home.

Dear Ann Landers: A certain member of our family is a male homosexual. (I'll call him Greg.) We have all known for quite some time (he is now 32), but no one ever discusses it. Greg is an attorney, well respected, dresses conservatively (no flaming queen) and he is bright, witty and fun to be with.

Problem: My sister has a beautiful five-year-old boy. He just loves Greg. Sis dreads the day Greg asks to take the boy somewhere alone. How should she handle the situation? — Also Worried

Dear Also: If it's child molesting you are concerned about, may I disabuse you of a common myth? The vast majority of males who go in for this sort of thing are heterosexuals. Some gays have been known to bother little boys, but this is not their usual pattern.

If it were my son I would have no hesitation whatever about allowing Greg to be alone with the youngster. And — while we're on the subject — all children should be taught early (three years of age is not too soon) that they must never permit anyone to take off their clothing or touch their private parts. Moreover, if it is suggested, they should be instructed to say "no" and tell Mom or Dad immediately.

Dear Ann: I am a 14-year-old girl and have a brother Buddy who is six years old. He is a pest and a troublemaker.

I am being grounded for one full week because I slapped Buddy yesterday at 4 o'clock in the afternoon when I caught him eating a peanut butter and jelly sandwich. When dinner time comes he is never hungry. How can he be when he is eating junk every ten minutes? I worry that Buddy might die early because of his terrible eating habits. Please say something to help me. — Abused Sis

Dear Sis: You are right to be concerned about Buddy's eating habits but apparently your mother doesn't approve of your slapping the kid and neither do I. Are you really worried about his health or did you use that as an excuse to belt him one for something else?

Confused about what's right and what's wrong in today's "new morality?" You're not alone. If you want honest, down-to-earth information on your sex questions, read Ann Landers' new bookelt, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It — A Guide for Teens and Their Parents." Send 50 cents in coin plus a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Harvey needs his own room

DEAR DR. MILLER: Because I have three female rabbits, it seems just sort of unnatural not to have a male rabbit around. It also seems foolish since I have decided to breed them. Well, I got Harvey but he is not making out too well. No matter which doe I put him in with he gets in a fight. Does he come on too strong? Is he just a lousy lover? Or is there anything I can do to help him improve his technique? — G.H.

DEAR G.H.: Under the proper circumstances, Harvey's technique may be perfectly adequate. Indeed you can help him, mainly by having him ensconced in HIS bedroom and seeing to it the does come to call on HIM. That way they can't resent his intrusion. His chances of starting off on the right rabbit's foot, romantically speaking, should be greatly improved.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My cats have never been through anything like this before. Will getting tapewormed be a big deal for them? — E.P.

DEAR E.P.: Not usually, though some cats have trouble retaining tapeworm medicine and an occasional cat may become quite sick after tapeworming. Tapeworm medicines are potentially poisonous to the pussycat — as well as the worms, of course — which is why, for efficiency and safety, worming is best done in the hospital. Most types of tapeworming require the cat to fast beforehand. Also, the cat should not have worn a flea collar for several days prior to the worming.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Junior's grandmother died while still young from complications of her bad back. What can we do to keep Junior's back from going bad, too? He is also a dachshund and I know now the breed sometimes has these bad back problems. What can I do with Junior to keep his back strong? — G.A.

DEAR G.A.: Adequate exercise (jogging's best) is important in maximizing circulation to the spine itself and in keeping strong those large muscles which form a column of support for the spine on each side. Nutrition is also vital and rule one here is to keep your long, low dog lean. When that long back must support a pendulous pot in the middle, the spine is under constant stress and much more likely to develop disk and/or other related problems. High quality food is important, too.

At least one important study indicates mineral balance is a critical factor in maintaining a healthy spine including those vulnerable cartilage disks between the vertebrae. Unfortunately, simply supplementing the diet with a mineral tablet may do nothing to correct a deficiency. Some minerals may be in overabundance; others, including iron and manganese, are often in critically short supply. Many factors influence this complex mineral metabolism — from the availability of adequate viatmin C to the amounts of pollutants (lead, in particular) absorbed by the body. Work with your own veterinarian in clarifying these nutritional requirements since they are vital in keeping Junior's back strong.

Birthdays are a piece of cake

Tomorrow is my daughter's birthday. I suppose, in spite of Women's Lib, it is still indelicate to tell a filly's age — let's just say that she is old enough to have voted for McGovern. You know you're getting old when the cocktail waitress no longer asks your daughter for her ID.

Gone but not forgotten are the bygone days when we filled the house with balloons and party-frocked little girls and young swains with their hair plastered down. We played pin-the-tail-on-the-donkey, a frantic Mother served ice cream and cake, and Dad took a dozen flash photos. Memories, memories. Her birthday party tomorrow will be a wine-tasting, followed by chateaubriand at a posh eatery and an evening at a local night club. Tempus fidgets.

Birthdays have been around as long as Adam — or at least Eve. In ancient tymes people could care less when they were born, and only royalty observed the natal day. (I recently made an obscene birthday call to a young friend of mine — former friend.) According to Sally Hopkins, historian for Hallmark ("When you care enough to give the Best") Cards, stargazers in Mesopotamia and Egypt used celestial bodies to determine time, and by 600 B.C. had developed a workable calendar so people could remember birthdays. It is not perfect, of course — I still can't remember my wife's birthday.

One of the first birthdays recorded was Pharoah's, described in the Book of Genesis. The celebration included a magnificent household feast with family and friends invited, no whipping of slaves, and all prisoners were released from jail. At the party, I suppose they played pin-the-tail-on-the-Sphinx.

When it came to a birthday, the Greeks had a word for it, as usual. They were among the first to record birthdays — not out of sentiment but for tax purposes and for military service. This led to the phrase, "death of taxes." By the 12th Century Christians routinely kept track of birthdays, poet and peasant, prince and pauper, and parties were held for one and all. (Paupers played pin-the-tail-on-Avalord.)

The birthday cake originated under Roman Emperor Hadrian who sent them by special messenger to invited guests unable (or too wary) to attend his birthday celebration. Hallmark Sally says "To the ancient Greeks, birthday candles had a special magic for granting wishes; that's why children today make a wish before blowing out the candles." One tradition holds that the number of blasts you need to blow out all the candles is the number of children you are going to have. Cute, for a child of 12; unnerving for a matron of 30. Russians have a birthday pie, and Icelanders served canned fruit. How do you put candles on slices of melon and peach? Danes hang a flag out the window on birthdays, which we also do on the birthdays of Washington, Lincoln and Nixon.

However it's celebrated, one's birthday is one day in the year for the subject to feel like royalty.

Happy Birthday, Princess.

Failures often bring success

A scholar who has made a study of highly successful people contends the large majority of same have histories of failure. Most bombed repeatedly, he contends, before putting it together. Calls to mind Thomas Edison's claim: that an experiment that failed was not a waste of time; rather it pointed out one more thing that wouldn't work. Most successful people succeed, clearly, not only because they know what to do, but also because they know from experience what not to do, again. Would write a book on this matter, except you've just now read everything I know about it.

You know those coins that the riders of busses toss into the fare boxes? In New York City, not another hand touches that money until after it's deposited in the bank. Fancy little vacuum machines sort it.

Odd, is it not, that there is no place either in Spain or in Italy named in honor of Christopher Columbus?

HARRY S. TRUMAN

Q. "I know the S in Harry S. Truman's name didn't stand for any particular middle name, but why did his parents give him just that initial?"

A. His two grandfathers had names that began with S. To avoid offending either, his folks just settled for the initial.

Q. "How do you account for the fact that the New England fishermen report their catch is up this year by 30 percent over last year?"

A. The United States extended its territorial waters to 200 miles.

Q. "For how much is the average life insurance policy sold in this country?"

A. $8,750.

Regulating your body heat

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would appreciate your comments on relief from anhidrosis. The absence of both sensible and insensible perspiration creates a body temperature of 103 degrees plus in 80 degree weather. Would orthostatic hypotension with blood pressure levels of 70 over 50 being common contribute to this uncomfortable situation?

DEAR READER — The low blood pressure and absence of sweating are probably caused by the same abnormalities. Individuals with these two disorders also often have problems with sphincters that may affect bowel or bladder function to some degree.

We think these are related to abnormalities in the sympathetic nervous system possibly involving more than one area. I think you should be evaluated by a neurologist if you have not been already.

Meanwhile, sweating is an important mechanism to cool the body. The insensible perspiration alone enables us to be air conditioned with evaporative cooling. You will need to take every advantage of mechanisms to keep the body cool that you can. So I am sending you the Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever, to give you a summary of how the body heat is regulated. Others interrested in either fever or cooling the body who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for it to P.O. box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Perhaps you may be interested in my case. I am a male in my 98th year and have been having trouble with my feet swelling. My doctor said that he could not do anything, that the swelling was due to my advanced age. I raised the foot of my bed about six inches and within a month the swelling had subsided. I do not indulge in alcohol and eat the plainest food and otherwise am in good health.

DEAR READER — Congratulations on your 98 years. Swelling of the feet can have several different causes, including nutritional problems, heart disease, liver disease, varicose veins and others. What to do about it often depends upon what causes it.

It is fluid, and fluid tends to run downhill. As long as the feet are below the level of the heart they will tend to swell if a person accumulates excess fluid from any cause. Elevating the foot of the bed at night might help get the fluid out of your feet but it simply shifts upward in the body which may not be so good. It is likely to accumulate in the loose skin over the back. The shifting of the fluid does not mean that it has been eliminated from the body.

Old age alone does not cause fluid accumulation. There is a reason. The underlying problem may not be correctible but usually there is some help for it. If it is heart failure, heart medicines (the digitalis group), diuretics to stimulate the elimination of salt and a salt-restricted diet often help. If it is kidneys, liver or varicose veins, other measures may be indicated.

South looked over dummy carefully before playing to the first trick. He wanted to find a way to win 12 tricks. His first decision was that he just wouldn't make the hand if he had to lose a trump trick.

He had nine top tricks. Could he ruff two diamonds and a spade in dummy? It didn't seem likely. How about doing something with the clubs?

Then South let the spade come around to his ace and promptly played out his ace and king of trumps. Should trumps break 3-1 he wanted to win the third lead in dummy. Sure enough they did break 3-1.

He entered dummy with the queen of trumps, led the queen of clubs and discarded a spade after East played low. West took his ace and led another spade. South won with dummy's king and led the jack of clubs.

It didn't matter what East did. South was going to make two spades, two diamonds, two clubs and his own five trumps with one diamond ruff in dummy.

Ask the Jacobys

A Nebraska reader wants to know the correct opening bid with:

♠A 8 3 2 ♥K 9 7 ♦Q 5 3 ♣A J 2.

The correct opening bid in all standard systems is one club. This is not an artificial club, but merely the best bid to start with and, of course, you should not consider a pass with 14 high-card points.

Fall planting season offers home garden results

Among gardeners seeking the best results for their efforts, the fall planting season is taking over the spring season in popularity for new plantings. There have always been distinct advantages to fall plantings including warm soils ideal for fast root growth and cooling temperatures that reduce transpiration losses. But with the increasing awareness for water conservation in the landscape, fall planting offers home gardeners exceptional and long range savings in water.

Weather experts predict normal or above normal rainfall this season. If you watered less than usual or with gray water this past summer, the build-up of harmful salts will soon be leached away so don't hesitate to tackle the landscaping projects put off during the drought. By setting in groundcovers, lawns, shrubs and evergreen trees in the next few weeks, they will be able to take advantage of the natural deep watering provided by the rain.

For wild flower fans, fall is also the only time to sow seeds. Work up the soil, scatter the seed of your favorites such as California Poppy and rake them in. Let nature and a long rainy winter do the rest.

Deep rains that penetrate several feet into the soil are essential for healthy, deep rooted plants since roots will only grow where there is available moisture. Deep roots mean firmly anchored plants that can go longer between summer irrigations because they can draw from a larger soil reservoir. That's where the long range water savings comes in. With root systems firmly established, plants can really take off full bore as soon as the spring weather arrives.

Grow African violets easily

Colorful blooms grow with very little care

Like so many improved flowering houseplants, African Violets can now be grown by the novice and hobbyist alike with great results. Once the houseplant doted over by little old ladies, African Violets can be bought in bloom and then brought back into bloom with very little care. The single or double blossoms in shades of blue, rose, violet and white rise just above the thick dark green leaves and remain colorful and bright for several weeks.

Many of the most foolproof varieties are protected by plant patents just as inventions with great merit are patented. The Rhapsody, Ballet and Diana series of African Violets were developed in Germany. Try some or all of these quality varieties — you'll see why nurserymen went to Europe to bring these beauties back.

These vigorous growers enjoy a lot of light but not direct afternoon rays. An east or northeast exposure is ideal for bringing on the flowers. Artificial lighting is helpful to supplement natural daylight but is not necessary. African Violets can be watered from their saucers by letting capillary action draw the moisture up into the soil and root mass. This method of watering keeps the crown of the plant from becoming oversaturated and the leaves unspotted, but does not provide the necessary leaching action to wash away the salts that build-up in the soil from fertilizers. Brown-edged leaves and poor growth are symptoms of salt build-up. The beginner is best advised to water the new generation of African Violet varieties from the top. Check soil moisture before watering just as you would with any other houseplant. Don't overwater — the succulent leaves indicate that these plants like moist but never soggy soil.

You'll be amazed how easy it is to raise large showy specimens with more blooms than you ever saw on Granny's old-fashioned varieties.

Q. — A tin can used for displaying flowers was stupidly left on our marble coffee table. I did not discover until I returned from vacation that the can was rusty on the bottom and had left rust stains on the marble. I haven't touched the area yet for fear of ruining the top permanently. Can you tell me whether these rust stains can be removed and, if so, how?

A. — A commercial rust remover should do the job. But if it doesn't work immediately, you may have to apply a poultice made of white paper napkins or cleaning tissue. Soak the paper in the rust remover and place it on the rusted area. Cover with some kind of household wrap to keep the poultice from drying out too quickly. After 24 hours, take off the poultice and rub the area lightly. If the stain has not been eliminated (it is certain to be lighter), repeat the process for another 24 hours. Two, three or four such treatments may be necessary.

Q. — In using mineral wool batts for insulation where the studs are 24 inches apart, should I use 16-inch batts, plus half batts, to fit the spaces? If so, how do I attach them so there no openings where the whole and half batts come together?

A. — No need to do any patching. You can get batts to fit 24-inch spaces between studs and joists.

(For either of Andy Lang's booklets, "Save Money by Insulating" or "Wood Finishing in the Home," send 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.

Gardeners check list

—When November arrives, it's a good time to take stock in what's what in the Rose garden. A reminder from the California Association of Nurserymen that next month is the start of bareroot Rose planting prompts us to consider the possible replacement of Roses no longer favorite specimens. Once you decide to uproot one Rose and plant another, don't wait until the last bloom drops. Take it out now and turn the soil to let it air out for a month or so. Working steer manure and compost into the spot is not a bad idea, either.

—Before winter frosts arrive, spring blooming bulbs and annuals should be planted so they will have an opportunity to establish themselves. In fact, you can plant the two types of flowers in one garden bed, suggests the California Association of Nurserymen. Bulb beds of Tulips, Daffodils, Hyacinths and Anemones are much more attractive if there are some annuals to cover the bare place before and after bulb bloom.

—There are many low-growing and medium-growing conifers which make ideal living Christmas trees. Consult your local nurseryman for suggestions on those best suited to your locality. You can transplant right now and have a lovely Christmas tree in your yard during the whole season.

—Although pests are relatively inactive at this time, a good, thorough spraying job done now, will cut down considerably on the pests you might find in spring. Consult your nurseryman for spray suggestions and follow directions carefully for best success and most safety.

Garden meet

The November meeting of the Claremont Garden Club will be held Nov. 3, at the Rancho Santa Ana Botanic Garden, 1500 North College Ave., Claremont.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. There will be a door prize and the public is invited to attend.

The amount of attention given to paint rollers and flat pad applicators might make a visitor from another planet suppose that paint brushes had gone out of style.

Far from it. They are still essential for many paint jobs, either on their own or used in conjunction with other types of applicators. And one thing has remained as it was before rollers, pads and other paint spreaders were born: Thousands of brushes are thrown out every year because they became hard when their users neglected to clean them or cleaned them improperly.

Brushes used in oil paint or varnish should be cleaned in turpentine, mineral spirits or any kind of paint thinner specified on the label of the paint or varnish. One way is to work the brush back and forth on old newspapers, then do the same in a shallow pan containing the solvent. When the solvent has absorbed a lot of the paint, throw it out and repeat the process. This may have to be done several times, after which the bristles must be washed in a mild detergent and warm water.

If a brush has been used with a latex or similar paint, clean with a detergent and water or soap and water. Holding it under a faucet with the water turned on full will remove a large part of the paint. The rest can be disposed of by brushing back and forth on a flat surface. If there still seems to be some color in the brush, let the bristles soak in soap and water for a couple of hours, then rinse thoroughly.

A brush used with shellac should be cleaned with denatured alcohol. Lacquer thinner does the job on a brush used for lacquer. The best way to handle painting chores is to use a different brush for each type of finishing material and to keep it for that liquid alone. This is especially important when a brush has been used for shellac or lacquer.

Fall planting season offers home garden results

Among gardeners seeking the best results for their efforts, the fall planting season is taking over the spring season in popularity for new plantings. There have always been distinct advantages to fall plantings including warm soils ideal for fast root growth and cooling temperatures that reduce transpiration losses. But with the increasing awareness for water conservation in the landscape, fall planting offers home gardeners exceptional and long range savings in water.

Weather experts predict normal or above normal rainfall this season. If you watered less than usual or with gray water this past summer, the build-up of harmful salts will soon be leached away so don't hesitate to tackle the landscaping projects put off during the drought. By setting in groundcovers, lawns, shrubs and evergreen trees in the next few weeks, they will be able to take advantage of the natural deep watering provided by the rain.

For wild flower fans, fall is also the only time to sow seeds. Work up the soil, scatter the seed of your favorites such as California Poppy and rake them in. Let nature and a long rainy winter do the rest.

Deep rains that penetrate several feet into the soil are essential for healthy, deep rooted plants since roots will only grow where there is available moisture. Deep roots mean firmly anchored plants that can go longer between summer irrigations because they can draw from a larger soil reservoir. That's where the long range water savings comes in. With root systems firmly established, plants can really take off full bore as soon as the spring weather arrives.

Grow African violets easily

Colorful blooms grow with very little care

Like so many improved flowering houseplants, African Violets can now be grown by the novice and hobbyist alike with great results. Once the houseplant doted over by little old ladies, African Violets can be bought in bloom and then brought back into bloom with very little care. The single or double blossoms in shades of blue, rose, violet and white rise just above the thick dark green leaves and remain colorful and bright for several weeks.

Many of the most foolproof varieties are protected by plant patents just as inventions with great merit are patented. The Rhapsody, Ballet and Diana series of African Violets were developed in Germany. Try some or all of these quality varieties — you'll see why nurserymen went to Europe to bring these beauties back.

These vigorous growers enjoy a lot of light but not direct afternoon rays. An east or northeast exposure is ideal for bringing on the flowers. Artificial lighting is helpful to supplement natural daylight but is not necessary. African Violets can be watered from their saucers by letting capillary action draw the moisture up into the soil and root mass. This method of watering keeps the crown of the plant from becoming oversaturated and the leaves unspotted, but does not provide the necessary leaching action to wash away the salts that build-up in the soil from fertilizers. Brown-edged leaves and poor growth are symptoms of salt build-up. The beginner is best advised to water the new generation of African Violet varieties from the top. Check soil moisture before watering just as you would with any other houseplant. Don't overwater — the succulent leaves indicate that these plants like moist but never soggy soil.

You'll be amazed how easy it is to raise large showy specimens with more blooms than you ever saw on Granny's old-fashioned varieties.

AFRICAN VIOLETS

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — A tin can used for displaying flowers was stupidly left on our marble coffee table. I did not discover until I returned from vacation that the can was rusty on the bottom and had left rust stains on the marble. I haven't touched the area yet for fear of ruining the top permanently. Can you tell me whether these rust stains can be removed and, if so, how?

A. — A commercial rust remover should do the job. But if it doesn't work immediately, you may have to apply a poultice made of white paper napkins or cleaning tissue. Soak the paper in the rust remover and place it on the rusted area. Cover with some kind of household wrap to keep the poultice from drying out too quickly. After 24 hours, take off the poultice and rub the area lightly. If the stain has not been eliminated (it is certain to be lighter), repeat the process for another 24 hours. Two, three or four such treatments may be necessary.

Q. — In using mineral wool batts for insulation where the studs are 24 inches apart, should I use 16-inch batts, plus half batts, to fit the spaces? If so, how do I attach them so there no openings where the whole and half batts come together?

A. — No need to do any patching. You can get batts to fit 24-inch spaces between studs and joists.

(For either of Andy Lang's booklets, "Save Money by Insulating" or "Wood Finishing in the Home," send 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column.

Gardeners check list

—When November arrives, it's a good time to take stock in what's what in the Rose garden. A reminder from the California Association of Nurserymen that next month is the start of bareroot Rose planting prompts us to consider the possible replacement of Roses no longer favorite specimens. Once you decide to uproot one Rose and plant another, don't wait until the last bloom drops. Take it out now and turn the soil to let it air out for a month or so. Working steer manure and compost into the spot is not a bad idea, either.

—Before winter frosts arrive, spring blooming bulbs and annuals should be planted so they will have an opportunity to establish themselves. In fact, you can plant the two types of flowers in one garden bed, suggests the California Association of Nurserymen. Bulb beds of Tulips, Daffodils, Hyacinths and Anemones are much more attractive if there are some annuals to cover the bare place before and after bulb bloom.

—There are many low-growing and medium-growing conifers which make ideal living Christmas trees. Consult your local nurseryman for suggestions on those best suited to your locality. You can transplant right now and have a lovely Christmas tree in your yard during the whole season.

—Although pests are relatively inactive at this time, a good, thorough spraying job done now, will cut down considerably on the pests you might find in spring. Consult your nurseryman for spray suggestions and follow directions carefully for best success and most safety.

The amount of attention given to paint rollers and flat pad applicators might make a visitor from another planet suppose that paint brushes had gone out of style.

Far from it. They are still essential for many paint jobs, either on their own or used in conjunction with other types of applicators. And one thing has remained as it was before rollers, pads and other paint spreaders were born: Thousands of brushes are thrown out every year because they became hard when their users neglected to clean them or cleaned them improperly.

Brushes used in oil paint or varnish should be cleaned in turpentine, mineral spirits or any kind of paint thinner specified on the label of the paint or varnish. One way is to work the brush back and forth on old newspapers, then do the same in a shallow pan containing the solvent. When the solvent has absorbed a lot of the paint, throw it out and repeat the process. This may have to be done several times, after which the bristles must be washed in a mild detergent and warm water.

If a brush has been used with a latex or similar paint, clean with a detergent and water or soap and water. Holding it under a faucet with the water turned on full will remove a large part of the paint. The rest can be disposed of by brushing back and forth on a flat surface. If there still seems to be some color in the brush, let the bristles soak in soap and water for a couple of hours, then rinse thoroughly.

A brush used with shellac should be cleaned with denatured alcohol. Lacquer thinner does the job on a brush used for lacquer. The best way to handle painting chores is to use a different brush for each type of finishing material and to keep it for that liquid alone. This is especially important when a brush has been used for shellac or lacquer.

Joyce Brothers
Detrimental effect

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My son has lived with several women. He tells my wife and me that he wants a really good marriage and he feels this will insure it. I don't quite understand his reasoning. My wife and I have had a very happy marriage and I'll have to confess, with some embarrassment in today's world, that I didn't live with her before we married. We wonder if our son will ever settle down. I don't understand today's morality, but if it leads to happier marriages, I guess I'd have to go along, because I think happiness is most important. What are your views? — O.V.

DEAR O.V.: I feel there are really no hard and fast rules about this because a great deal depends upon the individuals involved and their particular circumstances. I think that practice doesn't make perfect when it comes to sex, however, and I believe that too much experimentation has a detrimental effect on marriage.

There are studies that indicate couples who live together before marriage are less likely to have happy and successful marriages than couples who live apart until their wedding day.

Nancy Moore Clatworthy, associate professor of sociology at Ohio State University, interviewed 100 couples in 1975 and concluded that living together is not a good prelude to marriage. The couples, aged 18 to 35, were selected at random.

The differences in the couples chosen were not significant, but those who had not lived together first were higher on all scales. They were more involved and happier.

Living together takes some of the romance and mystery out of marriage. Some mystery is stimulating and some romance helps marriages to endure. Despite your feelings or mine, since your son is an adult, he must be the final judge.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My brother and I grew up in a very authoritarian family. I don't know whether this caused our shyness, but we've both suffered a great deal all our lives from this problem. It's held my brother back in his career and it's held me back socially. I want very much to meet new people, especially men, because I'd like to find a nice man to marry. I hate being alone and yet I can't force myself to go to parties. How can I overcome this problem? — M.D.

DEAR M.D.: In order to overcome acute shyness, you have to be able to take risks, to plunge into new situations even though you can't always control them. Shyness is really a fear of failure in some situation and it can cripple people and make their lives miserable.

America is a nation of shy people. This is surprising to many who think Americans are unusually open, friendly and outgoing. A nation or a home that places too much value on success and winning is apt to produce more than its share of shy people, because the opposite of success and winning is failure and losing. Some people are so afraid of failure they're unable to make any choices in life for fear they may make a wrong or imperfect choice.

To overcome shyness, you have to set up situations, in your case, social situations, where you learn to cope with some failure and lack of success. You'll soon see that it isn't as disastrous and damaging as you'd imagined.

Try to concentrate on the other person's interests, rather than your own. Remember that others may be shy, too, but may show it in different ways. Some persons talk and appear very extroverted in an attempt to cover their shyness. Force yourself to meet people and to get involved with others.

League will hear speaker

The St. Luke Lutheran Women's Missionary League will meet at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, in the parish hall.

The meeting is open to guests as well as all women of the congregation.

Officer selection charted

Joyce Brothers

Detrimental effect

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My son has lived with several women. He tells my wife and me that he wants a really good marriage and he feels this will insure it. I don't quite understand his reasoning. My wife and I have had a very happy marriage and I'll have to confess, with some embarrassment in today's world, that I didn't live with her before we married. We wonder if our son will ever settle down. I don't understand today's morality, but if it leads to happier marriages, I guess I'd have to go along, because I think happiness is most important. What are your views? — O.V.

DEAR O.V.: I feel there are really no hard and fast rules about this because a great deal depends upon the individuals involved and their particular circumstances. I think that practice doesn't make perfect when it comes to sex, however, and I believe that too much experimentation has a detrimental effect on marriage.

There are studies that indicate couples who live together before marriage are less likely to have happy and successful marriages than couples who live apart until their wedding day.

Nancy Moore Clatworthy, associate professor of sociology at Ohio State University, interviewed 100 couples in 1975 and concluded that living together is not a good prelude to marriage. The couples, aged 18 to 35, were selected at random.

The differences in the couples chosen were not significant, but those who had not lived together first were higher on all scales. They were more involved and happier.

Living together takes some of the romance and mystery out of marriage. Some mystery is stimulating and some romance helps marriages to endure. Despite your feelings or mine, since your son is an adult, he must be the final judge.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My brother and I grew up in a very authoritarian family. I don't know whether this caused our shyness, but we've both suffered a great deal all our lives from this problem. It's held my brother back in his career and it's held me back socially. I want very much to meet new people, especially men, because I'd like to find a nice man to marry. I hate being alone and yet I can't force myself to go to parties. How can I overcome this problem? — M.D.

DEAR M.D.: In order to overcome acute shyness, you have to be able to take risks, to plunge into new situations even though you can't always control them. Shyness is really a fear of failure in some situation and it can cripple people and make their lives miserable.

America is a nation of shy people. This is surprising to many who think Americans are unusually open, friendly and outgoing. A nation or a home that places too much value on success and winning is apt to produce more than its share of shy people, because the opposite of success and winning is failure and losing. Some people are so afraid of failure they're unable to make any choices in life for fear they may make a wrong or imperfect choice.

To overcome shyness, you have to set up situations, in your case, social situations, where you learn to cope with some failure and lack of success. You'll soon see that it isn't as disastrous and damaging as you'd imagined.

Try to concentrate on the other person's interests, rather than your own. Remember that others may be shy, too, but may show it in different ways. Some persons talk and appear very extroverted in an attempt to cover their shyness. Force yourself to meet people and to get involved with others.

Q. "WHAT IS A BOWERBIRD?"

ARNOLD ELLIOTT
SARDINIA, OH

A. THE BOWERBIRD IS AN AUSTRALIAN BIRD THAT BUILDS A BRIGHTLY DECORATED NEST WHICH IS USED TO ATTRACT THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES

Imagine a bird that builds a playhouse, and then decorates it with flowers and bright objects. That's what the bowerbird of Australia and New Zealand does.

The playhouse, or bower, is not a nest. It is a little run or chamber the male bowerbird builds with twigs and grass to attract the female bowerbird.

He decorates the entrance to his bower with feathers, flowers, shiny pebbles, and other bits of colorful material.

He may even paint the inside of the bower with the juice crushed from berries, using his bill as a paintbrush!

As the decorations fade or wither, the bowerbird replaces them with fresh ones. Within his bower, he bows, dances and sings until he has won his mate.

When it comes time to make the actual nest, however, the female bowerbird must build it herself. She builds a simple nest in the branches of a tree and raises her young alone.

Sew and sew

Adult school students learn employment skill

Some 40 persons are employed as power sewing machine operators in local apparel industries after completing a Pomona Adult School course that opened last March.

The class meets Mondays through Thursdays, from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., in the former gas company headquarters at 1540 W. Second St.

Titled "Power Commercial Sewing for Industry," the course has 14 students being trained for work in the apparel industry. Others may enter at any time.

"When we first considered setting up the class, we thought there were only a few such manufacturers nearby," said Daun Keith, adult school program assistant. "Later we found some 17 businesses that can offer employment to our students."

Teacher Mildred Probst first realized the need for trained operators when working as a contractor for her family's apparel business. She found there was a great shortage of seamstresses, especially those trained in the total process of power sewing.

In arranging for the course, she and Keith contacted local industries for help and advice. Some, such as Broderick Manufacturing Co. in Pomona, have loaned the school commercial sewing machines, contributed material, and hired a number of the graduates.

Mrs. Probst gives each student individual attention and instruction. A volunteer aide, Mary Orona, attends almost daily to help in several ways, including translating.

Some of the students "graduate" after six weeks if their need for employment is urgent, Mrs. Probst said. But she prefers to have them stay for the full nine weeks to learn all the specialties possible.

"Operators can make a great deal more money during their career if they are able to advance to more specialized types of operation," Mrs. Probst explained. "Although students are nervous about the speed of the power machines and the special controls when they first enter the class, they learn to be very proficient during a nine-week course."

Members of the class have done some projects free of charge for local non-profit organizations. These include making the "gonfalons," or flags, used at Pomona's Renaissance Fair, sewing cushions and drapes for the faculty lounge at Pomona High School, and making ditty bags for the YMCA.

They are willing to do projects for other groups, especially if supplied with pre-cut materials. Large items, such as sheets and drapes, are needed to help the students increase their speed by sewing long pieces of material, she said.

Students may join the class by registering at the Adult School office in the Pomona Education Center, 800 S. Garey Ave. There is a $4.25 registration fee for the course and a lab fee of $2.

Ontario Lockheed gets Army contract

The Army has selected Lockheed Aircraft Service Co., Ontario, to provide four data recorder units, plus ground support equipment for flight test programs at Edwards Air Force Base.

The recorders will be installed in rotary-wing aircraft to provide a crash protected method of storing vital flight data and mission information during critical flight maneuvers. One of the units will be installed on the new Sikorsky "Blackhawk" utility helicopter. This is the first military application for this new recording system.

Since flight recorders were first mandated in 1957, Lockheed has produced 3,000 units that are in service on all types of aircraft throughout the world.

learn employment skills

Some 40 persons are employed as power sewing machine operators in local apparel industries after completing a Pomona Adult School course that opened last March.

The class meets Mondays through Thursdays, from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., in the former gas company headquarters at 1540 W. Second St.

Titled "Power Commercial Sewing for Industry," the course has 14 students being trained for work in the apparel industry. Others may enter at any time.

"When we first considered setting up the class, we thought there were only a few such manufacturers nearby," said Daun Keith, adult school program assistant. "Later we found some 17 businesses that can offer employment to our students."

Teacher Mildred Probst first realized the need for trained operators when working as a contractor for her family's apparel business. She found there was a great shortage of seamstresses, especially those trained in the total process of power sewing.

In arranging for the course, she and Keith contacted local industries for help and advice. Some, such as Broderick Manufacturing Co. in Pomona, have loaned the school commercial sewing machines, contributed material, and hired a number of the graduates.

Mrs. Probst gives each student individual attention and instruction. A volunteer aide, Mary Orona, attends almost daily to help in several ways, including translating.

Some of the students "graduate" after six weeks if their need for employment is urgent, Mrs. Probst said. But she prefers to have them stay for the full nine weeks to learn all the specialties possible.

"Operators can make a great deal more money during their career if they are able to advance to more specialized types of operation," Mrs. Probst explained. "Although students are nervous about the speed of the power machines and the special controls when they first enter the class, they learn to be very proficient during a nine-week course."

Members of the class have done some projects free of charge for local non-profit organizations. These include making the "gonfalons," or flags, used at Pomona's Renaissance Fair, sewing cushions and drapes for the faculty lounge at Pomona High School, and making ditty bags for the YMCA.

They are willing to do projects for other groups, especially if supplied with pre-cut materials. Large items, such as sheets and drapes, are needed to help the students increase their speed by sewing long pieces of material, she said.

Students may join the class by registering at the Adult School office in the Pomona Education Center, 800 S. Garey Ave. There is a $4.25 registration fee for the course and a lab fee of $2.

Ontario Lockheed gets Army contract

The Army has selected Lockheed Aircraft Service Co., Ontario, to provide four data recorder units, plus ground support equipment for flight test programs at Edwards Air Force Base.

The recorders will be installed in rotary-wing aircraft to provide a crash protected method of storing vital flight data and mission information during critical flight maneuvers. One of the units will be installed on the new Sikorsky "Blackhawk" utility helicopter. This is the first military application for this new recording system.

Since flight recorders were first mandated in 1957, Lockheed has produced 3,000 units that are in service on all types of aircraft throughout the world.

81 not too old for an artist

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — At an age when walking sticks and rocking chairs usually fall to hand, 81-year-old Billie Hill has taken up the paintbrush with an attention-grabbing vengeance.

Last week, as her brightly colored scenes of barns and mountains and covered bridges hung in a Memphis State University cafeteria, the sprightly Mrs. Hill began talking about selling some of her paintings.

It began three years ago when her daughters heard about a special program at the school. They wanted her to keep her mind occupied. For a small fee, senior citizens would be permitted to attend classes on a non-credit basis.

"They started on me," the dimunitive grandmother said. "I don't know why they thought I needed anything extra — I had enough to do. But they decided Momma should do it."

Under some pressure from the younger generation, Mrs. Hill showed up at Memphis State with the idea of perhaps studying journalism or art history.

But there was a vacancy in a freshman art class — color fundamentals — taught by Janie Poodry, an associate professor.

"I have a lot of students who take this course," Mrs. Poodry said. "But not very many of them like it. ... It's a tough course, but it separates the serious students from those who are not."

Mrs. Hill wasn't fond of the class at first. Mrs. Poodry's students spend hours at a time on exercises designed to teach color use.

"I had a student come up to me one day and say, 'I wish you'd say something to Billie. She's unhappy'," Mrs. Poodry said. "I said, 'Who's Billie?' and she said, 'She's that nice little old lady over there.' She didn't like those exercises. She wanted to paint barns."

But Mrs. Hill stuck it out and her work soon caught the eye of her teacher.

"It wasn't any time until she let me paint a barn," Mrs. Hill said, laughing.

The octegenarian artist painted covered bridges and log cabins and cloud formations and churches and mountains — all with youthful splashes of color.

"I can't draw," she said, pointing to her acrylic of a Pennsylvania Dutch barn.

Mrs. Hill and her mentor scoff at comparisons of her work and the late Grandma Moses'.

"Grandma Moses was a primitive — she didn't have any training," Mrs. Poodry said. "Billie is — well I think you should label her an artist. She has more sophistication. Billie has wild, joyous color. She knows how to use color. She is an artist."

Big night of prep football on tap

Don Bradley
Progress Bulletin Staff Writer

Former Rams still struggling

If it's any comfort to Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom, the San Diego Chargers are still struggling.

The Chargers are guided by a coach that Rosenbloom let go (Tommy Prothro), a quarterback (James Harris) that Rosenbloom sacked and several other former Rams.

San Diegans are unhappy right now with the way the Chargers (3-3) blew Sunday's game (21-16) to the Kansas City Chiefs (1-5).

The Chargers had a 16-7 lead with only 3:14 left in the game. But Harris fumbled on a first-down quarterback sneak at his own one-yard line to set up a K.C. touchdown.

Then running back Ricky Young fumbled and K.C. safety Tim Gray fielded it and ran it back 16 yards to another Chiefs' TD.

Time was fast running out when the Chargers got the ball again. But Harris, relying exclusively on the pass, moved the San Diegans from their own 20 to a first down at the Kansas City seven.

The Chargers had no time outs left and only 23 seconds showed on the clock. Everyone expected Harris to throw the ball out of bounds to stop the clock.

Inexplicably Harris instead frantically threw the ball into a maze of jerseys where it was intercepted at the goalline.

"I should have threw (sic) the ball away," Harris is quoted as saying afterward.

"It surprised me that he threw it," said Al Barbaro, the man who intercepted it. "However, we noticed in films that he has a tendency to force his passes once in a while."

So once again James Harris is on the spot and now Prothro probably is, too.

Prothro on thin ice

After a 6-8 record last year, Chargers' owner Gene Klein was widely quoted to the effect that Prothro "had another year."

The implication, of course, was that Prothro, in the final year of his contract, had to win this season, or else.

In Tuesday's editions of the San Diego Tribune, Klein is quoted as still expecting a winner this year.

"I'm still expecting a winning record," were his words. "I'd be disappointed in anything else. This is a winning ball club and I fully expect it to demonstrate as much in the coming weeks."

Now THAT is where Prothro may really be in trouble.

In the "coming weeks," the Chargers play away games in Miami, Detroit, Seattle and Denver. They are at home to Denver, Oakland, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

It's hard to see how the Chargers can win more than three of those eight. And that would give them another 6-8 record.

"We made mistakes a high school team shouldn't make," Prothro admitted after the loss to the Chiefs. After reviewing the films, said the team had no snap, crackle or pop.

"The offense was lazy,"he said. "The blocking was lazy. The receiving was lazy. The quarterbacking was lazy."

Explaining his use of "lazy," Prothro explained that the players were not snapping, were not moving quick, setting up quick or running crisp patterns.

"We had four first-and-10s inside their 40," he said, "wound up with 15 or more yards to go on the next down. We were mentally lazy."

The only players singled out by Prothro for commendation were three members of the defense, tackle Louie Kelcher, linebacker Don Goode and cornerback Jerome Dove.

Harris' rating low

It certainly MUST be comforting to Carroll Rosenbloom to see that Harris' efficiency rating by the league as a quarterback is only 59.6

Pat Haden's rating is 96.3. But Haden has not played enough to offically qualify or he would lead the NFC. The 5-10 (or 5-11 as he claims), 180-pounder has completed 24 of 43 passes for 351 yards and three touchdowns and has been intercepted once. His percentage of touchdowns is 7.0 and his percentage of interceptions is 2.3.

Harris has completed 75 of 138 for 884 yards and four touchdowns with eight interceptions. His touchdown percentage is only 2.9 and his interception percentage is 5.8.

In case you're wondering, Joe Namath's rating is 54.3 on 50 of 107 completed for 606 yards and three TDs and five interceptions. His TD percentage is 2.8 and his interceptions percentage is 4.7.

Both Namath and Harris have one thing in common. Each has been sacked seven times attempting to pass. Namath has lost 76 yards that way and Harris 60. Haden's five sacks have lost only 24 yards.

HERE 'N THERE — Wendell Tyler is averaging 7.2 yards a carry on his 24 carries.

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Five local teams will be fighting to either gain or retain at least a share of first place in four different leagues in tonight's prep football action.

The San Antonio League lead will go to the winner of tonight's Damien-Chino game on the Cowboys' field. Those two teams share the lead with 4-0 SAL records going into tonight's contest. Damien is ranked second and Chino third in the Southeastern Conference and both have 5-1 season records.

Walnut, the Southeastern Conference's top-rated team, is in a similar situation. They will meet their co-leaders in the Hacienda League race, the surprising Gladstone Gladiators, at Citrus College tonight to determine a sole league leader. Walnut is the area's only undefeated team after six games and Gladstone is 4-2 on the year, but both own 4-0 league records.

SAL

	League W	L	PF	PA	Overall W	L
Chino	4	0	59	26	5	1
Damien	4	0	95	20	5	1
Claremont	3	1	62	25	4	2
Ganesha	3	1	55	25	5	1
Garey	1	3	50	63	2	4
Montclair	1	3	27	96	1	5
Pomona	0	4	6	56	0	6
Upland	0	4	15	58	1	5

Tonight's games
Damien at Chino, 7:30 p.m.
Garey vs. Ganesha at Cal Poly, 7:30 p.m.
Montclair vs. Pomona at MSAC, 7:30 p.m.
Claremont at Upland, 7:30 p.m.

Chaffey will be trying to gain a share of the Citrus Belt League tonight when it hosts Redlands at Graber Field. The Tigers (3-1, 4-2) are one game behind Redlands (4-0, 5-1), the sixth-ranked team in the powerful Big Five Conference. A Chaffey loss would virtually end any Tiger hopes of repeating as league titlists, after being involved in a three-way CBL championship tie each of the past two seasons.

Ontario Christian already has first place in the Olympic League all to itself, but risks that status tonight against visiting Brethren. Brethren is tied with Valley Christian for second place, just one game behind the Knights. Ontario Christian has a 4-0 league record and is 5-1 overall after winning five straight. Brethren is 3-1 in league play and 5-1 on the year.

The Knights are in a particularly enviable position tonight: a win by the Ontario team over Brethren coupled with a loss by Valley Christian to Whittier Christian would clinch at least a share of the Olympic League championship for the Knights.

That is quite a lofty position for a team that had no spring football program and did not have a head coach for the current season until mid-July.

First-year head coach Laing Stevens took the reins at that point after serving as an assistant to former head coach Ed Werkhoven the previous season.

Laing's squad got off to a shaky start this fall with a season-opening loss to Rim of the World, but the Knights have reeled off five straight wins since that time.

"We looked bad that first game just as could be expected of a team with no spring football," said Stevens. "We really didn't get started until Hell Week (the week of conditioning prior to the first week of practice).

TONY ZENDEJAS . . .
Chino place kicker

"But we've been improving steadily since that first game and I don't think we've peaked yet. We played a very good game against Valley Christian (a 16-6 victory two weeks ago) and we were even better last week against Whittier Christian except for our blocking." The Knights disposed of the Whittier squad, 34-0.

Whittier features an offense led by Greg McClure, a tailback who had nearly 800 yards rushing in five games before running up against Ontario Christian. The Knights held the host Whittier squad to 47 yards on the ground.

Linebackers Bernie Mulder and Don Klien lead the Knight defense in tackles, followed by tackles Rod De Jager and Roger Sybesma and end Tom Lanting. Cornerback David Hooyenga has four interceptions to his credit and sophomore safety Adrian Kroes has three.

Offensively, quarterback Joe Hoog has 454 yards and five touchdowns passing and 197 yards and five TDs rushing. Fullback Pete Van Ginkle and tailback Gerrit Bosman have rushed for 285 and 261 yards, respectively.

OCHS's potent defense, which has allowed an average of seven points per game, will contend tonight with Brethren's Andre Pinesett, who has over 800 yards rushing for the season. Pinesett is currently hobbled a bit with a leg injury, but at 6-foot-2 and 210 pounds, is always a threat.

Tonight's Damien-Chino matchup should be the best game of the year in the San Antonio League. Both teams are well balanced — strong on both offense and defense — and neither is liable to make many mistakes.

Besides the attraction of such talented players as Chino tailback Mike Bertschinger and Damien quarterback Dan Marconi, the game will feature some of the best kickers around.

Chino place kicker Tony Zendejas owns the SAL's longest field goal of the year — a 52-yarder — and Damien punter Darrell Wilson is averaging 39.1 yards for 20 kicks.

Sudden death again

Bruins must win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of Washington tries to continue on what it hopes is a path to its first Rose Bowl appearance since 1963 while UCLA plays another sudden death game when the teams battle at the Coliseum Saturday.

A crowd of 45,000 is expected for the Pacific-8 Conference football contest, which begins at 1:30 p.m., PDT.

The surprising Huskies enter the game tied for first place in the Pac-8 with a 3-0 record. The Bruins are 2-1 in conference play. Both teams have 4-3 overall marks.

Washington has had a minimum of problems in league action thus far, whipping Oregon 54-0, Stanford 45-21 and Oregon State 14-6. UCLA, meanwhile, started off on the wrong foot, losing to Stanford 32-28 before rebounding to top Washington State 27-16 and California 21-19.

The Bruins are favored by about a touchdown, but they've had more than their share of problems against Washington in recent years. The Huskies lead the series between the schools, 20-19-1, and they've won five of the last seven games against UCLA and 12 of the last 18.

Since their loss to Stanford, Coach Terry Donahue has emphasized that the Bruins are in a sudden death situation every time out.

"You can't logically be considered a Rose Bowl contender with two losses," said Donahue this week. "We're in a must-win situation every week because we've lost once."

UCLA, which has had to defend against an average of 41 passes a game in the past three weeks, doesn't figure to be confronted with half that many against Washington, but senior quarterback Warren Moon has been extremely effective, completing 72 of 124 for 1,009 yards and seven touchdowns.

"Moon is a better runner than the other quarterbacks we've played against," said Donahue. "I'm sure the game will be another gut-grinder."

A pair of sophomores have excelled in the rushing department for the Huskies. Tailback Joe Steele has gained 527 yards in 111 carries while fullback Ron Gipson has picked up 460 yards in 88 attempts.

Washington has scored 113 points in Pac-8 play while allowing only 27.

The Bruins are led by junior James Owens, who has run for 592 yards in 117 carries, and junior Theotis Brown, who has gained 283 yards in 55 attempts in two full games and parts of two others.

Brown, who set a school record by rushing for 220 yards in 35 carries against Washington last year, is fully recovered from a dislocated left elbow he suffered in UCLA's season-opener at Houston last month.

Sophomore quarterback Rick Bashore has completed 51 of 97 passes for 710 yards and six touchdowns and has gained 256 yards on 90 carries. Bashore topped UCLA in rushing last week with 90 yards on 20 attempts.

The Huskies enter the game with all key personnel physically healthy. The Bruins will be without starting strong safety Johnny Lynn, who injured an ankle against Cal.

USC, Cal face emotional game

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The Southern California Trojans step into another emotion-packed situation Saturday, with perhaps more than the opposing California football team to overcome.

Last weekend in South Bend, Ind., Notre Dame put on its lucky green jerseys for the first time in 14 years and, as one Irish player said, "The locker room was going crazy."

Notre Dame went out and beat Southern Cal 49-19, dropping the Trojans from fifth to 10th in the national rankings.

The atmosphere in Cal's locker room will be different before Saturday's Pacific-8 game, the first Joe Roth Memorial Game.

A sellout crowd of 76,000 is expected, and Bears Coach Mike White calls it, "a fitting tribute to Joe and the way he would have wanted it — a lot of people watching two good football teams."

Roth, the star Cal quarterback who died of cancer early this year, also would have wanted the Bears to win, of course, as they did two years ago, 28-14, in one of his greatest games.

A Joe Roth Memorial Game will be played annually at Cal to endow a scholarship fund in his name. Many of the current Bears, including record-setting place kicker Jim Breech, tight end George Freitas, linebacker Burl Toler and fullback Paul Jones, were teammates of Roth's the past two years.

Coach John Robinson, whose Trojans are 3-0 in the Pac-8 and share the lead with Washington, feels it was his team's mistakes rather than green jerseys which led to defeat at Notre Dame.

"So many sports legends have been made out of things like green jerseys and halftime talks," he said. "But the reason we lost was because we didn't play a good game."

Southern Cal made five turnovers at Notre Dame. Cal was leading UCLA last Saturday night before the Bruins scored on a blocked punt. The Bears lost 21-19 and dropped to 1-2 in conference play.

Cal's 5-2 over-all record is the same as Southern Cal's, and Robinson said, "I watched the films of last week's game and think Cal should have won."

Southern Cal, as usual, has the conference's leading rusher, Charles White with 834 yards, and Cal's Jones is No. 2 with 666. Both teams have effective passing attacks, with quarterbacks Rob Hertel of USC and Charlie Young of Cal doing well in their first seasons as starters.

Zarate rated solid favorite

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A boxing rarity takes place at the Sports Arena Saturday night when World Boxing Council champion Carlos Zarate defends his bantamweight title against Danilo Batista.

Both fighters enter the championship bout with perfect records. Zarate, from Mexico, has a 47-0 mark with 46 knockouts. Batista, from Brazil, is 26-0 with 16 KOs.

The fight was originally scheduled Oct. 8, but postponed for three weeks because Zarate bruised a knuckle on his left hand in sparring.

"It is perfectly okay now," said the 26-year-old Zarate through an interpreter at a news conference Thursday night. "I'm ready to go."

The bout will be televised live in parts of Mexico and Brazil, and there are seven closed-circuit TV locations around the United States.

Zarate, a solid 2-to-1 favorite, will collect $40,000 and Batista $12,500. Zarate is expected to earn another $40,000 or so from television rights in Mexico.

Both fighters forecasted victory Thursday night.

Three 10-round main events complete the championship card, which starts at 8 p.m., PST. The title fight is expected to start about an hour later.

Auto racing mourns Hulman's death

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Anton J. "Tony" Hulman Jr., president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway whose booming order, "Gentlemen, start your engines," each May launched one of the world's richest and best-known automobile races, is dead at 76.

Hulman died at St. Vincent's Hospital Thursday night, a few hours after he was admitted. A nursing supervisor said death resulted from heart failure caused by a ruptured aortic aneurysm. That is a break in the main blood vessel to the heart.

When Hulman purchased the Indianapolis Speedway in 1946 for $700,000, it was a ramshackle, neglected track with rickety wooden grandstands. Grass grew between the old red bricks that formed the track and gave it the nickname, "the Brickyard."

"It was in such dilapidated condition, we didn't know we'd ever get it ready in time for the race," Hulman once said. "Some of the grandstands were falling down."

He said it was hard to believe the track would someday be worth more than $50 million.

Hulman had all of the 2½-mile oval paved except for a yard of bricks left at the finish line. Under Hulman, concrete and steel grandstands were erected, and today there is seating for 237,500 persons and another 100,000 can be accommodated in the infield.

Hulman's principal business interest was Hulman & Co. in Terre Haute, Ind., a wholesale grocery firm founded by his grandfather in 1848 with just $700. Its most famous product is Clabber Girl baking powder.

Hulman said in a recent interview, "All I ever got to see about any of the business was the trouble. They brought the problems, and I had to produce solutions. This is the part of the job that appeals most to me.

"Certainly I enjoy success, but I get more pure satisfaction from problem solving. The everyday routine is not my dish."

His office, stacked with Speedway mementoes, was tucked into a corner of the second floor of the firm's Terre Haute headquarters.

Hulman was born Feb. 11, 1901, in Terre Haute. He was educated at St. Benedict's School there and at Lawrenceville Academy in New York. Worcester Academy and Yale.

He was named the nation's best schoolboy hurdler at Worcester in 1919 and the country's top prep pole vaulter in 1920.

Although he never drove a race car in competition, most of Hulman's life was associated with speed. At age 12 he owned his own motorcycle and at Yale he was a star football end and rowed with the Eli crew.

"Mr. Hulman will be mourned by millions of citizens worldwide," Sen. Richard G. Lugar, R-Ind., former mayor of Indianapolis, said when informed of the death. "His genius brought pleasure and excitement to race fans throughout the globe and economic vitality and renown to Indianapolis. His legacy will remain as long as racing endures as the world's greatest spectator sport, and Indianapolis will continue to be his shrine in perpetuity."

In Phoenix, Ariz., Tom Sneva, who captured the pole position in the 1977 Indy 500 with a record qualifying speed of 200.535 mph, said, "I am very shocked. Tony has done a lot for racing. His death is bound to have an effect on racing and USAC (the U.S. Auto Club, which sanctions the 500). I was with Tony several times during May and he seemed to be in better spirits and health than in the previous two years."

Hulman was a familiar figure trackside during the month of Indy time trials and the race itself. Deeply suntanned, the tall, slender man of craggy face and aristocratic grey hair was a celebrity to many racing fans.

"I didn't really realize there were as many race fans and race bugs in the country as there really are," Hulman once remarked. "You get them all together and it makes a big crowd."

He also said, "Basically, I'm for living and let live. I wanted to accomplish as much as I could, but without being pushy at all and without hurting anyone along the way."

Former Rams still struggling

If it's any comfort to Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom, the San Diego Chargers are still struggling.

The Chargers are guided by a coach that Rosenbloom let go (Tommy Prothro), a quarterback (James Harris) that Rosenbloom sacked and several other former Rams.

San Diegans are unhappy right now with the way the Chargers (3-3) blew Sunday's game (21-16) to the Kansas City Chiefs (1-5).

The Chargers had a 16-7 lead with only 3:14 left in the game. But Harris fumbled on a first-down quarterback sneak at his own one-yard line to set up a K.C. touchdown.

Then running back Ricky Young fumbled and K.C. safety Tim Gray fielded it and ran it back 16 yards to another Chiefs' TD.

Time was fast running out when the Chargers got the ball again. But Harris, relying exclusively on the pass, moved the San Diegans from their own 20 to a first down at the Kansas City seven.

The Chargers had no time outs left and only 23 seconds showed on the clock. Everyone expected Harris to throw the ball out of bounds to stop the clock.

Inexplicably Harris instead frantically threw the ball into a maze of jerseys where it was intercepted at the goalline.

"I should have threw (sic) the ball away," Harris is quoted as saying afterward.

"It surprised me that he threw it," said Al Barbaro, the man who intercepted it. "However, we noticed in films that he has a tendency to force his passes once in a while."

So once again James Harris is on the spot and now Prothro probably is, too.

Prothro on thin ice

After a 6-8 record last year, Chargers' owner Gene Klein was widely quoted to the effect that Prothro "had another year."

The implication, of course, was that Prothro, in the final year of his contract, had to win this season, or else.

In Tuesday's editions of the San Diego Tribune, Klein is quoted as still expecting a winner this year.

"I'm still expecting a winning record," were his words. "I'd be disappointed in anything else. This is a winning ball club and I fully expect it to demonstrate as much in the coming weeks."

Now THAT is where Prothro may really be in trouble.

In the "coming weeks," the Chargers play away games in Miami, Detroit, Seattle and Denver. They are at home to Denver, Oakland, Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

It's hard to see how the Chargers can win more than three of those eight. And that would give them another 6-8 record.

"We made mistakes a high school team shouldn't make," Prothro admitted after the loss to the Chiefs. After reviewing the films, said the team had no snap, crackle or pop.

"The offense was lazy," he said. "The blocking was lazy. The receiving was lazy. The quarterbacking was lazy."

Explaining his use of "lazy," Prothro explained that the players were not snapping, were not moving quick, setting up quick or running crisp patterns.

"We had four first-and-10s inside their 40," he said, "wound up with 15 or more yards to go on the next down. We were mentally lazy."

The only players singled out by Prothro for commendation were three members of the defense, tackle Louie Kelcher, linebacker Don Goode and cornerback Jerome Dove.

Harris' rating low

It certainly MUST be comforting to Carroll Rosenbloom to see that Harris' efficiency rating by the league as a quarterback is only 59.6

Pat Haden's rating is 96.3. But Haden has not played enough to offically qualify or he would lead the NFC. The 5-10 (or 5-11 as he claims), 180-pounder has completed 24 of 43 passes for 351 yards and three touchdowns and has been intercepted once. His percentage of touchdowns is 7.0 and his percentage of interceptions is 2.3.

Harris has completed 75 of 138 for 884 yards and four touchdowns with eight interceptions. His touchdown percentage is only 2.9 and his interception percentage is 5.8.

In case you're wondering, Joe Namath's rating is 54.3 on 50 of 107 completed for 606 yards and three TDs and five interceptions. His TD percentage is 2.8 and his interceptions percentage is 4.7.

Both Namath and Harris have one thing in common. Each has been sacked seven times attempting to pass. Namath has lost 76 yards that way and Harris 60. Haden's five sacks have lost only 24 yards.

HERE 'N THERE — Wendell Tyler is averaging 7.2 yards a carry on his 24 carries.

Five local teams will be fighting to either gain or retain at least a share of first place in four different leagues in tonight's prep football action.

The San Antonio League lead will go to the winner of tonight's Damien-Chino game on the Cowboys' field. Those two teams share the lead with 4-0 SAL records going into tonight's contest. Damien is ranked second and Chino third in the Southeastern Conference and both have 5-1 season records.

Walnut, the Southeastern Conference's top-rated team, is in a similar situation. They will meet their co-leaders in the Hacienda League race, the surprising Gladstone Gladiators, at Citrus College tonight to determine a sole league leader. Walnut is the area's only undefeated team after six games and Gladstone is 4-2 on the year, but both own 4-0 league records.

SAL

	League W	L	PF	PA	Overall W	L
Chino	4	0	59	26	5	1
Damien	4	0	95	20	5	1
Claremont	3	1	62	25	4	2
Ganesha	3	1	55	25	5	1
Garey	1	3	50	63	2	4
Montclair	1	3	27	96	1	5
Pomona	0	4	6	56	0	6
Upland	0	4	15	58	1	5

Tonight's games
Damien at Chino, 7:30 p.m.
Garey vs. Ganesha at Cal Poly, 7:30 p.m.
Montclair vs. Pomona at MSAC, 7:30 p.m.
Claremont at Upland, 7:30 p.m.

Chaffey will be trying to gain a share of the Citrus Belt League tonight when it hosts Redlands at Graber Field. The Tigers (3-1, 4-2) are one game behind Redlands (4-0, 5-1), the sixth-ranked team in the powerful Big Five Conference. A Chaffey loss would virtually end any Tiger hopes of repeating as league titlists, after being involved in a three-way CBL championship tie each of the past two seasons.

Ontario Christian already has first place in the Olympic League all to itself, but risks that status tonight against visiting Brethren. Brethren is tied with Valley Christian for second place, just one game behind the Knights. Ontario Christian has a 4-0 league record and is 5-1 overall after winning five straight. Brethren is 3-1 in league play and 5-1 on the year.

The Knights are in a particularly enviable position tonight: a win by the Ontario team over Brethren coupled with a loss by Valley Christian to Whittier Christian would clinch at least a share of the Olympic League championship for the Knights.

That is quite a lofty position for a team that had no spring football program and did not have a head coach for the current season until mid-July.

First-year head coach Laing Stevens took the reins at that point after serving as an assistant to former head coach Ed Werkhoven the previous season.

Laing's squad got off to a shaky start this fall with a season-opening loss to Rim of the World, but the Knights have reeled off five straight wins since that time.

"We looked bad that first game just as could be expected of a team with no spring football," said Stevens. "We really didn't get started until Hell Week (the week of conditioning prior to the first week of practice).

TONY ZENDEJAS . . .
Chino place kicker

"But we've been improving steadily since that first game and I don't think we've peaked yet. We played a very good game against Valley Christian (a 16-6 victory two weeks ago) and we were even better last week against Whittier Christian except for our blocking." The Knights disposed of the Whittier squad, 34-0.

Whittier features an offense led by Greg McClure, a tailback who had nearly 800 yards rushing in five games before running up against Ontario Christian. The Knights held the host Whittier squad to 47 yards on the ground.

Linebackers Bernie Mulder and Don Klien lead the Knight defense in tackles, followed by tackles Rod De Jager and Roger Sybesma and end Tom Lanting. Cornerback David Hooyenga has four interceptions to his credit and sophomore safety Adrian Kroes has three.

Offensively, quarterback Joe Hoog has 454 yards and five touchdowns passing and 197 yards and five TDs rushing. Fullback Pete Van Ginkle and tailback Gerrit Bosman have rushed for 285 and 261 yards, respectively.

OCHS's potent defense, which has allowed an average of seven points per game, will contend tonight with Brethren's Andre Pinesett, who has over 800 yards rushing for the season. Pinesett is currently hobbled a bit with a leg injury, but at 6-foot-2 and 210 pounds, is always a threat.

Tonight's Damien-Chino matchup should be the best game of the year in the San Antonio League. Both teams are well balanced — strong on both offense and defense — and neither is liable to make many mistakes.

Besides the attraction of such talented players as Chino tailback Mike Bertschinger and Damien quarterback Dan Marconi, the game will feature some of the best kickers around.

Chino place kicker Tony Zendejas owns the SAL's longest field goal of the year — a 52-yarder — and Damien punter Darrell Wilson is averaging 39.1 yards for 20 kicks.

Hulman was a familiar figure trackside during the month of Indy time trials and the race itself. Deeply suntanned, the tall, slender man of craggy face and aristocratic grey hair was a celebrity to many racing fans.

"I didn't really realize there were as many race fans and race bugs in the country as there really are," Hulman once remarked. "You get them all together and it makes a big crowd."

He also said, "Basically, I'm for living and let live. I wanted to accomplish as much as I could, but without being pushy at all and without hurting anyone along the way."

'Pack tennis team wins

Claremont High ran its San Antonio League girls tennis record to a spotless 7-0 Thursday afternoon by defeating Ganesha 18-0.

The host Wolfpack also won the J.V. match with the Giants' girls by an 8-0 score.

In a Hacienda League match, Bonita improved its girls tennis mark to 7-3 with a 11-7 victory over Royal Oak.

The Bearkittens' doubles team of Janet Hutchison and Sue Teter won all three of their matches to pace the win. Bonita also won the J.V. match, 14-4.

Pomona man wins tourney

A bench press tournament staged recently at the Pomona Valley YMCA produced some impressive lifts, as three Southland YMCAs were represented.

Winning the heavyweight division was Pomona's Ed Ringle Arellano, whose top lift was 445 pounds.

Bud Nelges and Ray Lopez from Anaheim teamed to win their weight divisions. Nelges won the 198 and under class, while Lopez took the 181 and under class.

Expos hire Sherry

MONTREAL (AP) — Norm Sherry, former manager of the California Angels, has joined the coaching staff of the Montreal Expos, the National League baseball club announced Thursday.

the 46-year-old Sherry becomes the fifth member of Manager Dick Williams' staff, joining Jim Brewer, Billy Garner, Mickey Vernon and Ozzie Virgil.

Sherry will run the bullpen and will spend considerable time working with Montreal's young catcher, Gary Carter.

Sherry spent five years as a player in the major leagues with the Los Angeles Dodgers and the New York Mets and managed eight seasons in the minors. He served one season as a scout and three more as a coach before becoming manager of the Angels in July 1976. He was replaced as manager of the Angels last July.

Montellano wins again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gonzalo Montellano of Bakersfield, Calif., maintained his unbeaten record Thursday night by knocking out Vicente Hernandez of Oakland, Calif. in 2:24 of the seventh round of a scheduled 10-rounder at the Olympic Auditorium.

It was the eighth knockout for the 19-year-old Montellano, who weighed 134½ pounds. He has a 12-0 record. Hernandez, 136 pounds, is now 19-7 with 10 knockouts.

Montellano was clearly ahead on points when the end came.

In another scheduled 10-rounder, Ernesto Rios, 119 pounds, of Mexicali, Mex., knocked out Tito Arzate, 116 pounds, of Mexico in 2:06 of the fourth round.

Rios dropped Arzate with a left hook before referee John Thomas halted the bout. Rios now has a 5-1 record with five knockouts. Arzate is 11-4 with six knockouts.

Cooke granted divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Kent Cooke, owner or part-owner of three professional sports teams, and his wife Barbara were granted a divorce Thursday by Superior Court Judge Marvin Freeman.

Cooke, 63, and Mrs. Cooke, 59, were married 42 years.

Cooke owns the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association and the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League. He is also majority owner of the Washington Redskins of the National Football League.

A court hearing to settle property, which Mrs. Cooke estimated at more than $100 million in her divorce petition, is set for next February.

Cooke did not attend Thursday's uncontested divorce proceeding.

McLendon takes lead

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Mac McLendon scrambled to a five-under-par 66 and a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $125,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

McLendon one-putted 12 times, needed only 10 strokes on the greens on the back nine at the tree-lined, 6,549-yard Pensacola Country Club and took the lead with his longest putt of the day, a 20-footer for birdie, on the 18th hole.

Pat Fitzsimons and determined rookie Jim Chancey are one stroke back at 67. Chancey, who has won only one check, joined the tour in June after gaining his playing rights in his sixth try at the PGA Tour school.

Hometown hero Jerry Pate, a winner last week and the pretourney favorite, was in a big group at 68, 3 under par and two off the lead. Also at that figure were Ken Still, Jim Simons, Danny Edwards, Bobby Walzel, Mark Pfeil, Steve Taylor, Jeff Mitchell, Bill Garrett and Bruce Fleisher.

Wolfpack harriers survive a scare

With Halloween nearing, Claremont High's cross-country team had a premature "scare" Thursday afternoon in San Antonio League action.

The Wolfpack runners just did nip Upland 28-29, thus keeping their unbeaten SAL mark intact. Claremont is now 5-0 in league with two dual meets remaining.

CHS coach Rich Martinez was without his number four runner, Scott Relf, who was scratched just before the meet because of the flu.

Martinez used his top freshman runner, Rick Heisel, in place of Relf in the varsity race, and Heisel ran with the leaders until twisting his ankle halfway through the three-mile Upland course.

However, the 'Pack still prevailed, as it received top efforts from Lock Breaux, George Waters and Chris Johnson.

Breaux won the race with a 15:11, while Waters was third and Johnson fourth. Upland's Gary Borbon nabbed second.

In other SAL action, Pomona and Garey kept close to Claremont with contrasting wins.

Pomona had to struggle to down Montclair, while Garey had a "day off" as Ganesha forfeited the varsity race to the Vikings.

Those results left both Pomona and Garey with 4-1 league marks.

Pomona's Ed Allen paced his team to victory with a winning time of 15:50. Pomona had dedicated the meet to Barbara "Bobby" Newton, the Cal Poly secretary who was slain earlier this week.

Another SAL meet saw Damien beat Chino 24-33. That win left Damien with a 2-3 SAL record. Tony Reyes of the Spartans topped all runners with a 15:26 clocking on the Chino course.

All local teams will be involved in the MSAC Invitational this week. When they return to SAL action on Thursday, Pomona will visit Garey, Damien will be at Claremont, Upland will be at Ganesha and Chino will travel to Montclair.

MSAC is site for harrier invitational

More than 250 high schools and 6,000 athletes are competing at Mt. San Antonio College this weekend in the nation's largest cross country invitational.

Boys' races begin Saturday morning at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. Girls' races and junior high races were scheduled to kick off the invitational this afternoon from 3 to 5:30 p.m.

Costa Mesa and Eisenhower are co-favorites in the boys' team sweepstakes race. Costa Mesa returns Joe Young and John Gerhardt from last year's CIF 3A championship team and has added Wyoming state champ Mark Charkey.

Eisenhower features the Assumma twins, Chuck and Frank. Frank won the state two-mile title last year and Chuck and finished fifth.

Cobras win

Several members of the Quad Cities Cobras track club placed high in a recent cross country meet at Long Beach State.

Chris Bronaugh covered the 4.1-mile course in 26:13 to win the 13-15-year-old girls' division race and teammate Debbie Lacher took third.

Cindy Pedilla ran first among 12-and-under girls in 26:48 and her little sister, Lisa Pedilla, placed second.

Manuel Aguilera took fourth place in the 12-and-under boys' division.

Upland protects lead

Upland High protected its San Antonio League in girls volleyball Thursday afternoon by beating visiting Pomona 15-3, 15-7.

Claremont stayed close in the SAL standings with a 15-3, 15-2 win over Ganesha, while in a Hacienda League match Bonita beat Royal Oak 15-11, 10-15, 15-5.

Upland pushed its SAL record to 8-1 with the win over Pomona. Pomona fell to a 2-7 SAL ledger.

Lynne Martucci, with her serving, Lisa Maraldo, with her shot-setting, and Patti Williams, with her all-around play, paced the Scot girls to the win.

Claremont played one of its best games of the year in beating a strong Ganesha team. The Wolfpack girls are now 7-2 in SAL action.

The play of Laura Meyers, Jo Ann Farinella and "Matt" Kaida paced Claremont. Miss Kaida is an exchange student from Japan.

Bonita evened its H.L. mark at 5-5 with the win over visiting Royal Oak.

Expos hire Sherry

MONTREAL (AP) — Norm Sherry, former manager of the California Angels, has joined the coaching staff of the Montreal Expos, the National League baseball club announced Thursday.

the 46-year-old Sherry becomes the fifth member of Manager Dick Williams' staff, joining Jim Brewer, Billy Garner, Mickey Vernon and Ozzie Virgil.

Sherry will run the bullpen and will spend considerable time working with Montreal's young catcher, Gary Carter.

Sherry spent five years as a player in the major leagues with the Los Angeles Dodgers and the New York Mets and managed eight seasons in the minors. He served one season as a scout and three more as a coach before becoming manager of the Angels in July 1976. He was replaced as manager of the Angels last July.

Montellano wins again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gonzalo Montellano of Bakersfield, Calif., maintained his unbeaten record Thursday night by knocking out Vicente Hernandez of Oakland, Calif. in 2:24 of the seventh round of a scheduled 10-rounder at the Olympic Auditorium.

It was the eighth knockout for the 19-year-old Montellano, who weighed 134½ pounds. He has a 12-0 record. Hernandez, 136 pounds, is now 19-7 with 10 knockouts.

Montellano was clearly ahead on points when the end came.

In another scheduled 10-rounder, Ernesto Rios, 119 pounds, of Mexicali, Mex., knocked out Tito Arzate, 116 pounds, of Mexico in 2:06 of the fourth round.

Rios dropped Arzate with a left hook before referee John Thomas halted the bout. Rios now has a 5-1 record with five knockouts. Arzate is 11-4 with six knockouts.

Cooke granted divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Kent Cooke, owner or part-owner of three professional sports teams, and his wife Barbara were granted a divorce Thursday by Superior Court Judge Marvin Freeman.

Cooke, 63, and Mrs. Cooke, 59, were married 42 years.

Cooke owns the Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association and the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League. He is also majority owner of the Washington Redskins of the National Football League.

A court hearing to settle property, which Mrs. Cooke estimated at more than $100 million in her divorce petition, is set for next February.

Cooke did not attend Thursday's uncontested divorce proceeding.

McLendon takes lead

PENSACOLA, Fla. — Mac McLendon scrambled to a five-under-par 66 and a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $125,000 Pensacola Open Golf Tournament.

McLendon one-putted 12 times, needed only 10 strokes on the greens on the back nine at the tree-lined, 6,549-yard Pensacola Country Club and took the lead with his longest putt of the day, a 20-footer for birdie, on the 18th hole.

Pat Fitzsimons and determined rookie Jim Chancey are one stroke back at 67. Chancey, who has won only one check, joined the tour in June after gaining his playing rights in his sixth try at the PGA Tour school.

Hometown hero Jerry Pate, a winner last week and the pretourney favorite, was in a big group at 68, 3 under par and two off the lead. Also at that figure were Ken Still, Jim Simons, Danny Edwards, Bobby Walzel, Mark Pfeil, Steve Taylor, Jeff Mitchell, Bill Garrett and Bruce Fleisher.

Wolfpack harriers survive a scare

With Halloween nearing, Claremont High's cross-country team had a premature "scare" Thursday afternoon in San Antonio League action.

The Wolfpack runners just did nip Upland 28-29, thus keeping their unbeaten SAL mark intact. Claremont is now 5-0 in league with two dual meets remaining.

CHS coach Rich Martinez was without his number four runner, Scott Relf, who was scratched just before the meet because of the flu.

Martinez used his top freshman runner, Rick Heisel, in place of Relf in the varsity race, and Heisel ran with the leaders until twisting his ankle halfway through the three-mile Upland course.

However, the 'Pack still prevailed, as it received top efforts from Lock Breaux, George Waters and Chris Johnson.

Breaux won the race with a 15:11, while Waters was third and Johnson fourth. Upland's Gary Borbon nabbed second.

In other SAL action, Pomona and Garey kept close to Claremont with contrasting wins.

Pomona had to struggle to down Montclair, while Garey had a "day off" as Ganesha forfeited the varsity race to the Vikings.

Those results left both Pomona and Garey with 4-1 league marks.

Pomona's Ed Allen paced his team to victory with a winning time of 15:50. Pomona had dedicated the meet to Barbara "Bobby" Newton, the Cal Poly secretary who was slain earlier this week.

Another SAL meet saw Damien beat Chino 24-33. That win left Damien with a 2-3 SAL record. Tony Reyes of the Spartans topped all runners with a 15:26 clocking on the Chino course.

All local teams will be involved in the MSAC Invitational this week. When they return to SAL action on Thursday, Pomona will visit Garey, Damien will be at Claremont, Upland will be at Ganesha and Chino will travel to Montclair.

MSAC is site for harrier invitational

More than 250 high schools and 6,000 athletes are competing at Mt. San Antonio College this weekend in the nation's largest cross country invitational.

Boys' races begin Saturday morning at 8:30 a.m. and continue until 3 p.m. Girls' races and junior high races were scheduled to kick off the invitational this afternoon from 3 to 5:30 p.m.

Costa Mesa and Eisenhower are co-favorites in the boys' team sweepstakes race. Costa Mesa returns Joe Young and John Gerhardt from last year's CIF 3A championship team and has added Wyoming state champ Mark Charkey.

Eisenhower features the Assumma twins, Chuck and Frank. Frank won the state two-mile title last year and Chuck and finished fifth.

Cobras win

Several members of the Quad Cities Cobras track club placed high in a recent cross country meet at Long Beach State.

Chris Bronaugh covered the 4.1-mile course in 26:13 to win the 13-15-year-old girls' division race and teammate Debbie Lacher took third.

Cindy Pedilla ran first among 12-and-under girls in 26:48 and her little sister, Lisa Pedilla, placed second.

Manuel Aguilera took fourth place in the 12-and-under boys' division.

Upland High protected its San Antonio League in girls volleyball Thursday afternoon by beating visiting Pomona 15-3, 15-7.

Claremont stayed close in the SAL standings with a 15-3, 15-2 win over Ganesha, while in a Hacienda League match Bonita beat Royal Oak 15-11, 10-15, 15-5.

Upland pushed its SAL record to 8-1 with the win over Pomona. Pomona fell to a 2-7 SAL ledger.

Lynne Martucci, with her serving, Lisa Maraldo, with her shot-setting, and Patti Williams, with her all-around play, paced the Scot girls to the win.

Claremont played one of its best games of the year in beating a strong Ganesha team. The Wolfpack girls are now 7-2 in SAL action.

The play of Laura Meyers, Jo Ann Farinella and "Matt" Kaida paced Claremont. Miss Kaida is an exchange student from Japan.

Bonita evened its H.L. mark at 5-5 with the win over visiting Royal Oak.

J.V. results Thursday saw Upland beat Pomona 15-10, 14-16, 15-10, Claremont best Ganesha 15-8, 15-12 and Bonita top Royal Oak 15-12, 15-7.

SAL and Hacienda volleyball action will resume on Tuesday. On that date, league leader Upland will be at Ganesha, Pomona will be at Montclair, Chino will visit Garey and Claremont will have a bye. Bonita will be at Ontario in a H.L. tilt.

Despite his unbounded enthusiasm, Sweeney's eight years at Washington State had produced more than twice as many losses as victories in the tough Pacific 8 Conference.

Fresno State had suffered three straight losing seasons and almost a decade of so-so football fortune in the less prestigious Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

"We spend a lot of time developing psychological attitudes and giving them a concept that will last beyond football years," he explains.

Sweeney's emphasis on positive thinking is displayed in a philosophical statement on his office wall which counsels the players that "what constitutes a loss is when a temporary setback becomes permanent."

The season's only unexpected temporary setback was at Montana State where Sweeney began his college coaching career. But he considers that loss "the screech in the orchestra that reminds you that it can happen and keeps you from going to sleep."

INSURED FOR A MILLION — The famous Batmobile car will be on display at the "World of Wheels" Custom Car Show, slated for Nov. 4-6 at Raincross Square in Riverside. Susan Kiger, the hostess for the show, sits atop the unique vehicle, which was used in the Batman TV series and is currently insured for a million dollars.

Puddingstone gets aeration system

New aeration equipment scheduled for installation at Puddingstone Reservoir in San Dimas today should greatly increase fish numbers and make the whole lake suitable year-around for trout and warmwater species such as bass, catfish and crappie, the Department of Fish and Game said.

The new device, built to replace an ineffective existing setup, will inject and diffuse compressed air to break up the lake's stratification — that is, its separation into distinct layers of water of different temperatures and oxygen content.

"Puddingstone stratifies during the summer months," explained DFG fishery biologist Chuck Marshall. "The lower levels of the lake have cool water and the upper levels, closer to air and sunlight, are warm and well aerated. But there is no mixing of these two layers of water.

"As a result, the deeper, cooler layer of water is almost totally lacking in the oxygen fish need, while the shallow upper layer has enough oxygen but is too warm for trout to survive the summer temperatures.

"These conditions sharply reduce living space for fish and ke game fish populations lower than they should be."

Marshall estimated that at present about 75 percent of the reservoir will not support fish life because of a lack of dissolved oxygen below the 25-foot level.

The new equipment being installed consists of a series of steel pipes two inches in diameter connected in a circular pattern with a perimeter of 80 feet. The pipes are drilled with one-eighth inch holes set one foot apart, making a total of 80 holes through which oxygen will be injected into the water.

The unit was built by inmates of the Prado Conservation Camp at Chino with materials supplied by the DFG.

The device will be installed near the dam at a depth of 65 feet. The aeration pipes will be about five feet off the lake bottom resting on steel pipe legs. The structure will be connected to an existing air compressor on shore with an output of 250 cubic feet per minute at a pressure of 1-0 100 pounds per square inch.

DFG diver-biologists Ken Aasen and Frank Henry will be supervising the setting of the structure on the lake bed.

The new aeration device will replace a plastic pipe that was installed for the same purpose ten years ago. That pipe is broken and has been operating with only minor effect for the past several years.

Only one-fourth of the 200-acre lake is now productive of fish, he said. When the new device is working the productive area will quadruple to include the entire lake.

Puddingstone presently produces about 10,000 pounds of fish annually, but with the new system it should produce about 40,000 pounds, Marshall estimated.

Cancer victim will get wish Sunday

SEATTLE (AP) — On Sunday, O.J. Simpson and Jim Zorn will meet Jimmy Gallegos, a 14-year-old who's fighting a losing battle with cancer.

Jimmy thinks it's an honor to meet two professional football standouts, but when it's over Simpson and Zorn may feel it is they who've been honored.

Jimmy's counselor at Washington Junior High in Yakima, Jerry Gibbons, says Jimmy is "just a gutsy kid."

In July, 1976, Jimmy's left arm was amputated at the shoulder. The diagnosis was cancer. The amputation was deemed necessary to buy Jimmy some time.

In November, 1976, Jimmy had part of one lung removed. He now has a tumor on the other lung and sometimes it is tough for him to get going in the mornings.

The biggest fear is that Jimmy will come down with pneumonia. Last August, he did have a siege, but he recovered and is back in class — and in athletics — at school.

The reason Jimmy will watch Sunday's National Football League game in the Kingdome between the Seattle Seahawks and the Buffalo Bills is simple. Gibbons learned that Jimmy recently expressed three wishes — to go deep sea fishing, to see a good football game and to meet O.J. Simpson, the Bill's superstar running back.

Gibbons wrote Don Andersen, the Seahawks' public relations director, about the football game and meeting Simpson. Andersen not only got Simpson, he added Zorn, the Seahawks' young quarterback.

Last weekend, Jimmy's mother, Kathy Gallegos, informed her son he could go to the Seattle-Buffalo game and meet Simpson.

Gibbons says Jimmy is a starter on the Washington Junior High football, baseball and basketball teams.

"There was nothing honorary about any of this," says Gibbons. "Jimmy earned his way on the teams. I'll tell you what kind of a young man he is. Less than a week after he had his arm amputated, he was on a playground playing baseball ...

"There is nothing he can't do in those sports. He wouldn't accept it if he couldn't make it on his own. Jimmy's never asked for anything special. He's just a super young man."

His mother admitted, "Jimmy always wanted to be a professional football player. That's why Sunday's game and meeting O.J. Simpson and Jim Zorn are so great."

The bottom line is that Jimmy Gallegos is losing his battle with cancer. There was some doubt he would make it to this weekend.

He knows his losing odds, has accepted them and will not let this interfere with competing in athletics, maintaining his school work and this week realizing a couple of his wishes.

"Jimmy considers himself lucky," his mother said.

Trophy trout fishery eyed at Big Bear Lake

The California Department of Fish and Game will plant 50,000 subcatchable rainbow trout in Big Bear Lake early in November to determine if something approaching a trophy trout fishery can be established in Southern California.

Alan Pickard, DFG fishery biologist at Big Bear, said the experiment was decided upon as a result of sampling early this spring that turned up a large number of rainbows in the one-pound class.

"We are not sure the one-pounders we found in Big Bear this spring were from Fish and Game hatcheries, but there is a strong possibility they were," Pickard said.

He explained that the DFG planted 230,460 catchable rainbows in the lake in 1976. These catchables averaged about a quarter-pound each. Additional plants of 23,000 pounds of one-pound trout were made by the Big Bear Park District.

"We lean to the opinion that the fish recovered in the spring were from DFG hatcheries," said Pickard." First, the park district had not started its yearly plants, and the one-pounders from the previous year should have been heavier."

Pickard said that he and fellow biologists planned to clip about 10,000 of the 50,000 trout so that next spring's sampling could give them some better idea of growth.

"The following year we plan to tag a certain number of fish to determine how long they remain at liberty," Pickard said.

"I hope the public will bear with us on this test and not be too disappointed bringing in a few small trout this fall," Pickard said. He explained that the trout would average seven to the pound and be about six or seven inches in length.

The number of fishermen using Big Bear shows a sharp decline during the winter and early spring, and the lake is usually frozen for several weeks.

Barring adverse weather, water or road conditions, the following lakes and streams, listed by county, will be restocked this week with catchable size rainbow trout from Department of Fish and Game hatcheries:

RESOLUTION OF INTENTION TO LEASE REAL PROPERTY FOR ACCESS ACROSS SCHOOL SITE "D"
RESOLVED that the Board of Trustees of the

INSURED FOR A MILLION — The famous Batmobile car will be on display at the "World of Wheels" Custom Car Show, slated for Nov. 4-6 at Raincross Square in Riverside. Susan Kiger, the hostess for the show, sits atop the unique vehicle, which was used in the Batman TV series and is currently insured for a million dollars.

Puddingstone gets aeration system

New aeration equipment scheduled for installation at Puddingstone Reservoir in San Dimas today should greatly increase fish numbers and make the whole lake suitable year-around for trout and warmwater species such as bass, catfish and crappie, the Department of Fish and Game said.

The new device, built to replace an ineffective existing setup, will inject and diffuse compressed air to break up the lake's stratification — that is, its separation into distinct layers of water of different temperatures and oxygen content.

"Puddingstone stratifies during the summer months," explained DFG fishery biologist Chuck Marshall. "The lower levels of the lake have cool water and the upper levels, closer to air and sunlight, are warm and well aerated. But there is no mixing of these two layers of water.

"As a result, the deeper, cooler layer of water is almost totally lacking in the oxygen fish need, while the shallow upper layer has enough oxygen but is too warm for trout to survive the summer temperatures.

"These conditions sharply reduce living space for fish and ke game fish populations lower than they should be."

Marshall estimated that at present about 75 percent of the reservoir will not support fish life because of a lack of dissolved oxygen below the 25-foot level.

The new equipment being installed consists of a series of steel pipes two inches in diameter connected in a circular pattern with a perimeter of 80 feet. The pipes are drilled with one-eighth inch holes set one foot apart, making a total of 80 holes through which oxygen will be injected into the water.

The unit was built by inmates of the Prado Conservation Camp at Chino with materials supplied by the DFG.

The device will be installed near the dam at a depth of 65 feet. The aeration pipes will be about five feet off the lake bottom resting on steel pipe legs. The structure will be connected to an existing air compressor on shore with an output of 250 cubic feet per minute at a pressure of 1-0 100 pounds per square inch.

DFG diver-biologists Ken Aasen and Frank Henry will be supervising the setting of the structure on the lake bed.

The new aeration device will replace a plastic pipe that was installed for the same purpose ten years ago. That pipe is broken and has been operating with only minor effect for the past several years.

Only one-fourth of the 200-acre lake is now productive of fish, he said. When the new device is working the productive area will quadruple to include the entire lake.

Puddingstone presently produces about 10,000 pounds of fish annually, but with the new system it should produce about 40,000 pounds, Marshall estimated.

Trophy trout fishery eyed at Big Bear Lake

The California Department of Fish and Game will plant 50,000 subcatchable rainbow trout in Big Bear Lake early in November to determine if something approaching a trophy trout fishery can be established in Southern California.

Alan Pickard, DFG fishery biologist at Big Bear, said the experiment was decided upon as a result of sampling early this spring that turned up a large number of rainbows in the one-pound class.

"We are not sure the one-pounders we found in Big Bear this spring were from Fish and Game hatcheries, but there is a strong possibility they were," Pickard said.

He explained that the DFG planted 230,460 catchable rainbows in the lake in 1976. These catchables average about a quarter-pound each. Additional plants of 23,000 pounds of one-pound trout were made by the Big Bear Park District.

"We lean to the opinion that the fish recovered in the spring were from DFG hatcheries," said Pickard. "First, the park district had not started its yearly plants, and the one-pounders from the previous year should have been heavier."

Pickard said that he and fellow biologists planned to clip about 10,000 of the 50,000 trout so that next spring's sampling could give them some better idea of growth.

"The following year we plan to tag a certain number of fish to determine how long they remain at liberty," Pickard said.

"I hope the public will bear with us on this test and not be too disappointed bringing in a few small trout this fall," Pickard said. He explained that the trout would average seven to the pound and be about six or seven inches in length.

The number of fishermen using Big Bear shows a sharp decline during the winter and early spring, and the lake is usually frozen for several weeks.

Cancer victim will get wish Sunday

SEATTLE (AP) — On Sunday, O.J. Simpson and Jim Zorn will meet Jimmy Gallegos, a 14-year-old who's fighting a losing battle with cancer.

Jimmy thinks it's an honor to meet two professional football standouts, but when it's over Simpson and Zorn may feel it is they who've been honored.

Jimmy's counselor at Washington Junior High in Yakima, Jerry Gibbons, says Jimmy is "just a gutsy kid."

In July, 1976, Jimmy's left arm was amputated at the shoulder. The diagnosis was cancer. The amputation was deemed necessary to buy Jimmy some time.

In November, 1976, Jimmy had part of one lung removed. He now has a tumor on the other lung and sometimes it is tough for him to get going in the mornings.

The biggest fear is that Jimmy will come down with pneumonia. Last August, he did have a siege, but he recovered and is back in class — and in athletics — at school.

The reason Jimmy will watch Sunday's National Football League game in the Kingdome between the Seattle Seahawks and the Buffalo Bills is simple. Gibbons learned that Jimmy recently expressed three wishes — to go deep sea fishing, to see a good football game and to meet O.J. Simpson, the Bill's superstar running back.

Gibbons wrote Don Andersen, the Seahawks' public relations director, about the football game and meeting Simpson. Andersen not only got Simpson, he added Zorn, the Seahawks' young quarterback.

Last weekend, Jimmy's mother, Kathy Gallegos, informed her son he could go to the Seattle-Buffalo game and meet Simpson.

Gibbons says Jimmy is a starter on the Washington Junior High football, baseball and basketball teams.

"There was nothing honorary about any of this," says Gibbons. "Jimmy earned his way on the teams. I'll tell you what kind of a young man he is. Less than a week after he had his arm amputated, he was on a playground playing baseball ...

"There is nothing he can't do in those sports. He wouldn't accept it if he couldn't make it on his own. Jimmy's never asked for anything special. He's just a super young man."

His mother admitted, "Jimmy always wanted to be a professional football player. That's why Sunday's game and meeting O.J. Simpson and Jim Zorn are so great."

The bottom line is that Jimmy Gallegos is losing his battle with cancer. There was some doubt he would make it to this weekend.

He knows his losing odds, has accepted them and will not let this interfere with competing in athletics, maintaining his school work and this week realizing a couple of his wishes.

"Jimmy considers himself lucky," his mother said.

Money order industry laws found wanting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last January, Michael Anne Thomas sent in her car payment in the form of a $125 money order purchased with cash from the Universal Money Order Company here. It bounced.

Money orders paid for in cash aren't supposed to bounce. But more than $5 million worth of UMO money orders did just that when the firm's parent company ran into financial difficulties and collapsed in New York.

"They sent it back as if it were a check, marked 'insufficient funds,' " the 23-year-old typist recalls. "I took it down to Universal, filled out a form and they explained that it would be a couple of weeks before I heard from anyone. I never did. I went to the store where I bought the money order and filled out another form. I never heard from them either."

Ms. Thomas, who prefers the feminist designation, and more than 200,000 other UMO creditors aren't likely to hear from anyone in the near future, says state Supt. of Banks Carl Schmitt, who has been trying for 10 months to get refunds for Californians.

"They're sitting there with a piece of paper that's not worth anything today but will be worth something when there is a distribution," says Schmitt. "We don't know if it will be 20 cents on the dollar or 80 cents on the dollar at this point. The holders should sit there and hang onto the money orders. They'll have to make other arrangements in the interim."

Straightening out the finances of UMO, which sold money orders in 46 states, has been a tremendously complicated matter, according to Schmitt, who says repayment of Ms. Thomas and other creditors may not occur for another six months.

Schmitt moved quickly to seize UMO's California assets here after the collapse but was stymied by the fact that the company had filed federal bankruptcy proceedings in New York.

"I closed UMO, took their assets, ended up in bankruptcy court and learned all about federal supremacy," Schmitt said, explaining that federal law takes precedence over state claims in a bankruptcy proceeding. UMO's receiver, the man who guides the company's affairs while it is in bankruptcy, sued Schmitt to recover UMO's California assets and won.

"So at this point, the cash is under the jurisdiction of the federal bankruptcy court," Schmitt said. "That means that the money we tried to button up for payment back to the citizens of California will now be used to pay back creditors across the country."

The UMO debacle led Schmitt to review state law covering the $4 billion California money order industry and, as might be expected, he found it wanting.

"California law is the strongest in the country, but it turned out to be totally inadequate," Schmitt said. "We've now got a total picture of the money order industry in California and we're also trying to come up with remedial legislation so that this won't happen in the future."

Money orders are sold at more than 15,000 locations in California. Some are issued by private companies like UMO, but others are sold through banks. Money orders are also available through the Postal Service.

Schmitt recommends money orders that are "quasi-government backed," such as those issued by banks, savings and loans and the Postal Service because the issuer, not the sales outlet, is ultimately responsible for the money order.

Schmitt has also scheduled a symposium Dec. 8 and 9 in San Francisco on money orders and traveler's checks for state and federal regulatory officials, congressional aides and other concerned parties. He is also pushing for passage of AB1821, a bill that would put new restrictions on issuers of money orders.

"I feel very strongly that the structure of this industry must be corrected to protect the public," he says, adding that federal legislation may be needed because many issuers operate in a number of states.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market showed signs of staggering Friday after two days on the upbeat. Prices of New York Stock Exchange issues were mixed after the first two hours of lackluster trading.

Observers suggested that the market's rebound of the past two days, which has been described as a technical reaction to its prolonged slide, may be approaching its end.

A report on the nation's economy by the Commerce Department didn't help either. The department said the index of leading economic indicators in September was up 0.3 per cent, somewhat less than some pulse takers had figured the increase would be. In August the index sported a 1.4 per cent increase, revised upward from the earlier figure.

Against this background, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.52 point to 818.09 shortly before noon. Advances, however, led declines by more than 100 issues, 573 to 468, among the 1,565 crossing the tape.

Apparently discounted by investors was a Federal Reserve Board report showing a drop of $1.1 billion in the money supply, a development that on other occasions has inspired buying. Drops in the money supply mean diminished pressure on the Fed toward credit tightening, which is disliked by Wall Street.

Leading the active list was Schlitz Brewing Co., off ½ to 11. Second was General Motors, also off ½ to 67, followed by Dow Chemical, up ¼ to 28⅜,

Mobil Corp raised its quarterly dividend 10 cents. The issue was up ⅜ to 60.

Fuqua Industries boosted its dividend a penny. The stock was up ¼ to 8⅜.

Aetna Life & Casualty was off ¼ to 33⅛. The company announced significantly higher third-quarter earnings.

Prices were slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Leading the active list was Husky Oil, unchanged at 21⅞, followed by Media General "A," also unchanged at 14. Houston Oil was third, off ¼ to 28.

Denied visa

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — An American pilot who flew refugees to the West from Czechoslovakia two years ago has been refused permission to stay in Austria, his attorney said today.

Lawyer Klaus Goebel said Austrian authorities issued a decree against Barry Meeker, 36, a Hartford, Conn., native, under pressure from Czech authorities.

Goebel said Meeker, a professional helicopter pilot, maintains a residence in Munich but travels frequently to Austria and other Western European countries. The ruling presumably means he will not be allowed to return to Austria.

"Good relations with a neighbor state are probably more in the interest of humanity than a single spectacular operation which can lead to the deterioration of relations," Goebel said.

Taxicab costs more than stock exchange seat

NEW YORK (AP) — Before you put all the money Aunt Esther left you into some hot stock, consider this Wall Street portent: it now costs more to sit your own taxicab in New York City than to own your very own New York Stock Exchange seat.

From a 1969 high of $515,500, the price of the prestigious Big Board seat was driven down Wednesday to a new low of $35,500.

At the same time, the fair market price of a taxi medallion — the limited number of cab licenses issued by the city — shot up to a record $48,000.

Earlier this week, a seat on the less prestigious American Stock Exchange was sold for the bargain basement price of $21,000 — or two Amex seats for the price of one taxi medallion with something left over for lunch at Delmonico's.

How did all of this happen? The constitution of the exchange limits the number of seats to 1,366. Similarly, the number of taxi medallions was limited to 11,787 in 1937 to clear away some of the 30,000 taxicabs that clogged city streets.

The law of supply and demand sent the price of taxi medallions skyrocketing 14 percent since March when the city permitted a 13 per cent fare increase. Meanwhile, the price of a seat on the exchange has plummeted to reflect a depressed stock market.

If a person wants to buy a medallion he must join a waiting list kept by authorized brokers who sell medallions when they are put up for sale. The current down payment is $20,000.

To buy a seat on the New York Stock Exchange is a lengthy process of petitioning the Big Board's admissions office, passing a written examination, undergoing a background check, and putting down 20 percent of the seat's price. Like stocks themselves, the seats are sold through the exchange according to "bid" and "asked" prices.

Swap meet in sky

SAN DIEGO (AP) — California swap meets are generally held in drive-in theaters, shopping center parking lots or stadiums.

But Leonard "Ski" Kaine holds his 30,000 feet above the ground.

Kaine, a 41-year-old pilot for Pacific Southwest Airlines, starts his flights between San Diego and San Francisco with the usual intercom announcements about his Boeing 727's speed and altitude.

Then he changes the subject.

"Welcome to Ski's swap shop in the sky," Kaine says, explaining that the high-altitude operation is designed to raise $1 million for the Heart Fund.

"You know, everyone knows somebody with a heart problem and I'm no different," Kaine tells his passengers. "My dad died from a heart attack, which has got to be the biggest killer in the country."

He then explains his plans.

"Everybody's got a white elephant," he says, and he suggests they give them to him.

So far, Kaine says, he has been given, swapped or traded for a $1,350 fur coat, a $150 Persian rug, two San Francisco 49ers season tickets, four pairs of skis and $25 worth of wine.

One elderly lady, who said she didn't have a white elephant, donated a $5 hippopotamus bank.

Next Valentine's Day, he hopes to raise his million for the Heart Fund by raffling it all off.

Among things he'll be putting on the block then are a $1,000 scholarship to a fashion school, two cars, a trip to New York, a Shetland pony and a pair of contact lenses with a glass eye thrown in.

The pilot has formed a nonprofit corporation — the Golden Rule Society — to handle the items and keep track of money. He operates it out of his home, with the enthusiastic help of his wife, Anne, and their four children.

PSA officials endorse Kaine's charity project.

"I think we're involved to the extent that the company allows Ski to do it," said Don Simonian, assistant to PSA President William Shimp. "We agree with the principle and think it's a noteworthy thing."

Custer trial on TV

The Hallmark Hall of Fame will present "The Court-Martial of George Armstrong Custer," starring Brian Keith, Ken Howard, Blythe Danner and James Olson, on NBC/TV, Dec. 1 as the second drama of the series' 27th season.

The special will number 125 on the Hall of Fame, television's longest-running dramatic series. "Custer" is a production of Warner Brothers Television in association with Norman Rosemont Productions.

Norman Rosemont is producer, Tom Belcher is associate producer and Glen Jordan is director. The special was adapted by John Gay from Douglas C. Jones' best-selling novel of the same title. PARADE OF STARS — This lineup of stars will soon be seen in the latest disaster film produced by Irwin Allen. "The Swarm" deals with a fight against a mutant species of African killer bees. From left are Bradford Dillman, Henry Fonda, Michael Caine, Katherine Ross, Allen, Olivia De Haviland, Fred MacMurray, Richard Widmark and Richard Chamberlain.

Concert by Big Band scheduled at MSAC

The Toshiko Akiyoski/Lew Tabackin Big Band will present a concert in the Social Science Auditorium at Mt. San Antonio College at 8 p.m. Nov. 5. Tickets are $4 general, $2 for students.

Led by composer and pianist Toshiko Akiyoshi, and featuring her husband Lew Tabackin as principal soloist, the band continues the great Duke Ellington tradition of using each musician's individual sound and style as an integral part of the ensemble's musical identity.

Miss Akiyoski is the first woman in jazz history to compose and arrange an entire library of music and then organize her own orchestra to interpret it. She takes the color of her top-flight musicians and infuses it into music flavored with the best of the swing era, the Orient and today's progressive sounds.

Tabackin leads the solo sections with a uniquely personal style on both tenor saxophone and flute. He is popularly known for his recent contributions to Doc Severinsen's Tonight show orchestra and the Bob Rosengarden Dick Cavett Show orchestra.

FAMILY SCENE — Toshiko Akiyoski and Lew Tabackin will lead their big band in a concert in the Social Science Auditorium of Mt. San Antonio College at 8 p.m. Nov. 5. The husband-wife team has produced three hit record albums.

Money order industry laws found wanting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last January, Michael Anne Thomas sent in her car payment in the form of a $125 money order purchased with cash from the Universal Money Order Company here. It bounced.

Money orders paid for in cash aren't supposed to bounce. But more than $5 million worth of UMO money orders did just that when the firm's parent company ran into financial difficulties and collapsed in New York.

"They sent it back as if it were a check, marked 'insufficient funds,' " the 23-year-old typist recalls. "I took it down to Universal, filled out a form and they explained that it would be a couple of weeks before I heard from anyone. I never did. I went to the store where I bought the money order and filled out another form. I never heard from them either."

Ms. Thomas, who prefers the feminist designation, and more than 200,000 other UMO creditors aren't likely to hear from anyone in the near future, says state Supt. of Banks Carl Schmitt, who has been trying for 10 months to get refunds for Californians.

"They're sitting there with a piece of paper that's not worth anything today but will be worth something when there is a distribution," says Schmitt. "We don't know if it will be 20 cents on the dollar or 80 cents on the dollar at this point. The holders should sit there and hang onto the money orders. They'll have to make other arrangements in the interim."

Straightening out the finances of UMO, which sold money orders in 46 states, has been a tremendously complicated matter, according to Schmitt, who says repayment of Ms. Thomas and other creditors may not occur for another six months.

Schmitt moved quickly to seize UMO's California assets here after the collapse but was stymied by the fact that the company had filed federal bankruptcy proceedings in New York.

"I closed UMO, took their assets, ended up in bankruptcy court and learned all about federal supremacy," Schmitt said, explaining that federal law takes precedence over state claims in a bankruptcy proceeding. UMO's receiver, the man who guides the company's affairs while it is in bankruptcy, sued Schmitt to recover UMO's California assets and won.

"So at this point, the cash is under the jurisdiction of the federal bankruptcy court," Schmitt said. "That means that the money we tried to button up for payment back to the citizens of California will now be used to pay back creditors across the country."

The UMO debacle led Schmitt to review state law covering the $4 billion California money order industry and, as might be expected, he found it wanting.

"California law is the strongest in the country, but it turned out to be totally inadequate," Schmitt said. "We've now got a total picture of the money order industry in California and we're also trying to come up with remedial legislation so that this won't happen in the future."

Money orders are sold at more than 15,000 locations in California. Some are issued by private companies like UMO, but others are sold through banks. Money orders are also available through the Postal Service.

Schmitt recommends money orders that are "quasi-government backed," such as those issued by banks, savings and loans and the Postal Service because the issuer, not the sales outlet, is ultimately responsible for the money order.

Schmitt has also scheduled a symposium Dec. 8 and 9 in San Francisco on money orders and traveler's checks for state and federal regulatory officials, congressional aides and other concerned parties. He is also pushing for passage of AB1821, a bill that would put new restrictions on issuers of money orders.

"I feel very strongly that the structure of this industry must be corrected to protect the public," he says, adding that federal legislation may be needed because many issuers operate in a number of states.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market showed signs of staggering Friday after two days on the upbeat. Prices of New York Stock Exchange issues were mixed after the first two hours of lackluster trading.

Observers suggested that the market's rebound of the past two days, which has been described as a technical reaction to its prolonged slide, may be approaching its end.

A report on the nation's economy by the Commerce Department didn't help either. The department said the index of leading economic indicators in September was up 0.3 per cent, somewhat less than some pulse takers had figured the increase would be. In August the index sported a 1.4 per cent increase, revised upward from the earlier figure.

Against this background, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.52 point to 818.09 shortly before noon. Advances, however. led declines by more than 100 issues, 573 to 468, among the 1,565 crossing the tape.

Apparently discounted by investors was a Federal Reserve Board report showing a drop of $1.1 billion in the money supply, a development that on other occasions has inspired buying. Drops in the money supply mean diminished pressure on the Fed toward credit tightening, which is disliked by Wall Street.

Leading the active list was Schlitz Brewing Co., off ½ to 11. Second was General Motors, also off ½ to 67, followed by Dow Chemical, up ¼ to 28⅜,

Mobil Corp raised its quarterly dividend 10 cents. The issue was up ⅜ to 60.

Fuqua Industries boosted its dividend a penny. The stock was up ¼ to 8⅜.

Aetna Life & Casualty was off ¼ to 33⅛. The company announced significantly higher third-quarter earnings.

Prices were slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Leading the active list was Husky Oil, unchanged at 21⅞, followed by Media General "A," also unchanged at 14. Houston Oil was third, off ¼ to 28.

Denied visa

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — An American pilot who flew refugees to the West from Czechoslovakia two years ago has been refused permission to stay in Austria, his attorney said today.

Lawyer Klaus Goebel said Austrian authorities issued a decree against Barry Meeker, 36, a Hartford, Conn., native, under pressure from Czech authorities.

Goebel said Meeker, a professional helicopter pilot, maintains a residence in Munich but travels frequently to Austria and other Western European countries. The ruling presumably means he will not be allowed to return to Austria.

"Good relations with a neighbor state are probably more in the interest of humanity than a single spectacular operation which can lead to the deterioration of relations," Goebel said.

Taxicab costs more than stock exchange seat

NEW YORK (AP) — Before you put all the money Aunt Esther left you into some hot stock, consider this Wall Street portent: it now costs more to sit your own taxicab in New York City than to own your very own New York Stock Exchange seat.

From a 1969 high of $515,500, the price of the prestigious Big Board seat was driven down Wednesday to a new low of $35,500.

At the same time, the fair market price of a taxi medallion — the limited number of cab licenses issued by the city — shot up to a record $48,000.

Earlier this week, a seat on the less prestigious American Stock Exchange was sold for the bargain basement price of $21,000 — or two Amex seats for the price of one taxi medallion with something left over for lunch at Delmonico's.

How did all of this happen? The constitution of the exchange limits the number of seats to 1,366. Similarly, the number of taxi medallions was limited to 11,787 in 1937 to clear away some of the 30,000 taxicabs that clogged city streets.

The law of supply and demand sent the price of taxi medallions skyrocketing 14 percent since March when the city permitted a 13 per cent fare increase. Meanwhile, the price of a seat on the exchange has plummeted to reflect a depressed stock market.

If a person wants to buy a medallion he must join a waiting list kept by authorized brokers who sell medallions when they are put up for sale. The current down payment is $20,000.

To buy a seat on the New York Stock Exchange is a lengthy process of petitioning the Big Board's admissions office, passing a written examination, undergoing a background check, and putting down 20 percent of the seat's price. Like stocks themselves, the seats are sold through the exchange according to "bid" and "asked" prices.

'Damnation Alley'

Adventure film a misadventure

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

The holocaust has come and gone and of the few surviving persons on the earth's atomic-littered surface, a sizable chunk are military men living in silos and underground fortresses from which atomic missles were launched.

It is their story which the highly touted new adventure film, "Damnation Alley" purports to tell.

Three soldiers (George Peppard, Paul Winfield and Jan-Michael Vincent) are carrying on their lives at a missle base apparently located somewhere in the Mojave Desert despite fierce electrical storms and mutant scorpions (the size of German Shepherds) that have developed as a result of Armageddon.

An explosion rips through the base killing all but our heroes who, in true military style, decide to set out for Albany, N. Y., the last place from which any radio broadcasts have been received.

Their transportation is an ultra modern military transport vehicle — the true star of the show — called a Landmaster; part truck, tank, and submarine with particular talents for finding its way through the thick layers of radio active fallout.

To get to Albany, the group must travel a carefully charted course through areas of intense radiation which Peppard aptly names "damnation alley". They do not pass go or collect $200.

Their pilgrimmage includes the following adventures:

—A harrowing electrical storm.

—The discovery of a French songstress in the burnt out remains of a Las Vegas gambling emporium.

—A confrontation with man-eating cockroaches (average size) which quickly devour Winfield speeding his exit from the film. This occurs in Salt Lake City.

—Another confrontation with a group of good old boys who try to take over our heroes' vehicle at a deserted gas station. This leads to bloodshed.

—Finally, another harrowing storm and we see Vincent racing on a motorcycle into the Bohemian environs of greater Albany; a land of green countrysides and grazing horses; Utopia and the end.

Certainly "Damnation Alley" suffers from an array of unusually bad and often laughable special effects; one of the problems that is bound to arise for most low budget science fiction films in the post "Star Wars" era.

But more than that, the film boasts a truly weak and cliche-ridden script. This is somewhat surprising as it claims in its credits to be based on a story by sci-fi writer Roger Zelazny, a man of no small talent who won for himself a modest amount of respect even among the ivory tower set.

It is a film of the sort in which the acting is neither good nor bad, but merely present. Winfield uttering doggerel about the meaningless of life after the war; Vincent remaining footloose and fancy free charging about on his motorcycle and Peppard maintaining the strict bearing of the career military man have all been given such little to work with that one wonders if the film isn't one of those items sold from producer to producer for tax losses and only brought out now as a result of the success of "Star Wars."

"Damnation Alley" may not be the worst picture this year, but it will certainly hold the title until a very strong contender comes along to take its place. Despite the massive advertising campaign mounted in its behalf, the ugliest provinces in damnation alley belong, in the final analysis, to the audience.

Lion Country salutes scouts

Lion Country Safari will hold its annual "Scout Days," welcoming all scouts and their families, during November.

An annual event, "Scout Days" will offer discount admission rate of $2.50 per person to groups of 10 or more scouts and their guests throughout November. Group reservations must be made 48 hours in advance by telephoning Lion Country Safari's group sales department at 837-1200. Reservations can be obtained by filling out handy mail order forms available at all council offices.

Scouts may find themselves on radio or TV during their visit to Lion Country, since the Pepsi Challenge Booth is scheduled to come to the entertainment center in November.

The one-price admission entitles visitors to tour the park's 240-acre wildlife preserve where hundreds of wild animals roam freely in their natural habitats, and to enjoy all the mechanical rides, shows and wildlife exhibits in the park's Safari Camp entertainment center.

Winter hours will be in effect for November. The park opens at 9:45 a.m., rain or shine, with the last car admitted to the wildlife preserve at 3:30 p.m.

Vestibules

The introduction of vestibules in the late 1880s allowed passengers for the first time to walk safely from one railroad car to the next.

Swap meet in sky

SAN DIEGO (AP) — California swap meets are generally held in drive-in theaters, shopping center parking lots or stadiums.

But Leonard "Ski" Kaine holds his 30,000 feet above the ground.

Kaine, a 41-year-old pilot for Pacific Southwest Airlines, starts his flights between San Diego and San Francisco with the usual intercom announcements about his Boeing 727's speed and altitude.

Then he changes the subject.

"Welcome to Ski's swap shop in the sky," Kaine says, explaining that the high-altitude operation is designed to raise $1 million for the Heart Fund.

"You know, everyone knows somebody with a heart problem and I'm no different," Kaine tells his passengers. "My dad died from a heart attack, which has got to be the biggest killer in the country."

He then explains his plans.

"Everybody's got a white elephant," he says, and he suggests they give them to him.

So far, Kaine says, he has been given, swapped or traded for a $1,350 fur coat, a $150 Persian rug, two San Francisco 49ers season tickets, four pairs of skis and $25 worth of wine.

One elderly lady, who said she didn't have a white elephant, donated a $5 hippopotamus bank.

Next Valentine's Day, he hopes to raise his million for the Heart Fund by raffling it all off.

Among things he'll be putting on the block then are a $1,000 scholarship to a fashion school, two cars, a trip to New York, a Shetland pony and a pair of contact lenses with a glass eye thrown in.

The pilot has formed a nonprofit corporation — the Golden Rule Society — to handle the items and keep track of money. He operates it out of his home, with the enthusiastic help of his wife, Anne, and their four children.

PSA officials endorse Kaine's charity project.

"I think we're involved to the extent that the company allows Ski to do it," said Don Simonian, assistant to PSA President William Shimp. "We agree with the principle and think it's a noteworthy thing."

Custer trial on TV

The Hallmark Hall of Fame will present "The Court-Martial of George Armstrong Custer," starring Brian Keith, Ken Howard, Blythe Danner and James Olson, on NBC/TV, Dec. 1 as the second drama of the series' 27th season.

The special will number 125 on the Hall of Fame, television's longest-running dramatic series. "Custer" is a production of Warner Brothers Television in association with Norman Rosemont Productions.

Norman Rosemont is producer, Tom Belcher is associate producer and Glen Jordan is director. The special was adapted by John Gay from Douglas C. Jones' best-selling novel of the same title. It is based on the premise that Custer survived the Battle at Little Big Horn which resulted in the deaths of three U.S. Cavalry battalions.

Dance program slated at P.C.

The Mixed Motion Dance Company will perform in the Pendleton Dance Studio Theater at Pomona College at 8 p.m. next Friday. Admission is free.

The program, which culminates the company's residency at Pomona College, will include three premieres: "Cross Counry," choreographed for the company by former Farber member, June Finch; and two new pieces choreographed by Martha Partridge and Donna Sternberg, with original musical scores composed and performed by the duet. Other program selections include "Oregon Songs," a suite danced to the music of the group Oregon; "Ballad," and a theater piece based on "Waiting for Godot."

Concert by Big Band scheduled at MSAC

The Toshiko Akiyoski/Lew Tabackin Big Band will present a concert in the Social Science Auditorium at Mt. San Antonio College at 8 p.m. Nov. 5. Tickets are $4 general, $2 for students.

Led by composer and pianist Toshiko Akiyoshi, and featuring her husband Lew Tabackin as principal soloist, the band continues the great Duke Ellington tradition of using each musician's individual sound and style as an integral part of the ensemble's musical identity.

Miss Akiyoski is the first woman in jazz history to compose and arrange an entire library of music and then organize her own orchestra to interpret it. She takes the color of her top-flight musicians and infuses it into music flavored with the best of the swing era, the Orient and today's progressive sounds.

Tabackin leads the solo sections with a uniquely personal style on both tenor saxophone and flute. He is popularly known for his recent contributions to Doc Severinsen's Tonight show orchestra and the Bob Rosengarden Dick Cavett Show orchestra.

FAMILY SCENE — Toshiko Akiyoski and Lew Tabackin will lead their big band in a concert in the Social Science Auditorium of Mt. San Antonio College at 8 p.m. Nov. 5. The husband-wife team has produced three hit record albums.

'Damnation Alley'

Adventure film a misadventure

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

The holocaust has come and gone and of the few surviving persons on the earth's atomic-littered surface, a sizable chunk are military men living in silos and underground fortresses from which atomic missles were launched.

It is their story which the highly touted new adventure film, "Damnation Alley" purports to tell.

Three soldiers (George Peppard, Paul Winfield and Jan-Michael Vincent) are carrying on their lives at a missle base apparently located somewhere in the Mojave Desert despite fierce electrical storms and mutant scorpions (the size of German Shepherds) that have developed as a result of Armageddon.

An explosion rips through the base killing all but our heroes who, in true military style, decide to set out for Albany, N. Y., the last place from which any radio broadcasts have been received.

Their transportation is an ultra modern military transport vehicle — the true star of the show — called a Landmaster; part truck, tank, and submarine with particular talents for finding its way through the thick layers of radio active fallout.

To get to Albany, the group must travel a carefully charted course through areas of intense radiation which Peppard aptly names "damnation alley". They do not pass go or collect $200.

Their pilgrimmage includes the following adventures:

—A harrowing electrical storm.

—The discovery of a French songstress in the burnt out remains of a Las Vegas gambling emporium.

—A confrontation with man-eating cockroaches (average size) which quickly devour Winfield speeding his exit from the film. This occurs in Salt Lake City.

—Another confrontation with a group of good old boys who try to take over our heroes' vehicle at a deserted gas station. This leads to bloodshed.

—Finally, another harrowing storm and we see Vincent racing on a motorcycle into the Bohemian environs of greater Albany; a land of green countrysides and grazing horses; Utopia and the end.

Certainly "Damnation Alley" suffers from an array of unusually bad and often laughable special effects; one of the problems that is bound to arise for most low budget science fiction films in the post "Star Wars" era.

But more than that, the film boasts a truly weak and cliche-ridden script. This is somewhat surprising as it claims in its credits to be based on a story by sci-fi writer Roger Zelazny, a man of no small talent who won for himself a modest amount of respect even among the ivory tower set.

It is a film of the sort in which the acting is neither good nor bad, but merely present. Winfield uttering doggerel about the meaningless of life after the war; Vincent remaining footloose and fancy free charging about on his motorcycle and Peppard maintaining the strict bearing of the career military man have all been given such little to work with that one wonders if the film isn't one of those items sold from producer to producer for tax losses and only brought out now as a result of the success of "Star Wars."

"Damnation Alley" may not be the worst picture this year, but it will certainly hold the title until a very strong contender comes along to take its place. Despite the massive advertising campaign mounted in its behalf, the ugliest provinces in damnation alley belong, in the final analysis, to the audience.

Musical slated at S.B.

The San Bernardino Civic Light Opera will present the Broadway musical hit, "The Pajama Game," starring television funny man Soupy Sales, at the California Theater of Performing Arts at 8:15 p.m. Nov. 11-19.

Tickets are on sale at the Ontario Chamber of Commerce, Mutual agencies and the CLO box office.

The rollicking musical, which won critical acclaim during its long Broadway run, includes such hit songs as "Hey There," "Hernando's Hideaway," "Steam Heat" and "Once-a-year Day."

Tickets are also available for the CLO's productions of the Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein musical masterpiece, "Show Boat," Feb. 17 through 25, and for "Fiddler On The Roof," winner of 10 Tony Awards, which will be presented May 5 through May 13.

Lion Country salutes scouts

Lion Country Safari will hold its annual "Scout Days," welcoming all scouts and their families, during November.

An annual event, "Scout Days" will offer discount admission rate of $2.50 per person to groups of 10 or more scouts and their guests throughout November. Group reservations must be made 48 hours in advance by telephoning Lion Country Safari's group sales department at 837-1200. Reservations can be obtained by filling out handy mail order forms available at all council offices.

Scouts may find themselves on radio or TV during their visit to Lion Country, since the Pepsi Challenge Booth is scheduled to come to the entertainment center in November.

The one-price admission entitles visitors to tour the park's 240-acre wildlife preserve where hundreds of wild animals roam freely in their natural habitats, and to enjoy all the mechanical rides, shows and wildlife exhibits in the park's Safari Camp entertainment center.

Winter hours will be in effect for November. The park opens at 9:45 a.m., rain or shine, with the last car admitted to the wildlife preserve at 3:30 p.m.

Vestibules

The introduction of vestibules in the late 1880s allowed passengers for the first time to walk safely from one railroad car to the next.

Peggy and Wilbur Espiau

Recall restaurant history

If you want to examine the history of the restaurant business in the Pomona Valley, it is essential that you start with Wilbur Espiau, proprietor of Espiau's Restaurant on West Holt Avenue in Pomona, a genial gnome of a man who has been around as long as the San Gabriel Mountains and turned a fruit stand into a million-dollar-a-year Mexican-American restaurant and cantina.

EARLY IN THE VALLEY — Peggy and Wilbur Espiau, shown at their restaurant at 1542 W. Holt Ave., Pomona, have been serving Mexican-American food for more than three decades.

It all started with Pierre Espiau, his grandfather, born in France and educated in oenology. He came to Pomona and opened a saloon on First Street, started a winery, and raised oranges. When beer became legal in 1933 after Prohibition, he took over his fruit stand and sold beer, sandwiches and light groceries. The little roadstand soon began offering tacos and enchiladas and finally burgeoned into a first Mexican-American restaurant.

"The Taco Kitchen in La Verne is the oldest Mexican food place in the valley," Espaiu said, "but we're second. The St. Charles Grill (now the Alpine Haus) has the oldest licensed premises in the area, but they've changed hands."

Back in the earlier times, Holt Avenue was the main route between Los Angeles and San Bernardino and Palm Springs, the traffic was heavy and Espiau's business flourished. There was a sharp curve at the corner by Espiau's, and he recalls one time a truck loaded with melons turned over. He went out and offered an insurance agent $5 for the load. It was accepted and he sold the entire cargo of slightly bruised fruit for mouth-watering profits.

"I remember when Orlando's used to be a hamburger stand and a filling station," Espiau said. Orlando's is now a first class restaurant, with fine bar and dance hall.

Espiau graduated from Pomona High School in 1934 and attended Pomona Junior College (now Mt. San Antonio College). He met his wife Peggy, daughter of a Czechoslovakian-born hotel owner, in 1938. They were married in 1939 and had three sons, Edward, now with Shell Oil in Houston, Tex., Kenny, a Los Angeles police officer, and Gary, vice president of the restaurant corporation.

What changes has Espiau observed in the restaurant business in the valley over his more than 30 years in the work?

"The tremendous growth in the number of eathing places has been astonishing," he said. "And they're building establishments bigger and handsomer than they did in the early days, making heavier financial investments. Drive-ins, drive-ups and drive-thrus have also become very popular, but many people still want to sit down, relax and be waited on."

Basically the restaurant business has not changed much over the years, he said.

"People have to do things the same way they have done since the Last Supper," he twinkled. "You still have to prepare the food, serve it and clean up afterwards. We have developed convection ovens, french fryers, microwave ovens and other equipment, but the basics have not changed over the years."

Considering its decades of service to the valley, Espiau's Restaurant has had a comparatively quiet career. Operators were held up once. They have never had a strike or a walk out. They had a fire, caused by a defective safety device on a french fryer that caused $10,000 worth of damage — 30 days after their costly remodeling in 1967.

"Had a flood once," Espiau said. "About 1968, I think it was. A tropical storm off Mexico caused heavy rains that flooded the bar, ruined the carpet. It was a bad blow."

Another fell the next year when the Asian flu epidemic hit the valley as well as other parts of the nation. Thousands of regular patrons fell ill and half the restaurant staff (Espiau's employs 65) was sick.

In spite of fires, floods and the Asian flu, Espiau is happy in his chosen occupation.

"I like the business," he said. "Every business has its problems. But I enjoy meeting people, making new friends, getting to know people."

And the business likes Wilbur. In the last two years the Pomona restaurant has been among the top 500 in the nation, rated by the national Restaurant Hospitality magazine on volume, labor, turnover and other aspects of cuisine. Some 500,000 restaurants throughout the nation are judged and rated.

"We did over $1 million in business in 1975 and in 1976," Espiau said, "and we will this year, too."

Not bad turnover for a former fruit stand.

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

This is a rather auspicious occasion for us at the Progress Bulletin. You are today witnessing one of those historic, momentous, "First-ever" events which, alas, happen with such regularity these days that they are seldom remembered beyond the weekend.

But . . . today does mark the first time in our history that the Progress Bulletin has published a special section exclusively for and about restaurants and the eating out experience.

So, while you read, think food and make a note of today's date. This "First-ever" event may wind up on someone's trivia list someday!

October is National Restaurant Month, and the National Restaurant Association has been kind enough to inundate me with facts and figures about the business. I've gleaned a few things from them I might pass on here, though they merely bear out something most of us have been feeling for some time . . . that we are spending more of our food money in restaurants now than ever before. In fact, you spent $321 for meals in restaurants in 1976, an increase of $32 over 1975.

And, thanks to you "average" Californians, the restaurant industry in 1976 was one of the few industries to out-distance the inflation factor with a 13.1 percent growth rate in taxable sales over 1975 . . . well ahead of the 6.1 percent inflation rate.

Total sales in California restaurants reached a new height of $6.9 billion in 1976, marking a $796 million increase over '75's record-setting mark.

(No wonder there are so many new restaurants popping up! Everyone wants to get a piece of the action. It seems that word is out that you can make a bundle in the restaurant business. Maybe you can. NRA President Victor Rosellini characterizes the restaurant business as "one of the last frontiers of entrepreneurial opportunity . . . one place where a person can start a small business that grows large very rapidly.")

As dining out becomes a way of life for the average American, different types of restaurants are expanding to meet our needs and desires. Fast food chains now boast broader menus (hamburgers at Der Wienerschnitzel, yet!), longer hours and inside seating. Specialty restaurants like Fred Freehling's Little Yogurt Shoppe in Claremont are popping up. Ethnic restaurants, like Yiannis Greek in Claremont, Chez Gabrielle French in Montclair, and numerous Chinese, Italian, Mexican, etc., offer a welcome break from a steady diet of hamburgers, and are on the grow nationally.

But to me the most remarkable change in recent years has been the growth of the "theme" restaurant. Perhaps in answer to our changing lifestyles and tastes, these restaurants attempt to make eating out more of an event. And, judging by the success of The Old Montclair Peanut Co. (old western town theme) and Pomona Valley Mining Co., we like our atmospehere well done. I sometimes wonder if the promoters of these restaurants think maybe we won't notice the food if the atmosphere is funky enough. Or do they believe that restaurants nowadays have to offer more than just good food to appeal to a more sophisticated public. Either way, I think we're going to be treated to more theme restaurants in the coming years. One reason is that the growth of the restaurant industry hasn't escaped the notice of some of America's corporate giants. During the past year, there have been mergers and acquisitions involving big bucks from companies such as RC Cola, Campbell-Taggert, Green Giant, Pillsbury and General Mills. They, thinking goes, will fuel growth of fast-food chains and theme restaurants.

Well, enough of that. I'm anxious to tell you a little of what's in store for you this weekend in Pomona Valley restaurants.

SAN DIMAS PRESS, LA VERNE LEADER, DIAMOND BAR BULLETIN — 10/27/77

Arbor head weighs quality and price

"When buying meat, poultry, seafood, vegetables and fruit for a restaurant, you look for quality in comparison to price," says Walter Rippe, co-owner and executive chef of the Arbor Restaurant in Upland. "You have to weigh one against the other."

Rippe should know. Son of a German chef, he has been around food buying, preparation and serving all his life. He has been cook, sous chef and chef at restaurants and hotels throughout the nation, including the 21 Club and Luchow's in New York City, the Greensoro Country Club in North Carolina, the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas, the Balboa Bay Club in Newport, the Stuffed Shirt in Newport and El Mirado Hotel in Palm Springs. He's been everything from busboy to head chef.

When the Stuffed Shirt at Foothill Boulevard and Euclid Avenue in Upland went on the market in 1969, Rippe formed a small corporation and took it over, renaming it The Arbor. The company also owns Uncle Ned's, a Mexican-American food restaurant on Central Avenue in Upland.

When Rippe, already a qualified chef, went into the U.S. Army in 1949, he was sent, as the Army does these things, into the combat engineers. One day at Ft. Lewis, Wash., he complained about the quality of the food, and the company commander, discovering that he had been a chef, made him mess sergeant — after which things improved for Rippe and the rest of the GIs.

Rippe recently took part in the Orange Empire Chefs d' Cuisine Culinary Art Show at the Anaheim Convention Center.

"I do all the buying for the Arbor," he said, "and I have a hand in the kitchen. Buying the meat, poultry, seafood, vegetables and fruit, you look for quality and price. Prime rib, for example, is too fat for the public, so you buy top choice, which is leaner and offers a better bargain."

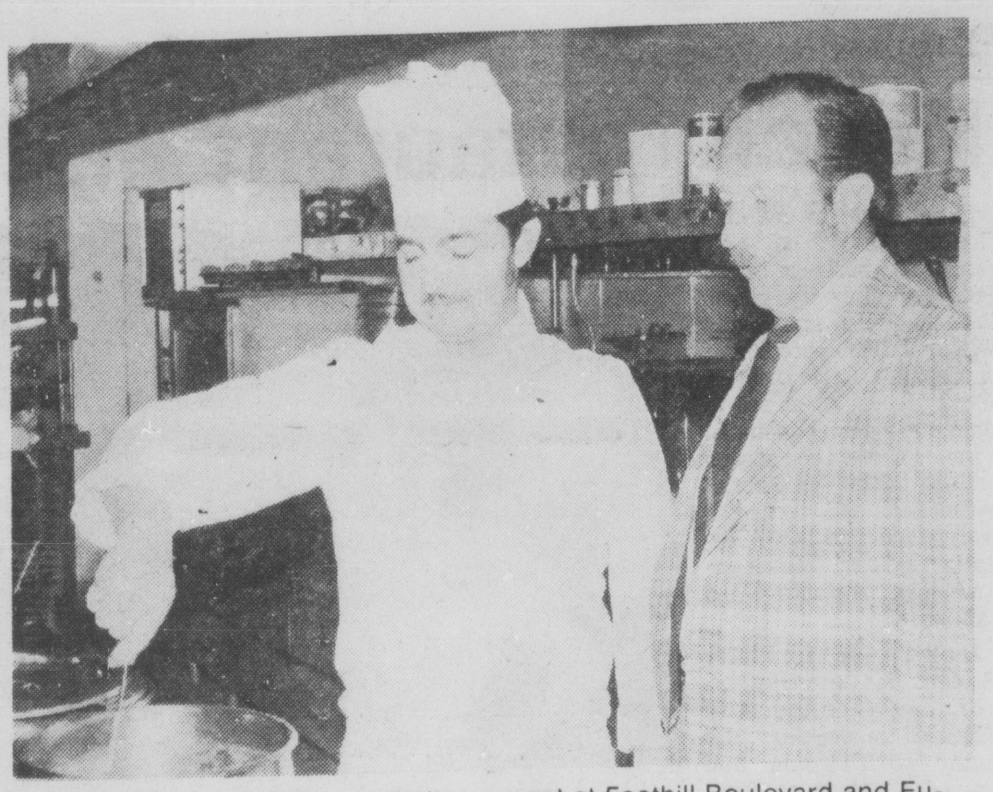
Rippe buys the restaurant products fresh daily. He gets to know the dealers, their reliability, the quality of their product. He uses Certified Grocers, a firm that does $3 million business daily, because he has confidence in the product and it saves him time in "comparison shopping." Vegetables and fruit are purchased from a small vendor who buys them fresh each morning. Poultry comes from a local company.

"We don't buy anything ready made," Rippe says. "We process all the food ourselves. Because I am a cook, we pay attention to the processing of the product. We never offer ready-to-serve products."

Besides buying food for the restaurant, Rippe supervises the condition and upkeep of the kitchen, the preparation of the food, and everything from the architectural adornments of the dining room to paper matches and napkins.

Has there been any noticeable change in America's eating habits over the past few years?

"No, American tastes stay pretty much the same," he said. "Fads come and go, the way they do in music and morals, but basically diners are eating the same things they did 20 years ago."



CUISINE CHECKUP — Walter Rippe, right, co-owner and executive chef of The Arbor Restaurant at Foothill Boulevard and Euclid Avenue, Upland, looks over the fare with chef Rosalino Veez.

The cost of food has risen over the years because of the demand. As the economy flourishes, there is an increased market. Prosperity in Europe and Japan has increased the demand on shrimp and lobster, so the prices on the American market have risen. Lobster tails were $2.50 in the '30s and customers complained. Now they go for $7.50 and higher. Meat is a commodity product, Rippe says, dependant upon grain crops for feed, severe winters, droughts and other climatic conditions. It goes up and down.

"Looks can be deceiving in buying food for a restaurant," he says. "Lettuce, for example, might look fresh and solid, but you have to look for rust spots and judge by weight. If it is not firm and heavy, it probably isn't top quality."

Rippe says there has been no noted decrease in the restaurant demand for coffee since the sharp increase in prices over the past few years. There has been an increased demand for tea. Sugar and flour are cheap again, he says, as well as pinto beans, peas, lentils and other products that were once in short supply. The Arbor bakes some of its products and buys pastry fresh each day in Orange County pastry shops.

Among Rippe's 50 Arbor employees are his wife, Shirley, and daughters Lisa and Linda. The labor board recently audited his operation and ruled that he wasn't paying his wife and daughters enough money by legal standards — he was ordered to give them a raise.

"The restaurant business is risky," Rippe says. "Considering labor costs, utilities, taxes, insurance, the price of china, furniture and equipment, the profit margin is 3 to 4 percent. Which explains why so many restaurants fail."

Far West Services opens Upland Coco's

Upland's newest restaurant, Coco's Famous Hamburgers, has made a hit with local residents, according to manager Dennis McIntyre. The new family restaurant, in the Von's-Sav-On Center at Foothill & Euclid, has been open for two weeks.

The opening of Coco's marks the entry into the Pomona Valley of the Far West Services, Inc. chain of restaurants. Far West plans to break ground early next year for a Reuben's restaurant in the proposed Mountaingreen Center in Upland, corner of 7th Street and Mountain.

BARREL IN — The Beef 'n' Barrel Restaurant at 840 S. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, serves breakfast, lunch and dinners of prime rib, steak and lobster. Entertainment is offered.

Hot sugar plum buns south-of-the border

Just about everyone is familiar with tortilla, Mexico's bread staple, but did you know that south-of-the-border bakers also have a special talent for creating fancy pastries?

Starting from a simple ball of dough and some sweet filling or topping, Mexican bakers turn out imaginatively-shaped sweet breads that could defy any Danish!

We've borrowed this culinary specialty and added a little U.S. ingenuity — we've started with convenient hot roll mix, then filled and topped each bun with fresh plum slices. The result: a delicious treat for breakfasts and brunches or morning koffee klatches.

Heart

You'll find it in the warmth and camaraderie of my surroundings. Stout and spirits, dart games and round-the-hearth hospitality make this a favorite place for friends to meet.

Back in the kitchen, my heart goes into creating the finest prime ribs of beef, Yorkshire pudding, rack of lamb, trifle and other English foods.

And, when all is said and done, I take heart in the words of one of my fellow countrymen:

"If there's a Heaven, which I do not doubt,
There'll be an inn fire and a glass of stout.
If I can have just those two things,
I'll do without my harp and wings."

THEY ALSO SERVE — These are the behind-the-scenes men and women who prepare the steaks, prime rib, lobster and other food at Orlando's at 1700 W. Holt Ave., Pomona. From left are Gabina Avila, Mona Crum, Tilly Martinez, Antonio Lomeli, Salvadore Cevallos, Brian Allen and Kelly Miles, manager. The restaurant serves luncheon and dinner.

'Dining out' an ancient custom

The history of public eating service is probably as ancient as the Old Testament, which frequently refers to inns.

"Restaurant" has its origin in the Latin root word, "restaurare" which means "to restore." In the 16th century, this Latin root word was applied to a spicy broth and called a "restorative beverage." Later it was applied to other "restorative" foods, especially gravy, soups, and bouillons.

The honor for creating the first "businessmen's lunch" apparently belongs to a chap named Segius Locates, a Roman innkeeper in 40 B.C. He devised the feature for ship brokers who were too busy to go home.

Some authorities claim that the "medieval" history of the restaurant industry began during the French Revolution, in 1789, when hiding aristocrats were fed in secret by their servants.

Fare changes for new tastes

Americans' appetite for sandwiches, pancakes, fried fish, French fries, hot dogs and especially hamburgers is expected to make the fast food business 14 percent fatter this year.

But new trends in restaurants attempt to keep up with changing tastes The salad bar is a permanent fixture. Novel decor appeals to diners, intrigued at the idea of eating in former churches, warehouses, railroad stations, foundries, banks, even grounded airliners and clustered boxcars.

Sidewalk cafes are gaining ground despite summer humidity, winter-shortened business, and zoning restrictions. Pushcars around city parks now offer German bratwurst, French quiche, Chinese egg rolls, and Mexican tacos. Diet food shops and delicatessens may open nearby on the same street, almost as antidotes to each other.

Cafeterias may have trouble cutting the mustard except in the south. Drive-ins and diners seem to have reached the end of the road.

And in New York, nostalgia is the most popular fare at the few surviving automats.

As you know, this is Halloween weekend, and there will be several parties going on.

A $25 first prize goes to the customer with the best costume attending El Camino's Halloween party tomorrow night. Other prizes will be given, too. Festivities start at 9. Owner Tony Plascencia has just gotten the liquor license for the restaurant, by the way, and can now serve you Margaritas with your dinner at this Mexican and American foods restaurant, 750 So. Indian Hill, Claremont.

The biggie is at Younger Bros. in Chino, where owner Mike Hoyle is staging a four-nighter. The costume contest started last night and will continue tonight and Saturday night, with the winners competing Monday night for the grand prize . . . a trip to Las Vegas. Mike's giving three prizes each night, $25 - $15 - $10, so there's some money to be won in Chino, Corner Central and Francis.

Larry Buster and Denis White would like you to join in the spirit of Halloween when you visit The Old Montclair Peanut Co. Monday evening. The staff of the restaurant will be in costume, so you'll feel right at home in your fright wig. And with every dinner that evening, they are providing the dessert . . . a piece of pumpkin pie on the house.

Have you tried the feature at Mr. Steak yet . . . steak and almond-fried shrimp? The shrimp are breaded in almonds and I found that combination very tasty. Try it soon . . . at Mr. Steak, 1130 No. Mountain, Upland.

German cuisine, German beer and a German band will highlight the Oktoberfest festivities this Sunday at The Arbor Restaurant in Upland, Owner/Chef Walter Rippe says he can still take a few reservations, so call now if you're interested. Hours of the event are from 4 to 8 P.M. That's The Arbor, Foothill and Euclid, Upland; Phone 982-1513.

. . . Tony Ruggeri and the staff of Bondello's will offer a 99¢ spaghetti plate next Monday and Tuesday nights. Bondello's is located at 4930 Holt Blvd., Montclair.

. . . Castaway restaurant is back in the luncheon buffet business, according to manager Enrique Fernandez. The $3.75 buffet is offered weekdays 11:30 to 2:30 at the Pomona restaurant.

Food service nears $87 billion

The foodservice industry continued its pattern of record growth and increased sales in 1977. Before the end of the year, the industry is expected to reach a sales level of $86.9 billion, a 10.6 percent increase over last year, the National Restaurant Association predicts.

Americans now spend more than one of every three food dollars away from home, a figure that is expected to rise to two of every five in the 1980s.

"Contributing to the foodservice industry's spectacular health," says NRA President Victor Rossellini, owner/operator of Seattle's award-winning Rosellini's Restaurants, "are the continued cost competitiveness of restaurants vis-a-vis supermarkets and food stores, and the growing presence of women in the work force." According to NRA consumer research, women strongly influence dining out decision, a decision often made simply because dining out provides a break from the hard work of preparing for and cleaning up after a meal.

For the first five months of 1977, eating and drinking place sales totaled $22.342 billion, up more than nine percent from last year, while food stores showed a modest six percent gain.

Beyond eating and drinking places, which account for two-thirds of the industry's volume, the foodservice industry feeds the public in such diverse places as public schools, colleges, 27 hospitals and factories, in clubs and hotels, on airlines and ships, on military bases, in prisons, and in other retail stores.

"Foodservice is the U.S. economy's largest retail employer," adds Rosellini. "While providing jobs for more than eight million Americans, foodservice is also one of the last frontiers of opportunity.

Diners choose varied eateries

At Montclair Plaza recently, local residents were asked the questions: "What is your favorite restaurant in the valley?" and "Why?"

"I guess I'd have to say the Taco Kitchen in La Verne," said Pomona resident, John W. Bain. "I like the food and the service. Its always good."

Bain said he also liked the Crystal Cafeteria in Pomona. "The Crystal Cafeteria is always a good place to eat," he said. "Down through the years, its been a real good restaurant."

Grace Martin and her husband, Millard, of Upland like to eat out at Bob's Big Boy, they said.

"We like Bob's, Alphy's and Sambo's," said Mrs. Martin. "At Bob's, I think they have good service and food,"

Donna Moore, a San Dimas resident, said her favorite restaurant was Marie Callender's in Claremont.

"I love their fresh strawberry pie," she said. "The waitresses are friendly and they have a real nice salad bar. I really like the food."

Rodney Perry of Chino, who recently moved to the valley, said he enjoyed eating out at Tiny Naylor's restaurant in Montclair.

"My fiancee and I went there recently," he said. "I liked their breakfast. It was very good. Its the best I've had for a long time."

Montclair resident Larry Guerrero said he liked to eat at In-N-Out Burgers, located at various locations throughout the Valley.

"I like everything about their hamburgers," he said. "I also like their root beer."

Griswold's in Claremont was a favorite dining spot in the valley for Helene Zinzian, who recently moved to Alta Loma. "They have a very nice rack of lamb," she said. "I enjoyed it. The dinner was great. The service was courteous and prompt. It was very nice."

- Across Central from Mayfair Market -

ONE OF A KIND — The valley's only sidewalk cafe is the Danson at 109 Yale Ave., Claremont. It is really a restaurant, serving a full menu and operating a delicatessen.

English ordinary popular eatery

In England, commoners had patronized eating places called "ordinary" as far back as 1577. These were taverns which served only at specified mealtimes — usually between one and four o'clock — at a long, common table and at a fixed price. Diners couldn't come in any time and sit any place, then choose from a vast menu.

A noted ordinary frequented by literary figures in the 17th century was the Castle Ordinary. It burned down in 1666 and was built as Dolly's Chop House. The latter gained renown when "Dolly" introduced pretty serving maids instead of waiters.

Students active in food industry

Although many college and high school students rely on the restaurant industry for vacation employment, some 1.5 million of the 3 million students employed by restaurants work year-round, according to Warren L. Ward, secretary-treasurer of the Southern California Restaurant Association.

Ward, who with some 25,000 other Southern California restauranteurs is currently celebrating National Restaurant Month, said that college and high school students often find their introduction to the world of work in foodservice operations. While many of the young people use their restaurant industry employment to work their way through college, career opportunities for enthusiastic and energetic young people abound in the industry, he said.

Citing figures from a National Restaurant Association study on foodservice industry employment, Ward said that full-time students hold approximately 2.5 million foodservice jobs. Part-time students are employed in one-half million industry jobs. In total, the foodservice industry employs eight million people.

The plum state

Two thousand years ago plums grew wild in China and were treasured only by the epicurean Chinese. Today, they are appreciated throughout much of the world. And, in the U.S. more than 90 per cent of the plum supply comes from California, the "plum state". There are some 20 major varieties grown in California — all make refreshing snacks and add a sparkling flavor and color to pies, cakes, tarts, sauces, compotes, salads and jams throughout the summer months.

Amtrak cooks like Grandma did

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Grandma wouldn't be baffled in the kitchen of a gleaming red, silver and blue Amtrak train speeding across the country. She was an artist at turning out wholesome meals on woodburning, cast-iron stoves — and so are many Amtrak cooks.

The stoves are standard on most of Amtrak's older dining cars — the ones inheried in 1971 when the National Railroad Corp. took over most of the country's passenger service from private railroads.

Barbara Halliday, an Amtrak spokeswoman in Washington, D.C., said some of the dining cars are more than 30 years old, and many of the cooks were inherited with the cars.

An Amtrak chef, using a stove filled with flaming pressed-wood logs, must have a quick eye and a sharp nose because the stoves have no temperature controls.

"Once you get it hot, you just know when to add one more log at a time to maintain the temperature," said Ulysses Harper, one of Amtrak's chefs, as he sweated over a stove on a run between San Francisco and Denver.

Amtrak started operations with 286 diesel and 40 electric locomotives and 1,275 cars, all bought or leased from existing railroad lines. During the past six years, Amtrak has spent or committed $582.7 million to buy new equipment.

The newer Amfleet kitchens operate on electric power provided by the locomotive. Individual meals are prepared by a caterer and frozen on the train. The food later is heated in a modern oven.

Later this year, Amtrak will begin to use the first of its new bi-level Superliner cars, the first long-distance passenger cars to be built in the United

La Villa Guasti a jewel of a restaurant

Nestled in a complex of warehouses, wine cellars and storage sheds in the dusty little community of Guasti, a few miles east of Ontario, stands a jewel of a luncheon restaurant, La Villa Guasti, amid tree-shaded lawns and flower beds. It is a stumbled-upon oasis amid vast acres of vineyards and the buildings of the Brookside Winery.

The handsome, Spanish-style timbered hall was built after Garrett and Company bought the Italian vineyards from Secundo Guasti in 1945. It was formerly a reception hall and wine-tasting center for visitors touring the vineyards and winery. Today it is an attractive restaurant with a light, airy ambiance, serving lunches for a modest price Monday through Friday. The best seller is enchilada burrito. There is an eat-all-you-want salad bar, Guasti chili, sandwiches of all kind, homemade Italian soups, hot sourdough bread and a variety of wines. The menu also includes Mexican plate, beef stew, lasagna, beef burgundy, French dip, Italian sausage, barbecued ham and other delicacies.

La Villa Guasti is the project of an attractive, vivacious Diamond Bar housewife and mother, Dixie Nolte, who three years ago, restless and unfulfilled in homemaking, decided to exploit her penchant for cooking by doing banquets, weddings and private parties at the villa.

"I had no idea what I was doing when I opened this place," she laughed. "We had these parties and a year and a half ago I was urged to open for lunches. Now we have 14 employes. When I came to work today, every table was full, and 25 people were waiting. It's unbelievable!"

Located in the heart of a popular Southern California vineyard, the restaurant would naturally offer a wide choice of wines. The list includes white wines (Emerald Reisling, St. Emilion, Hausemarke Rhine), rose (Vino Rosado), red wine (Pinot St. George, Zinfandel, Hausemarke Rote) chablis, burgundy, wine cocktails, apertif vermouth and dessert wines (chocolate, cafe, apricot and mint).

"There has been a great increase in the demand for California wines in recent years," said Mrs. Nolte. (The Dixie Lee comes from the late Bing Crosby's first wife — Mrs. Nolte's mother roomed with her in college. The only "south" she has known was South Gate, where she was born.)

California's wine grape production is forecast for 1.5 million tons this year, 145,000 tons more than last year. The California Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said that harvesting slowed toward the end of September because of low sugar content, but the current harvest is at near-record level.

"The increased demand is because our wines are really better than those from the East and Europe," says Mrs. Nolte. "The grapes are grown in a better climate. Domestic wines are much less expensive."

She attributes the increased demand for wines on the fact that many young people are discovering the delights of wine and appreciating it. Wine tasting parties and tours of local vineyards have increased interest in wineries.

What about the traditional selection of wines according to the dish being served — cabernet sauvignon with beef, gamay beaujolais with veal, grenache rose with ham, California chablis with fowl?

"People have gotten away from that now," says Dixie. "They drink what they like. If you want a red wine with fish or poultry, you have it. Ten years ago you'd be an outcast if you drank white wine with meat — which I do. Today it's a person's choice — and I approve."

The house still follows the custom of serving the host a small portion of the bottle for his tasting and approval, a formality that is looked upon with amusement by many, but which has often proved valuable. Dixie recalled an occasion when the waitress overlooked the ritual, and five businessmen and wine conoisseurs simultaneously tasted a wine that had turned to vinegar.

How does a housewife and mother-of-three like running a luncheon business at an obscure but turnaway restaurant?

"I love it!" Dixie said, enthusiastically. "It's so much fun. I love the satisfaction of seeing the little place grow into something. I've always loved to cook, anyway, and having this place blossom is very gratifying. It's terrific!"

And you don't have to care what kind of wine you order.

WINE AND WOMAN — Dixie Nolte, proprietor of La Villa Guasti, popular luncheon restaurant in Guasti, pours a tempting glass of wine.

Pomona Valley diners polled on favorite eating places

G. NEATHERLAND

What's your favorite restaurant?

Five valley residents were asked this question in interviews conducted by the Progress Bulletin at the Indian Hill Village shopping center in Pomona. The residents also were asked why a particular restaurant was their favorite.

Gwendolyn Neatherland of Pomona said her favorite was the Pomona Valley Mining Co. in Pomona. She noted that the food is good and she particularly liked the restaurant for its interior decorations.

Joe Passalacqua of Ontario said he liked Vince's Spaghetti in Ontario. The reason why it's his favorite is he enjoys the food and atmosphere.

Dolores Mikan of Pomona picked the Chung King Cafe in Pomona as her favorite eatery. She said it's quiet and she enjoys Chinese food. "I also like the inside decorations," she noted.

Harold Sargent of Upland chose the Cask 'N Cleaver in Cucamonga as his favorite. He stated, "It's reasonable, the service is good and the food is delicious. I've never had a bad meal there."

Alice Bennett of Montclair says Crystal's Cafeteria in Pomona tops her list. "They have good home-cooked meals and they don't serve real large portions. You have a choice of half or full orders. And I like the food."

Amtrak

States in decades, Ms. Halliday, who prefers that title, said.

Each Superliner will have an electric kitchen with microwave and standard oven, an electric grill, toaster, coffeemaker and warming table. Superliner kitchens will be on the lower level of the dining car, while dining passengers will sit on the upper level.

Turbocafes on the French-designed Turboliners also have modern cooking equipment. Coach passengers order over a counter and dine at their seats on fold-down tables. The Turboliners are used primarily in New York State, Amtrak said.

Ronald Humble, an Amtrak reservation agent in Los Angeles, said menus vary with each line, though some standard dishes are available.

Red snapper, for example, is a special item on the Sunset route between Los Angeles and New Orleans, he said. And passengers taking the Southwestern route between Los Angeles and Chicago or the San Francisco Zephyr to Chicago may order Colorado trout for dinner.

Humble said breakfasts are priced up to $3.75, with lunches from $3 to $4.50 and dinner from $4.50 to $7.

SAN DIMAS PRESS, LA VERNE LEADER, DIAMOND BAR BULLETIN — 10/27/77

Tabard Inn early eatery

Inns, hotels and monastaries of early Europe offered sleeping accomodations as well as food to the weary traveler. Today's restaurant is really an outgrowth of these. Its development as a separate institution came later.

One of the earliest restaurants was the Tabard Inn in London where, in the 14th Century, Chaucer's Canterbury pilgrims used to gather prior to their journey to the shrine of St. Thomas a Becket to dine and revel.

They also held dinners there after they returned, at which time the best teller of stories during the pilgrimage was rewarded with a free meal and feted.

This was the idea of the inn host, Harry Bailey, who went along on the trips to judge the best tales.

Peggy and Wilbur Espiau

Recall restaurant history

If you want to examine the history of the restaurant business in the Pomona Valley, it is essential that you start with Wilbur Espiau, proprietor of Espiau's Restaurant on West Holt Avenue in Pomona, a genial gnome of a man who has been around as long as the San Gabriel Mountains and turned a fruit stand into a million-dollar-a-year Mexican-American restaurant and cantina.

EARLY IN THE VALLEY — Peggy and Wilbur Espiau, shown at their restaurant at 1542 W. Holt Ave., Pomona, have been serving Mexican-American food for more than three decades.

It all started with Pierre Espiau, his grandfather, born in France and educated in oenology. He came to Pomona and opened a saloon on First Street, started a winery, and raised oranges. When beer became legal in 1933 after Prohibition, he took over his fruit stand and sold beer, sandwiches and light groceries. The little roadstand soon began offering tacos and enchiladas and finally burgeoned into a first Mexican-American restaurant.

"The Taco Kitchen in La Verne is the oldest Mexican food place in the valley," Espaiu said, "but we're second. The St. Charles Grill (now the Alpine Haus) has the oldest licensed premises in the area, but they've changed hands."

Back in the earlier times, Holt Avenue was the main route between Los Angeles and San Bernardino and Palm Springs, the traffic was heavy and Espiau's business flourished. There was a sharp curve at the corner by Espiau's, and he recalls one time a truck loaded with melons turned over. He went out and offered an insurance agent $5 for the load. It was accepted and he sold the entire cargo of slightly bruised fruit for mouth-watering profits.

"I remember when Orlando's used to be a hamburger stand and a filling station," Espiau said. Orlando's is now a first class restaurant, with fine bar and dance hall.

Espiau graduated from Pomona High School in 1934 and attended Pomona Junior College (now Mt. San Antonio College). He met his wife Peggy, daughter of a Czechoslovakian-born hotel owner, in 1938. They were married in 1939 and had three sons, Edward, now with Shell Oil in Houston, Tex., Kenny, a Los Angeles police officer, and Gary, vice president of the restaurant corporation.

What changes has Espiau observed in the restaurant business in the valley over his more than 30 years in the work?

"The tremendous growth in the number of eathing places has been astonishing," he said. "And they're building establishments bigger and handsomer than they did in the early days, making heavier financial investments. Drive-ins, drive-ups and drive-thrus have also become very popular, but many people still want to sit down, relax and be waited on."

Basically the restaurant business has not changed much over the years, he said.

"People have to do things the same way they have done since the Last Supper," he twinkled. "You still have to prepare the food, serve it and clean up afterwards. We have developed convection ovens, french fryers, microwave ovens and other equipment, but the basics have not changed over the years."

Considering its decades of service to the valley, Espiau's Restaurant has had a comparatively quiet career. Operators were held up once. They have never had a strike or a walk out. They had a fire, caused by a defective safety device on a french fryer that caused $10,000 worth of damage — 30 days after their costly remodeling in 1967.

"Had a flood once," Espiau said. "About 1968, I think it was. A tropical storm off Mexico caused heavy rains that flooded the bar, ruined the carpet. It was a bad blow."

Another fell the next year when the Asian flu epidemic hit the valley as well as other parts of the nation. Thousands of regular patrons fell ill and half the restaurant staff (Espiau's employs 65) was sick.

In spite of fires, floods and the Asian flu, Espiau is happy in his chosen occupation.

"I like the business," he said. "Every business has its problems. But I enjoy meeting people, making new friends, getting to know people."

And the business likes Wilbur. In the last two years the Pomona restaurant has been among the top 500 in the nation, rated by the national Restaurant Hospitality magazine on volume, labor, turnover and other aspects of cuisine. Some 500,000 restaurants throughout the nation are judged and rated.

"We did over $1 million in business in 1975 and in 1976," Espiau said, "and we will this year, too."

Not bad turnover for a former fruit stand.

GLAMOR GIRL — Gabrielle Le Pont, owner of Chez Gabrielle at 4760 Holt Ave., Montclair, was formerly a lady magician in Europe. Her French restaurant was formerly L'Alouette.

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

This is a rather auspicious occasion for us at the Progress Bulletin. You are today witnessing one of those historic, momentous, "First-ever" events which, alas, happen with such regularity these days that they are seldom remembered beyond the weekend.

But . . . today does mark the first time in our history that the Progress Bulletin has published a special section exclusively for and about restaurants and the eating out experience.

So, while you read, think food and make a note of today's date. This "First-ever" event may wind up on someone's trivia list someday!

October is National Restaurant Month, and the National Restaurant Association has been kind enough to inundate me with facts and figures about the business. I've gleaned a few things from them I might pass on here, though they merely bear out something most of us have been feeling for some time . . . that we are spending more of our food money in restaurants now than ever before. In fact, you spent $321 for meals in restaurants in 1976, an increase of $32 over 1975.

And, thanks to you "average" Californians, the restaurant industry in 1976 was one of the few industries to out-distance the inflation factor with a 13.1 percent growth rate in taxable sales over 1975 . . . well ahead of the 6.1 percent inflation rate.

Total sales in California restaurants reached a new height of $6.9 billion in 1976, marking a $796 million increase over '75's record-setting mark.

(No wonder there are so many new restaurants popping up! Everyone wants to get a piece of the action. It seems that word is out that you can make a bundle in the restaurant business. Maybe you can. NRA President Victor Rosellini characterizes the restaurant business as "one of the last frontiers of entrepreneurial opportunity . . . one place where a person can start a small business that grows large very rapidly.")

As dining out becomes a way of life for the average American, different types of restaurants are expanding to meet our needs and desires. Fast food chains now boast broader menus (hamburgers at Der Wienerschnitzel, yet!), longer hours and inside seating. Specialty restaurants like Fred Freehling's Little Yogurt Shoppe in Claremont are popping up. Ethnic restaurants, like Yiannis Greek in Claremont, Chez Gabrielle French in Montclair, and numerous Chinese, Italian, Mexican, etc., offer a welcome break from a steady diet of hamburgers, and are on the grow nationally.

But to me the most remarkable change in recent years has been the growth of the "theme" restaurant. Perhaps in answer to our changing lifestyles and tastes, these restaurants attempt to make eating out more of an event. And, judging by the success of The Old Montclair Peanut Co. (old western town theme) and Pomona Valley Mining Co., we like our atmospehere well done. I sometimes wonder if the promoters of these restaurants think maybe we won't notice the food if the atmosphere is funky enough. Or do they believe that restaurants nowadays have to offer more than just good food to appeal to a more sophisticated public. Either way, I think we're going to be treated to more theme restaurants in the coming years. One reason is that the growth of the restaurant industry hasn't escaped the notice of some of America's corporate giants. During the past year, there have been mergers and acquisitions involving big bucks from companies such as RC Cola, Campbell-Taggert, Green Giant, Pillsbury and General Mills. They, thinking goes, will fuel growth of fast-food chains and theme restaurants.

Well, enough of that. I'm anxious to tell you a little of what's in store for you this weekend in Pomona Valley restaurants.

Arbor head weighs quality and price

"When buying meat, poultry, seafood, vegetables and fruit for a restaurant, you look for quality in comparison to price," says Walter Rippe, co-owner and executive chef of the Arbor Restaurant in Upland. "You have to weigh one against the other."

Rippe should know. Son of a German chef, he has been around food buying, preparation and serving all his life. He has been cook, sous chef and chef at restaurants and hotels throughout the nation, including the 21 Club and Luchow's in New York City, the Greensoro Country Club in North Carolina, the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas, the Balboa Bay Club in Newport, the Stuffed Shirt in Newport and El Mirado Hotel in Palm Springs. He's been everything from busboy to head chef.

When the Stuffed Shirt at Foothill Boulevard and Euclid Avenue in Upland went on the market in 1969, Rippe formed a small corporation and took it over, renaming it The Arbor. The company also owns Uncle Ned's, a Mexican-American food restaurant on Central Avenue in Upland.

When Rippe, already a qualified chef, went into the U.S. Army in 1949, he was sent, as the Army does these things, into the combat engineers. One day at Ft. Lewis, Wash., he complained about the quality of the food, and the company commander, discovering that he had been a chef, made him mess sergeant — after which things improved for Rippe and the rest of the GIs.

Rippe recently took part in the Orange Empire Chefs d' Cuisine Culinary Art Show at the Anaheim Convention Center.

"I do all the buying for the Arbor," he said, "and I have a hand in the kitchen. Buying the meat, poultry, seafood, vegetables and fruit, you look for quality and price. Prime rib, for example, is too fat for the public, so you buy top choice, which is leaner and offers a better bargain."

Rippe buys the restaurant products fresh daily. He gets to know the dealers, their reliability, the quality of their product. He uses Certified Grocers, a firm that does $3 million business daily, because he has confidence in the product and it saves him time in "comparison shopping." Vegetables and fruit are purchased from a small vendor who buys them fresh each morning. Poultry comes from a local company.

"We don't buy anything ready made," Rippe says. "We process all the food ourselves. Because I am a cook, we pay attention to the processing of the product. We never offer ready-to-serve products."

Besides buying food for the restaurant, Rippe supervises the condition and upkeep of the kitchen, the preparation of the food, and everything from the architectural adornments of the dining room to paper matches and napkins.

Has there been any noticeable change in America's eating habits over the past few years?

"No, American tastes stay pretty much the same," he said. "Fads come and go, the way they do in music and morals, but basically diners are eating the same things they did 20 years ago."

CUISINE CHECKUP — Walter Rippe, right, co-owner and executive chef of The Arbor Restaurant at Foothill Boulevard and Euclid Avenue, Upland, looks over the fare with chef Rosalino Veez.

The cost of food has risen over the years because of the demand. As the economy flourishes, there is an increased market. Prosperity in Europe and Japan has increased the demand on shrimp and lobster, so the prices on the American market have risen. Lobster tails were $2.50 in the '30s and customers complained. Now they go for $7.50 and higher. Meat is a commodity product, Rippe says, dependant upon grain crops for feed, severe winters, droughts and other climatic conditions. It goes up and down.

"Looks can be deceiving in buying food for a restaurant," he says. "Lettuce, for example, might look fresh and solid, but you have to look for rust spots and judge by weight. If it is not firm and heavy, it probably isn't top quality."

Rippe says there has been no noted decrease in the restaurant demand for coffee since the sharp increase in prices over the past few years. There has been an increased demand for tea. Sugar and flour are cheap again, he says, as well as pinto beans, peas, lentils and other products that were once in short supply. The Arbor bakes some of its products and buys pastry fresh each day in Orange County pastry shops.

Among Rippe's 50 Arbor employees are his wife, Shirley, and daughters Lisa and Linda. The labor board recently audited his operation and ruled that he wasn't paying his wife and daughters enough money by legal standards — he was ordered to give them a raise.

"The restaurant business is risky," Rippe says. "Considering labor costs, utilities, taxes, insurance, the price of china, furniture and equipment, the profit margin is 3 to 4 percent. Which explains why so many restaurants fail."

Far West Services opens Upland Coco's

Upland's newest restaurant, Coco's Famous Hamburgers, has made a hit with local residents, according to manager Dennis McIntyre. The new family restaurant, in the Von's-Sav-On Center at Foothill & Euclid, has been open for two weeks.

The opening of Coco's marks the entry into the Pomona Valley of the Far West Services, Inc. chain of restaurants. Far West plans to break ground early next year for a Reuben's restaurant in the proposed Mountaingreen Center in Upland, corner of 7th Street and Mountain.

BARREL IN — The Beef 'n' Barrel Restaurant at 840 S. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, serves breakfast, lunch and dinners of prime rib, steak and lobster. Entertainment is offered.

Hot sugar plum buns south-of-the border

Just about everyone is familiar with tortilla, Mexico's bread staple, but did you know that south-of-the-border bakers also have a special talent for creating fancy pastries?

Starting from a simple ball of dough and some sweet filling or topping, Mexican bakers turn out imaginatively-shaped sweet breads that could defy any Danish!

We've borrowed this culinary specialty and added a little U.S. ingenuity — we've started with convenient hot roll mix, then filled and topped each bun with fresh plum slices. The result: a delicious treat for breakfasts and brunches or morning koffee klatches.

Heart

You'll find it in the warmth and camaraderie of my surroundings. Stout and spirits, dart games and round-the-hearth hospitality make this a favorite place for friends to meet.

Back in the kitchen, my heart goes into creating the finest prime ribs of beef, Yorkshire pudding, rack of lamb, trifle and other English foods.

And, when all is said and done, I take heart in the words of one of my fellow countrymen:

"If there's a Heaven, which I do not doubt,
There'll be an inn fire and a glass of stout.
If I can have just those two things,
I'll do without my harp and wings."

'Dining out' an ancient custom

The history of public eating service is probably as ancient as the Old Testament, which frequently refers to inns.

"Restaurant" has its origin in the Latin root word, "restaurare" which means "to restore." In the 16th century, this Latin root word was applied to a spicy broth and called a "restorative beverage." Later it was applied to other "restorative" foods, especially gravy, soups, and bouillons.

The honor for creating the first "businessmen's lunch" apparently belongs to a chap named Segius Locates, a Roman innkeeper in 40 B.C. He devised the feature for ship brokers who were too busy to go home.

Some authorities claim that the "medieval" history of the restaurant industry began during the French Revolution, in 1789, when hiding aristocrats were fed in secret by their servants.

Fare changes for new tastes

Americans' appetite for sandwiches, pancakes, fried fish, French fries, hot dogs and especially hamburgers is expected to make the fast food business 14 percent fatter this year.

But new trends in restaurants attempt to keep up with changing tastes The salad bar is a permanent fixture. Novel decor appeals to diners, intrigued at the idea of eating in former churches, warehouses, railroad stations, foundries, banks, even grounded airliners and clustered boxcars.

Sidewalk cafes are gaining ground despite summer humidity, winter-shortened business, and zoning restrictions. Pushcars around city parks now offer German bratwurst, French quiche, Chinese egg rolls, and Mexican tacos. Diet food shops and delicatessens may open nearby on the same street, almost as antidotes to each other.

Cafeterias may have trouble cutting the mustard except in the south. Drive-ins and diners seem to have reached the end of the road.

And in New York, nostalgia is the most popular fare at the few surviving automats.

Wandering with Woody

As you know, this is Halloween weekend, and there will be several parties going on.

A $25 first prize goes to the customer with the best costume attending El Camino's Halloween party tomorrow night. Other prizes will be given, too. Festivities start at 9. Owner Tony Plascencia has just gotten the liquor license for the restaurant, by the way, and can now serve you Margaritas with your dinner at this Mexican and American foods restaurant, 750 So. Indian Hill, Claremont.

The biggie is at Younger Bros. in Chino, where owner Mike Hoyle is staging a four-nighter. The costume contest started last night and will continue tonight and Saturday night, with the winners competing Monday night for the grand prize . . . a trip to Las Vegas. Mike's giving three prizes each night, $25 - $15 - $10, so there's some money to be won in Chino, Corner Central and Francis.

Larry Buster and Denis White would like you to join in the spirit of Halloween when you visit The Old Montclair Peanut Co. Monday evening. The staff of the restaurant will be in costume, so you'll feel right at home in your fright wig. And with every dinner that evening, they are providing the dessert . . . a piece of pumpkin pie on the house.

Have you tried the feature at Mr. Steak yet . . . steak and almond-fried shrimp? The shrimp are breaded in almonds and I found that combination very tasty. Try it soon . . . at Mr. Steak, 1130 No. Mountain, Upland.

German cuisine, German beer and a German band will highlight the Oktoberfest festivities this Sunday at The Arbor Restaurant in Upland, Owner/Chef Walter Rippe says he can still take a few reservations, so call now if you're interested. Hours of the event are from 4 to 8 P.M. That's The Arbor, Foothill and Euclid, Upland; Phone 982-1513.

. . . Tony Ruggeri and the staff of Bondello's will offer a 99¢ spaghetti plate next Monday and Tuesday nights. Bondello's is located at 4930 Holt Blvd., Montclair.

. . . Castaway restaurant is back in the luncheon buffet business, according to manager Enrique Fernandez. The $3.75 buffet is offered weekdays 11:30 to 2:30 at the Pomona restaurant.

Food service nears $87 billion

The foodservice industry continued its pattern of record growth and increased sales in 1977. Before the end of the year, the industry is expected to reach a sales level of $86.9 billion, a 10.6 percent increase over last year, the National Restaurant Association predicts.

Americans now spend more than one of every three food dollars away from home, a figure that is expected to rise to two of every five in the 1980s.

"Contributing to the foodservice industry's spectacular health," says NRA President Victor Rossellini, owner/operator of Seattle's award-winning Rosellini's Restaurants, "are the continued cost competitiveness of restaurants vis-a-vis supermarkets and food stores, and the growing presence of women in the work force." According to NRA consumer research, women strongly influence dining out decision, a decision often made simply because dining out provides a break from the hard work of preparing for and cleaning up after a meal.

For the first five months of 1977, eating and drinking place sales totaled $22.342 billion, up more than nine percent from last year, while food stores showed a modest six percent gain.

Beyond eating and drinking places, which account for two-thirds of the industry's volume, the foodservice industry feeds the public in such diverse places as public schools, colleges, 27 hospitals and factories, in clubs and hotels, on airlines and ships, on military bases, in prisons, and in other retail stores.

"Foodservice is the U.S. economy's largest retail employer," adds Rosellini. "While providing jobs for more than eight million Americans, foodservice is also one of the last frontiers of opportunity.

Diners choose varied eateries

At Montclair Plaza recently, local residents were asked the questions: "What is your favorite restaurant in the valley?" and "Why?"

"I guess I'd have to say the Taco Kitchen in La Verne," said Pomona resident, John W. Bain. "I like the food and the service. Its always good."

Bain said he also liked the Crystal Cafeteria in Pomona. "The Crystal Cafeteria is always a good place to eat," he said. "Down through the years, its been a real good restaurant."

Grace Martin and her husband, Millard, of Upland like to eat out at Bob's Big Boy, they said.

"We like Bob's, Alphy's and Sambo's," said Mrs. Martin. "At Bob's, I think they have good service and food,"

Donna Moore, a San Dimas resident, said her favorite restaurant was Marie Callender's in Claremont.

"I love their fresh strawberry pie," she said. "The waitresses are friendly and they have a real nice salad bar. I really like the food."

Rodney Perry of Chino, who recently moved to the valley, said he enjoyed eating out at Tiny Naylor's restaurant in Montclair.

"My fiancee and I went there recently," he said. "I liked their breakfast. It was very good. Its the best I've had for a long time."

Montclair resident Larry Guerrero said he liked to eat at In-N-Out Burgers, located at various locations throughout the Valley.

"I like everything about their hamburgers," he said. "I also like their root beer."

Griswold's in Claremont was a favorite dining spot in the valley for Helene Zinzian, who recently moved to Alta Loma. "They have a very nice rack of lamb," she said. "I enjoyed it. The dinner was great. The service was courteous and prompt. It was very nice."

ONE OF A KIND — The valley's only sidewalk cafe is the Danson at 109 Yale Ave., Claremont. It is really a restaurant, serving a full menu and operating a delicatessen.

English ordinary popular eatery

In England, commoners had patronized eating places called "ordinary" as far back as 1577. These were taverns which served only at specified mealtimes — usually between one and four o'clock — at a long, common table and at a fixed price. Diners couldn't come in any time and sit any place, then choose from a vast menu.

A noted ordinary frequented by literary figures in the 17th century was the Castle Ordinary. It burned down in 1666 and was built as Dolly's Chop House. The latter gained renown when "Dolly" introduced pretty serving maids instead of waiters.

Students active in food industry

Although many college and high school students rely on the restaurant industry for vacation employment, some 1.5 million of the 3 million students employed by restaurants work year-round, according to Warren L. Ward, secretary-treasurer of the Southern California Restaurant Association.

Ward, who with some 25,000 other Southern California restauranteurs is currently celebrating National Restaurant Month, said that college and high school students often find their introduction to the world of work in foodservice operations. While many of the young people use their restaurant industry employment to work their way through college, career opportunities for enthusiastic and energetic young people abound in the industry, he said.

Citing figures from a National Restaurant Association study on foodservice industry employment, Ward said that full-time students hold approximately 2.5 million foodservice jobs. Part-time students are employed in one-half million industry jobs. In total, the foodservice industry employs eight million people.

The plum state

Two thousand years ago plums grew wild in China and were treasured only by the epicurean Chinese. Today, they are appreciated throughout much of the world. And, in the U.S. more than 90 per cent of the plum supply comes from California, the "plum state". There are some 20 major varieties grown in California — all make refreshing snacks and add a sparkling flavor and color to pies, cakes, tarts, sauces, compotes, salads and jams throughout the summer months.

Amtrak cooks like Grandma did

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Grandma wouldn't be baffled in the kitchen of a gleaming red, silver and blue Amtrak train speeding across the country. She was an artist at turning out wholesome meals on woodburning, cast-iron stoves — and so are many Amtrak cooks.

The stoves are standard on most of Amtrak's older dining cars — the ones inheried in 1971 when the National Railroad Corp. took over most of the country's passenger service from private railroads.

Barbara Halliday, an Amtrak spokeswoman in Washington, D.C., said some of the dining cars are more than 30 years old, and many of the cooks were inherited with the cars.

An Amtrak chef, using a stove filled with flaming pressed-wood logs, must have a quick eye and a sharp nose because the stoves have no temperature controls.

"Once you get it hot, you just know when to add one more log at a time to maintain the temperature," said Ulysses Harper, one of Amtrak's chefs, as he sweated over a stove on a run between San Francisco and Denver.

Amtrak started operations with 286 diesel and 40 electric locomotives and 1,275 cars, all bought or leased from existing railroad lines. During the past six years, Amtrak has spent or committed $582.7 million to buy new equipment.

The newer Amfleet kitchens operate on electric power provided by the locomotive. Individual meals are prepared by a caterer and frozen on the train. The food later is heated in a modern oven.

Later this year, Amtrak will begin to use the first of its new bi-level Superliner cars, the first long-distance passenger cars to be built in the United

La Villa Guasti a jewel of a restaurant

Nestled in a complex of warehouses, wine cellars and storage sheds in the dusty little community of Guasti, a few miles east of Ontario, stands a jewel of a luncheon restaurant, La Villa Guasti, amid tree-shaded lawns and flower beds. It is a stumbled-upon oasis amid vast acres of vineyards and the buildings of the Brookside Winery.

The handsome, Spanish-style timbered hall was built after Garrett and Company bought the Italian vineyards from Secundo Guasti in 1945. It was formerly a reception hall and wine-tasting center for visitors touring the vineyards and winery. Today it is an attractive restaurant with a light, airy ambiance, serving lunches for a modest price Monday through Friday. The best seller is enchilada burrito. There is an eat-all-you-want salad bar, Guasti chili, sandwiches of all kind, homemade Italian soups, hot sourdough bread and a variety of wines. The menu also includes Mexican plate, beef stew, lasagna, beef burgundy, French dip, Italian sausage, barbecued ham and other delicacies.

La Villa Guasti is the project of an attractive, vivacious Diamond Bar housewife and mother, Dixie Nolte, who three years ago, restless and unfulfilled in homemaking, decided to exploit her penchant for cooking by doing banquets, weddings and private parties at the villa.

"I had no idea what I was doing when I opened this place," she laughed. "We had these parties and a year and a half ago I was urged to open for lunches. Now we have 14 employes. When I came to work today, every table was full, and 25 people were waiting. It's unbelievable!"

Located in the heart of a popular Southern California vineyard, the restaurant would naturally offer a wide choice of wines. The list includes white wines (Emerald Reisling, St. Emilion, Hausemarke Rhine), rose (Vino Rosado), red wine (Pinot St. George, Zinfandel, Hausemarke Rote) chablis, burgundy, wine cocktails, apertif vermouth and dessert wines (chocolate, cafe, apricot and mint).

"There has been a great increase in the demand for California wines in recent years," said Mrs. Nolte. (The Dixie Lee comes from the late Bing Crosby's first wife — Mrs. Nolte's mother roomed with her in college. The only "south" she has known was South Gate, where she was born.)

California's wine grape production is forecast for 1.5 million tons this year, 145,000 tons more than last year. The California Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said that harvesting slowed toward the end of September because of low sugar content, but the current harvest is at near-record level.

"The increased demand is because our wines are really better than those from the East and Europe," says Mrs. Nolte. "The grapes are grown in a better climate. Domestic wines are much less expensive."

She attributes the increased demand for wines on the fact that many young people are discovering the delights of wine and appreciating it. Wine tasting parties and tours of local vineyards have increased interest in wineries.

What about the traditional selection of wines according to the dish being served — cabernet sauvignon with beef, gamay beaujolais with veal, grenache rose with ham, California chablis with fowl?

"People have gotten away from that now," says Dixie. "They drink what they like. If you want a red wine with fish or poultry, you have it. Ten years ago you'd be an outcast if you drank white wine with meat — which I do. Today it's a person's choice — and I approve."

The house still follows the custom of serving the host a small portion of the bottle for his tasting and approval, a formality that is looked upon with amusement by many, but which has often proved valuable. Dixie recalled an occasion when the waitress overlooked the ritual, and five businessmen and wine conoisseurs simultaneously tasted a wine that had turned to vinegar.

How does a housewife and mother-of-three like running a luncheon business at an obscure but turnaway restaurant?

"I love it!" Dixie said, enthusiastically. "It's so much fun. I love the satisfaction of seeing the little place grow into something. I've always loved to cook, anyway, and having this place blossom is very gratifying. It's terrific!"

And you don't have to care what kind of wine you order.

WINE AND WOMAN — Dixie Nolte, proprietor of La Villa Guasti, popular luncheon restaurant in Guasti, pours a tempting glass of wine.

Pomona Valley diners polled on favorite eating places

G. NEATHERLAND

What's your favorite restaurant?

Five valley residents were asked this question in interviews conducted by the Progress Bulletin at the Indian Hill Village shopping center in Pomona. The residents also were asked why a particular restaurant was their favorite.

Gwendolyn Neatherland of Pomona said her favorite was the Pomona Valley Mining Co. in Pomona. She noted that the food is good and she particularly liked the restaurant for its interior decorations.

Joe Passalacqua of Ontario said he liked Vince's Spaghetti in Ontario. The reason why it's his favorite is he enjoys the food and atmosphere.

Dolores Mikan of Pomona picked the Chung King Cafe in Pomona as her favorite eatery. She said it's quiet and she enjoys Chinese food. "I also like the inside decorations," she noted.

Harold Sargent of Upland chose the Cask 'N Cleaver in Cucamonga as his favorite. He stated, "It's reasonable, the service is good and the food is delicious. I've never had a bad meal there."

Alice Bennett of Montclair says Crystal's Cafeteria in Pomona tops her list. "They have good home-cooked meals and they don't serve real large portions. You have a choice of half or full orders. And I like the food."

States in decades, Ms. Halliday, who prefers that title, said.

Each Superliner will have an electric kitchen with microwave and standard oven, an electric grill, toaster, coffeemaker and warming table. Superliner kitchens will be on the lower level of the dining car, while dining passengers will sit on the upper level.

Turbocafes on the French-designed Turboliners also have modern cooking equipment. Coach passengers order over a counter and dine at their seats on fold-down tables. The Turboliners are used primarily in New York State, Amtrak said.

Ronald Humble, an Amtrak reservation agent in Los Angeles, said menus vary with each line, though some standard dishes are available.

Red snapper, for example, is a special item on the Sunset route between Los Angeles and New Orleans, he said. And passengers taking the Southwestern route between Los Angeles and Chicago or the San Francisco Zephyr to Chicago may order Colorado trout for dinner.

Humble said breakfasts are priced up to $3.75, with lunches from $3 to $4.50 and dinner from $4.50 to $7.

Tabard Inn early eatery

Inns, hotels and monastaries of early Europe offered sleeping accomodations as well as food to the weary traveler. Today's restaurant is really an outgrowth of these. Its development as a separate institution came later.

One of the earliest restaurants was the Tabard Inn in London where, in the 14th Century, Chaucer's Canterbury pilgrims used to gather prior to their journey to the shrine of St. Thomas a Becket to dine and revel.

They also held dinners there after they returned, at which time the best teller of stories during the pilgrimage was rewarded with a free meal and feted.

This was the idea of the inn host, Harry Bailey, who went along on the trips to judge the best tales.
